

The Open Boat.

"When this here war is done" says Dan, and all the fightin' through There's some'll pal with Fritz again as they was used to do; But not me" says Dan, the sailor man "No me" says he, "Lord knows its nippy in an open boat on winter nights at sea."

"When the last battle's lost and won, an' won or lost the game, There's some'll think no 'arm to drink with squarheads just the same; But not me," says Dan the sailor man "an' if you ask me why— Lord knows its thirsty in an open boat when the water-breaker's dry."

"When all the bloomin mines is swee, an' ships are sunk no more There's some'll set them down to eat with Germans as before; But not me," says Dan the sailor man, "Not me, for one— Lord knows its hungry in an open boat when the last biscuit's done."

"When peace is signed and treaties made an' trade begins again, There's some'll shake a German hand a' never see the stain; But not me," says Dan the sailor man, "not me, as God's in high — Lord knows its bitter in an open boat to see your shipmates die."

—From Punch.

A Dog on Wheels.

One of the Red Cross workers at Jacksonville, Kan., was a two legged dog, which had lost its two forelegs in an accident. By means of a leather harness, the dog's owner attached a pair of wheels on an axle just below the dog's shoulders. The axle turns and the dog can run from side to side go straight ahead or turn around by simply propelling its body with its hind legs. The Red Cross sign, which the crippled dog bore up and down the streets of Jacksonville, was the means of getting hundreds of persons to give for war mercy work.

Those Well Fed Americans.

One thing Europe notices in the Americans is their physique. Thanks to the country that has fed them, they are bigger, sturdier fellows than the allies of the Germans. One of the great troubles of the quartermaster department of the army has been to get clothes large enough for the men. More large sizes have been needed than any other. A recruit accepted this month at Fort Douglas could not find a single article of the regulation uniform that was big enough for him. He had to squeeze himself into an extra large sweater, and the post tailor made a temporary pair of trousers until a uniform especially made for him could be obtained. The man's name is Christensen. He is 6 feet 3 inches in height, weighs 270 pounds and has a chest measurement of 47 inches. When he gets behind a bayonet, it will be a sorry day for the Hun who faces him.

Adopted, 1394 French Orphans.

Thirteen hundred and ninety-four French war orphans have been adopted by the National Association of the Daughters of the American Revolution. These children are the wards of the French government, which pays half the sum necessary for their maintenance, while the other half is contributed by the various D. A. R. chapters.

The names of the orphans are sent to Mme. Jusserand after each case has been investigated by the committee of which Marshal Joffre is the head.

The committee reports that there are 3000 more children who need help but owing to the shortage of labor it is impossible to obtain the clerical assistance necessary to complete the lists. The French office, which handles this work, was damaged recently by bombs.

In emphatic terms National and state selective service heads have condemned attorneys who collect fees for advice given registrants and who make a professional matter of pleading the deferred classification claims of men in the draft. Captain J. E. Cullison head of the selective service in Oregon has issued a circular letter, quoting largely from a message from Provost Marshal-General Crowder in which the taking of fees by lawyers or notaries is branded as profiteering. "The other objectionable practices are legal pleadings termed "improper, unethical and unpatriotic."

SCRAPS of HUMOR

Explained at Last.
Mr. Flatbush—Why in the world does a woman always get off a street car the wrong way.
Mrs. Flatbush—She doesn't.
"Of course she does. Instead of facing the way the car is going, she faces the other way."
"That's because the conductor takes her beyond the street she wants to get off at, and of course she wants to face the way she's going."

More Imposition.
"Mrs. Diggs is going to read an important paper before her literary club."
"Ah! In that case, Professor Diggs will have to drop his scientific investigations for a while."
"He won't be compelled to hear her read it, will he?"
"No, but he'll probably have to write it."

Probably.
The old colored man had climbed into the dentist's chair.
"Shall I give you laughing-gas, uncle?" queried the tooth doctor.
"Not till the toof am out, boss," replied the old man. "Reckon mobby Ah'll feel mo' lak laffin' dea."

Vernacular.
"Why did you discharge your cook?"
"She said she wouldn't be reprimanded."
"Did she express herself to that effect?"
"Yes, but what she really said was, 'I won't take no sass offen nobody.'"

Point Blank.
Jack—And when I proposed at the dance she asked for time to think it over. What do you suppose she did that?
Bess—Well, a girl naturally hates to think of disagreeable things while enjoying herself.

A HINT.
Father—Agnes, is that young man still there?
Daughter—Yes, papa.
Father—Then ask him to bring in the morning paper before he goes, will you, dear?
Exactly.
By subterfuge he got away from cups on the qui vive, And so became, as one might say, A subterfugitive.

A Proud Declaration.
"I miss the well-rounded periods you used to employ in your orations."
"I may be shy on well-rounded periods," replied Senator Sorghum, "but you will notice that I come to a full stock quicker."

A Final Opinion.
"What did you think of the technique of the prima donna last night, Mrs. Comeupp?"
"Why, it was all old style. It even was buttoned down the back."

Mutual.
Grace—Percy says his dog is as intelligent as he is.
Dolly—Oh, there's no doubt about it. Percy is proud of the dog and the dog is proud of Percy.

Nowadays.
Beggar—Could you spare a hungry man a nickel?
Cholly—Yes, if you'll tell me where a man can buy anything to eat with a nickel.

Rustic Plutocracy.
"Thousands of dollars pass through a bank teller's hands daily."
"That's nothing. Think of what passes through a farmer's hands who milks twenty cows."

In These Days.
"It's as useless as the fifth wheel to a wagon."
"That adage is out of date. All automobiles carry extra tires."

COURTING TROUBLE.

It was a red-letter day for Pat Finnegan. For the first time he was a member of a jury. Dressed in his best suit he was about to depart for the courthouse when his wife asked him where he was going.
"Shure, an' it's to coort Ol'm goin'." replied Pat.
The next day the same thing happened. However, on the third morning things came to a climax. Mrs. Finnegan again asked the question.
"Shure, it's to coort Ol'm goin'," said Pat.
Mrs. Finnegan took the rolling pin and got in Pat's way.
"Now, Pat," she replied, "take off them good clothes; yer not going to coort. If there's any coortin' to be done, shure, ye'll do it here, an' do it with me!"

Truth About Premonition.
"Once in a while an error turns out to be the truth," said the editor.
"How is that?" asked the caller.
"Why," replied the editor, "in writing about the death of Mrs. Rounder I referred to Mr. Rounder as 'the bereaved widower,' but the compositor made it 'the relieved widower,' and it got into the paper that way, and Rounder never even called up to demand a correction."—London Tit-Bits.

"Well, I have done as many different things as anybody you know."

Her Remedy.
"When I told Maria her new hat was unbecoming, she said she would face the trouble and make it the subject of serious reflection."
"And did she?"
"Sure. She went for the nearest looking glass."

Public Representation.
"After you are gone they may set up a statue of you."
"Don't suggest it," replied Senator Sorghum. "I've been looking the statury over and I don't want any. It's bad enough to be cartooned while you are alive."

Getting His.
"You seem to enjoy seeing the judge with his wife."
"Yes, I like to see him get some of his own medicine."
"Eh?"
"I like to see her overrule him."

Forgetful.
Mr. Brown—What did I do with my hat, Jane?
Mrs. Brown—You left it on your head, Bill.
Mr. Brown—Gosh! Next thing I'll be leaving my head in my hat.

"What's the dispute about?" demanded the proprietor. "Remember, in this store the customer is always right."
"He says you're an old shark," explained the clerk briefly.

"Opportunity makes the man."
"Sure thing; where would Jonah have been if the whale had not been waiting for him?"

Value of Our "New" Daylight.

Figures that show the bearing of daylight saving on war gardens are impressive—3,000,000 gardeners in seven months will gain 564,000,000 hours, which are equivalent to 62,250,000 days of eight hours each, or 186,986 years. This time is considered sufficient for raising the equivalent of the supplies consumed in six months, by an army of 1,000,000 men. These calculations by the president of the national war garden commission leave no doubt as to the practical value of the plan for setting the clock ahead an hour.

A continuance of daylight saving in 1919 is expected as a matter of course. People who appreciate the advantage naturally wonder why so much talking was necessary before congress ordered the change. No disturbance was caused by the federal regulation for the reason that it applied to every one and when the time comes for setting the clocks back an hour there will be no confusion.—Providence Journal.
