CAN OREGON REPEAT?

The vaults of the U. S. Treasury again need refilling. Ever increasing expenditures necessary to hasten the end of the War, the Keeping-up and Backing-up of "Our Boys," the Sustaining of the Allied Nations and their Peoples, the Perpetuation of Democracy and Destruction of Autocracy—require the unstinted sacrifice—the DO YOUR BEST, NOT SIMPLY "BIT," of every true American.

The Eve of the 4th Liberty Loan is here. FIRST in every patriotic endeavor, OREGON cannot, will not, shall not falter NOW. With more to work for, more to give for, more to sacrifice for—every true Oregonian will make it his duty to see that Oregon DOES REPEAT—by going over the top FIRST once again.

While the campaign does not officially start until September 28th, we will so voluntarily pledge our subscriptions and anticipate our quotas that in this loan, this county and this state IT WILL BE OVER WHEN IT'S OPENED.

What the Editors Say

Ex-Governor West's acceptance of the prohibition nomination for United States senator isn't worrying McNary to any great extent. Of course Os. is also the Democratic nominee, and with combined forces it will probably not be necessary for him to make an affidavit after election that he was a candidate.—Observer.

When Colonel Roosevelt in his Springfield speech declared that "for the moment the pacifists, internationalists and pro-Germans dare not be noisy," he didn't know that old habits are too strong to be broken in some isolated cases and even discretion could not prevent reference to a hyphen that has gone out of business except where it is nourished in secret.—Independent.

While the daily casualty lists must cause a heartache and the ache is more acute when the list contains a well known name, we must remember that the list is but one side of the story, and that for every boy who has fallen the German horde has paid a price many times greater. All the reports from the front pay warm tribute to the Americans as fighters, and that we have just begun to fight the Hun will soon know to his sorrow.—Independent.

With the aid of the country press, the Government's messages are reaching every nook of the country. The newspapers are doing much valuable work for the nation during these war times. They are carrying the government's messages to all of the people in the rural communities. Seldom, if ever, has the power of American journalism, metropolitan or rural, performed such far reaching and valuable service as during the past two years.—News Reporter.

There is a way in which every loyal citizen can help the local draft boards. If you know of men who are hanging aloof from doing their full duty as soldiers of the country under one pretext or another, it is your duty to report the case to your local board whose members can then proceed to investigate. Such information will be held in confidence. The boards cannot be expected to know all conditions surrounding men of draft age, but will take up any case that may be brought to their attention.—Telephone Register.

What shall we do with the Kaiser? No doubt our readers have all heard the song "What shall we do with him boys." And all have read all sorts of suggestions as to what should be done with the Kaiser. Some suggested hanging—but who would disgrace a tree with his carcass. Some consign him to the lower regions but the devil don't want him. Here is our suggestion: Sentence him to hard labor for the rest of his natural life in Belgium. Make him replace brick by brick and stone by stone the homes he has destroyed. Give him for a boss the outraged women of Belgium. Give him as a ration the food meted out to prisoners. Make him speak the French language. Make him salute the British flag morning and evening, and sing the Star Spangled Banner. Let him spend the rest of his miserable life in Restoration, Restitution and Penitence.—Artisan.

Already many American homes have been saddened, and yet rejoiced because of a little cable message from France. A few of these homes are in Polk county. A few thousands of these messages have come telling of the falling of America's young men who have won, in the words of Theodore Roosevelt, "the prize of death for a lofty idea." Soon these messages will be coming faster. They will come by the thousands, perhaps by the tens of thousands. And when they do come, all must be brave. When one man falls we must send a score to take his place. When one gives his life we must double our efforts to send food and munitions to save the life of his fellows. We must make every loss a gain; we must make every blow struck by the enemy of mankind rebound in double force against the striker. Come what may, let no American falter. But rather let the coming of the casualty lists, as come they must, inspire us all to greater effort, greater determination and greater dedication of our every power to the cause for which the fallen have died.—Itemizer.

The voter's pamphlet containing all the constitutional amendments and measures submitted to the voters for their adoption or rejection is now in the hands of the voters of the state and each one is now permitted to judge of the animus of the last measure in the pamphlet submitted by Publisher C. S. Jackson, of the Portland Journal. That he is attempting to legislate for the newspapers outside of his jurisdiction is indicated in the first section of his measure which is applicable only to counties having a population of less than 150,000. Portland, having a population exceeding these figures, of course does not come within the provisions of his measure, and the question naturally arises if his medicine is a panacea for all publishing ills outside of his bailiwick, why is it not equally as effective on himself. The reason is self evident in the fact that Jackson desires to put the country press out of business that he may thrive over their ruins, else why this class legislation that cannot affect him but does effect more than 95 per cent of the papers of the state.—Sheridan Sun.

An Important Verdict.

August 17 marks the verdict in legal annals which should go down in history as among the most important ever rendered in America. On that date one hundred anarchists were convicted in Chicago when a jury in the court of Judge Landis returned a verdict of guilty after but one hour of deliberation. In some respects this was the most remarkable trial ever held on America soil. The defendants were members of the infamous organization known as the Industrial Workers of the World, a title that is an ironical misnomer, inasmuch as the members do not work or believe in industrial employment. The end of the trial after 138 days, came with dramatic suddenness. At the conclusion of the testimony of two minor witnesses the chief attorney for the government made a brief statement to the jury. The attorneys for the defendants created a surprise when he refused to make a plea, further than after but one hour of deliberation. "Just what he meant by this remarkable reference cannot be surmised. But the jury returned a "Christian verdict" with most commendable promptness, comporting with every theory and principal of Christianity. Grave fears were entertained as to what the jury would do in the case. There was never the slightest doubt of the guilt of the prisoners. They confessed to a great part of the charges made against them, and did so in an arrogant spirit of defiance of the law and the court. The methods of the I. W. W. are well known. This organization is one of violence and destruction. Open threats have been made against those who have been concerned in the government's case, and it is required a high degree of personal courage to prosecute these desperate defendants. The members of the jury were fully acquainted with the danger that threatened them following the verdict of guilty. The defendants had many friends not in custody, and the organization itself is resourceful and utterly without scruples. To the members of this jury the country owes much. They did their duty, but in doing it they incurred the hostility of one of the most desperate gangs of criminals ever organized in this country. The conviction of the leaders, including that miscreant, "Big Bill" Haywood, will do much to draw the teeth of the I. W. W. In fact that organization has been taught that it cannot continue to defy law and order, outrage public decency and preach ruin and anarchy in this republic without being brought to account. Having made this excellent start, the government should not relax in any degree its efforts to bring to justice all other anarchists, draft-obstructors, agitators and pro-German spies. This is a fine opportunity for a national house cleaning, so that when the boys come back from France they will find America 100 per cent American. It is just as necessary to remove the menace of anarchy and greed from the nation as it is to whip the Huns. In fact the two things belong together.—Telephone Register.

Loafing is Murder.

"Any man who loaf on his job, who does not do an honest day's work six days a week, does so at the cost of the blood of the boys over there."

This is pretty strong language, but it comes from authority. It was uttered by Lewis B. Franklin, national director of the war loan organization.

"Of every $5 earned in this country this year, $2.30 will be needed by the United States government to pay its war bill, and the government has got to get it," said Mr. Franklin. "Men who work three days a week and loaf the rest of the time cannot understand what it means for any person in this country not to do an honest day's work six days a week. What it means is that some boy now over there is not coming back. It means lengthening the war, and needless lengthening of the war means the loss of lives, additional suffering and greater cost to the nation."

Mr. Franklin urges against overconfidence because of the late good news. Germans still has 8,000,000 men under arms, and the lines are nearer Paris now than they were a year ago. "The man who is preaching the near ending of the war is not helping the situation. I do not believe for one moment that the fourth liberty loan is going to be the last one."

The way to speed up the winning of the war is by increased production in every line. And the only way to increase production is by work. Six full days of honest work every week from every man and woman in the country will win the war. But the man or woman who loaf is guilty of the blood of the nation's boys.—Umpqua Valley News.

Protection from every form of loss

from a strayed parcel

to a burned block

THE wonderful thing about Hartford insurance service is its scope. It provides against losses you never think of until they happen to you. You will never know that you could have been saved from the consequences of them unless you talk to this agency today. Every loss of property can be measured in money. The loss may be caused by fire, accident, sickness, theft, storm, carelessness, circumstances. All these have been foreseen and provided for by some form of Hartford policy. Fire comes first as causing the greatest losses, but is first for that reason alone. Some other form of fatality might be far worse for you than a fire. Do not learn these things after they happen. The two Hartfords can protect you on all sides. The policies will surround you with an interlocking coat of mail, leaving no unprotected point. This agency will be pleased to explain the complete protection offered by the
