CIRCUIT COURT DOINGS.

Charged With Manufacturing Whiskey and Beer and Cheating the County.

Circuit Judge G. R. Bagley held a short term of the circuit court on ment ever held in the Pacific North-Monday disposing of several cases. District Attorney T. H. Goyne called the grand jury together and it invesindictments.

The grand jury was called together this week and returned several indictments. Three were against James Langley, two charging him with unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor, having operated a still. It was while searching for the. still that the officials came across the beer while in process of brewing. The most serious charge against Langley, however, is the indictment that accuses him ob committing a gross fraud and cheat at common law. Langley was an employee of the great parade is to be held Tuesday, county, and had charge of men who worked upon the county roads in the neighborhood in which he resided. viz. the Miami river road. It was part of Langley's duties to keep and report the time which men worked to W. F. Cane, who was acting as assisting road master of the county. In may, Langley reported that a relative Jos.
