

OLD NAVY BUGLAR IS IN TRAINING CAMP.

Rollie W. Watson Veteran of Sea Career Carries Him Over Much of World.

(From Oregon Emerald.)
The third Officers' Training Camp is fast proving itself a regular refuge of interesting characters. Since it is a somewhat bashful organization, however, it is only slowly and one by one that these interesting persons come to light. There were millionaires, hotel managers, athletes and senators. This time it is an ex-sailor, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, Rollie W. Watson, now buglar in the machine gun company.

Mr. Watson's home is in Tillamook where he has been engaged in the real estate and insurance business for the past eleven years. Previous to this he was editor and owner of a newspaper in Tillamook.

The navy career of Mr. Watson began in 1894 when he joined in San Francisco as an apprentice boy. At that time all apprentices had to learn either drumming or bugling so Mr. Watson chose the latter. This accounts he explains, for the ease with which he makes the call now.

Goes Far into China.

Soon after entering he was sent to what was then known as the Asiatic station. Here patrol boats made trips up navigable streams as far into the interior of China as possible acting both as a protection to the missionaries at these points and carrying on affairs for the American council in China. These patrols were in fact the furthest outposts of American civilization.

Mr. Watson was serving on a patrol at the time of the survey of the famous Pekin-Canton railroad by Engineer Parsons of New York. This railroad extended 1100 miles into the interior and followed the course of the grand canal.

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, Mr. Watson went to the Philippines and was there during the memorable battle of Manila Bay. Following the declaration of peace he served in settling the insurrections which arose soon afterward.

Newspaper Field Attracts.

In 1901 he received his discharge at the Mare Island training station. At the time of his discharge he had attained the position of a non-commissioned officer, gunner's mate of the second class.

It was immediately following his return to Tillamook that he entered the newspaper field.

So when you next hear the good, clear notes of the reveille, mess call or taps, more than likely it is Mr. Watson, ex-sailor, newspaper-man, real estate and insurance man now chief buglar for the third Officers' Training Corps.

To the Editor Tillamook Headlight.

Dear Mr. Baker:—

This officers' training camp began a series of instructions on October 5th, three hundred and sixteen business and professional men from the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and California were accepted for enrollment to qualify in fitting themselves for further advancement to the Central Officers' Camps established in different states. Thinking that the efforts of these citizens along these lines would be of interest to your many readers of the Headlight, setting forth in a brief way, the "primary workings of making officers," available for carrying on the war against the Kaiser.

At the present time we are told that these good old U. S. has over two million trained fighters in Europe and that there are over two million more men in training in this country to "lick hell out of Germany" and that there are something now over seventeen million men and women engaged in governmental war works; (now, if the German war dogs could see what they are up against, they would surrender, absolutely and unconditionally.)

The available man power of this great country is almost unbelievable when we talk in millions of men and in billions in real money it is inconceivable to the lay mind, and in physical, financial and material resources we cannot be compared with any single nation, or combination of nations in this particular.

This O. T. C. is one of many Universities that are the clearing house of the national intellectual man power, where the commanding officers of our great armies are being tempered; and the process is both a physical and mental grind which segregates the fit from the unfit, is the primary test of both. The hardening of the muscles, the sharpening of the mind to grasp the situation and do it quickly. All of which must be assimilated. Even though these men in training never secure the much coveted commission as an officer of the armies of Uncle Sam, they will be physically and mentally better men and citizens after having passed through the "try-out" test.

Your correspondent arrived in Eugene and registered at headquarters of this O. T. C. Oct. 5th, work commenced immediately, barracks were established, assignments were made and companies organized. There being companies A, B, C, D, E, and Machine Gun, of which latter company I became a member. The Y. M. C. A. Building, a three story brick situated on Willamette street was rapidly converted into barracks, with double deck iron beds with springs and mattresses. Each student officer provides his own bedding, toilet articles, uniforms and comfort necessities. The quarters are electric lighted and provided with shower baths and plunge and every convenience and comfort.

Reveille is sounded at 6:00 a.m., At 6:30 all companies fall in for physical exercise which lasts from thirty to forty-five minutes. After P. E. the companies are dismissed until 7:45 when all companies fall in and march in formation to breakfast mess which is in "Friendly Hall" just one mile from barracks, where all mess are served in cafeteria style. All food is excellent, substantial and plentiful.

The whole camp is under the immediate personal direction of Colonel John Leader, of the British army and veteran of the Somme, as well also of the Boer war and the Boxer war. Col. Leader is a wonderful man and is fairly loved by all of his students. Col. Leader is ably assisted in the camp by experienced officers in every branch.

A wide range of subjects are taught and includes military drill and parade, camping, tactics and strategy, field engineering, signaling, topography, musketry, machine gunnery, mathematics, camouflage, trench warfare, officers' school, military organization, gas school, artillery, bombing and bayoneting, French, military law, first aid and night attacks in offensive and defensive tactics. The work is interesting and intensive. It is stated that in the one month course the subject matter is equivalent to a one year course at West Point.

The time allotted to subjects is brief and in the lectures each student takes notes for working up the subject. There are certain periods for drill and lectures with brief intervals for rest.

Target range practice with rifle and machine gun has already been had during the past week. There has been drills and lectures without number. Bayonet and bombing work has been strenuously attacked. Field attacks in offensive and defensive as well as a two days 30 mile hike. Guard mount and retreat have been staged in the days past and more to come. We had two real military funerals with the whole camp as escort under arms and "taps" sounded as the last tribute of respect. A memorial service was held in honor of one of the men of the camp. There has been a little of the Spanish influenza—three men of the camp having died here—this is now under complete control and all the men of the camp are in fine fettle.

During the closing week of this camp a big camp fire is being staged for Monday, night attack and trench war for Tuesday night and a big review for Wednesday. The Third Officers' Training Camp will be completed and pass into history of Eugene and the University of Oregon on Saturday, November 2nd. A number of the men here have already been detailed for the General Officers' Camps and some have gone on their way rejoicing, others will follow soon. Such is the beginning of the career of an officer for service in Uncle Sam's service to crush the Hun. The adaptability of the men at this camp has proven that wonderful results can and are being accomplished in fitting the millions of our American manhood to fight to a finish for the cause of liberty, freedom, righteousness, justice and democracy against militarism, autocracy and the Kaiser's hordes.

Rollie W. Watson Student Third Officers' Training Camp and Chief Trumpeter.

SENATORS SCORE WILSON POLICIES.

Appeal to Voters is Target for Attack

Washington, Oct. 28.—Peace conditions and President Wilson's statement asking his fellow countrymen to return a Democratic Congress in the November elections were the vehicles of a partisan debate in the senate today which continued throughout the session and blocked plans for adjournment of Congress tomorrow over the elections.

The discussion, which was opened by Senator Knox, Republican, of Pennsylvania, and former Secretary of State, was an attack on President Wilson's appeal to the electorate and became general among the dozen Senators present.

Republicans sharply criticized the President for carrying on peace discussions with the central powers and for enunciating terms and principles of peace.

Question of Authority Raised.
Senator Knox said that the President's appeal raised the question whether the will of the President or the will of the American people is to determine the policy of this country in ending the war.

Senator Piondexter of Washington, Republican, said the president assumed more authority than is given under the Constitution in fixing peace terms. The Washington Senator said no greater service could be done Germany than to bring about an armistice.

Democratic Senators defended the President, with Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, chairman of the foreign relations committee, the chief spokesman.

Letters From Wilson Read.
Answering the Republican contentions that in his third principle against economic barriers the President was attempting to inject free trade into the peace treaty, Senator Hitchcock read a letter from the President, saying that his words left every nation free to decide its own internal economic policy, but that tariffs adopted should apply to all nations alike.

Before the Senate met, a similar letter addressed to Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, had been made public. Both Senators Knox and Piondexter said the letters clearly demonstrated that the President favors admitting Germany to the proposed league of nations as an "equal partner" and with assurance against discriminatory treatment.

Deliberate Attack Charged.

Senator Hitchcock said the Republican leaders, for partisan political ends, are making a deliberate effort to "distort and misrepresent" the third peace principle. He emphasized that the Republican "free trade" attack had been withheld until the present political campaign.

This drew from Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, the Republican leader the declaration that he had not indorsed all the President's 14 principles, and had especially opposed the term which, he said, proposes to guarantee Turkish sovereignty.

Re-election Purpose Alleged.

Senator Pittman, of Nevada (Dem) made a vigorous attack on Republican leaders, especially on ex-President Roosevelt and Chairman Hays, for their statements concerning the President's moves in peace negotiations. The "ungodly purpose" of re-election is the motive, Senator Pittman declared, charging Republican leaders with exhibiting lack of respect for the President and with doing everything to discredit him.

Senator Ashurst, of Arizona (Dem) referred to the attack on President Wilson by Theodore Roosevelt, declaring that the ex-president also had criticized Senator Lodge, Smoot and Penrose at the time the Progressive party was formed.

New Band is Being Organized.

From Trench and Camp, published at Camp Lewis we call the following: Some of the most accomplished musicians of the camp are to be found in the Headquarters company of the 76th Infantry. The organization of the regimental band for the 76th infantry is now under way. Sergt. Samuel R. Donaldson has been designated as band master. Instruments are ordered and as soon as received the 76th infantry band will be a reality.

An orchestra made up of band members under the leadership of Sergt. Donaldson, has been a headline feature of the tent meetings at Y No. 4 the past week. Special mention should be made of the unusually accomplished pianists of the orchestra, Messrs Leland B. Irwin and Joseph Le Var Jensen, who are helping to make the musical features in this section exceedingly attractive. Serg. Donaldson trombone solos and orchestra leadership mark him as a musician of rare ability. He is an enthusiastic and energetic leader and is determined instilling the spirit of '76 into not only his own men of the 76th infantry the singing regiment of the United States army.
