The bill to increase the salary of the district attorney for Tillamook county was killed in the senate on Saturday. Notwithstanding that Senator Handley recommended the increase, the ways and means committee turned in a report unfavorable to the bill, whereupon the senator called the committee the tight wads of Oregon, but as the bill came up at a time when the steam roller was flattening out a lot of increase-salary bills, the steam roller went over the Tillamook bill and killed it.

Attorneys' fees of $10,000 are sought by Sam White and John H. White in a motion filed in the Multnomah circuit court in the case of J. R. Marsh against the T. B. Potter Realty company. As attorneys for S. B. Vincent, receiver for the realty concern from March 22, 1915, to May 1, 1918, the petitioners ask that the court fix their fee, averring that the reasonable compensation is $10,000. They have already been paid the sum of $1,605 on account. John H. White, son of Sam White, is making his first appearance in local courts since his entrance in the army.

Marie Parker vs. William Parker is a divorce suit filed in the circuit court. These parties were married at Tacoma, Wash., on the 23rd of December, 1914. The complaint alleges that defendant exhibited toward plaintiff a disposition of jealousy, accusing her of being immoral. On the 3rd of January last the defendant threatened to assault and injure the plaintiff with a razor, and soon after deserted and abandoned the plaintiff, leaving her with her two children, to pay all bills, debts and accounts which the defendant had undertaken for the benefit for himself. The plaintiff asks the court to allow her $39.00 per month for her support and $25.00 per month for the support of the children, and $75 for attorney's fees and suit money.

Receipts for Cheese Etc, $1,366,614.
We did not receive the report of the Upper Nestucca Cheese Factory until after we went to press last week, consequently could not give the actual figures of all the cheese factories in the county. It is more than pleasing to note that this cheese factory has more than doubled its output of the previous year. In 1917 the milk received was 206,000 pounds. Last year it was 475,882 pounds. The cheese manufactured in 1917 was 26,316 pounds, while last year it increased to 51,680 pounds. The report does not mention the total amount received for cheese, but it is estimated that it sold for about $13,000, as the cheese from that factory is not inspected.
The total amount of milk produced in Tillamook county, and which was manufactured into cheese, for 1918 is 45,576,038 pounds.
Cheese manufactured amounts to 5,088,588 pounds.
The value of the cheese and whey butters and cream amounted to $1,366,614 for last year.

Private Guy Stockman Writes About Versailles and Paris.
LeTheil, France, Jan. 25th, 1919.
Dear Mr. Editor.—Now that the war is over. I will drop you a line, and let you know I am still alive and am fine and dandy.
I participated in three drives, and come through without a scratch. The drives were named: St. Mihiel, Sept. 11 to Sept. 13. Meuse-Argonne, Sept. 26th, to Oct. 4th. Lys-Scheldt drive, Belgium, Oct. 31st, to Nov. 11th, the signing of the armistice. That was some happy day for us, as well as you folks in the good old U. S. A.
I won't try and tell you about the war, as it would take up too much of your space, so will tell you of a trip I have just made.
I have just returned from Versailles, and Paris, had a most wonderful trip, and will try and tell you a few of the things I saw, which will be of some interest to you.
I left LeTheil at 6:30 a.m. arriving at Versailles, at 11 a.m. went and had my dinner. I will tell you how they serve you a meal. First they bring you a hunk of bread and your coffee, then your meat, next your potatoes, next your salad, and lastly your dessert. The only trouble is that you have one thing eaten up before the next arrives, especially in the case of a soldier. A meal, served on silver trays, costs 10 Francs or about $2.00, so you see the eats are expensive. I then formed in with a party, and went through the King's Palace, some wonderful things indeed, and one cannot express them in words, the way he would like to, so I'll just sketch it through. We entered a large iron gate, come to the front court yard, where they have all the statues of the different army leaders. They also have Louis the 13th, and 14th, some statutory too. One can just stand and look at it, and wonder how it ever could be accomplished by the hand of man, one really has to be an ancient historian to appreciate it all.
The first flight of stairs leading to the spacious rooms, are of marble. I was afraid to step heavy with my hob nailed shoes for fear I would crack one of them.
I will mention a few of the rooms I went through: the Hall of Mirrors, the Reception Room, the Chapel, the rooms of Napoleon, the rooms of Louis the 13th and 14th, their bedrooms, and the family rooms, the room where peace will be signed. I stood on the same spot where the "Damn Kaiser" stood, and was made Emperor of Germany. I saw a painting that was the work of one man, all he accomplished in his whole life. I went to the Royal stables, saw all the gold trimmed carriages that those birds used to ride in, on those days, and they sure put it on pretty. The gold trimmed harness looked as good as new. They had everything there but the horses.
I then went through the gardens, or I mean a very small part of them. They only contain 1,000 acres. It has some wonderful fountains, walks, lawns, and everything it takes to make a park. This ended my sight seeing in Versailles. I then took an electric car to Paris. It is just 10 ks, or 12 miles, crossed the Seine River. On one side stood the Eiffel Tower, stretching itself 984 feet into the heavens, and is some structure. It has a lift which goes to the top, but at this time of the season it is closed. It was just about dark when I arrived there, so I went and got my room, had a fine room, cost 10 Francs and Oh my, the beds they have is sure great, and I sure got a kick out of it. Just to give you an idea what they are like, just my nose stuck out, some springs and feathers, just a little different from what we are used to, you know. I was up early the next morning and dozed out on my map the route I would take, so I could see the most. I first had another course meal. Then I went through the Hotel de Invalids, two French guides took me through and also to the topmost part of the dome. I crawled through holes, went round stairs that made me dizzy, and finally came to the top. Had a grand view of the city, and looked down into the dungeons where they used to cast the people in those days. To give you an idea how high I was, the men below us that were removing the sand from Napoleon's tomb, looked like fleas. They had this sand around his tomb to prevent the cracking of it, in the past air raids on Paris. They have hoko German Artillery lining the inside of the courtyard, and every description of a gun that was ever made.
From here I crossed the fine bridge of Napoleon the III. This is a fine bridge. It has his statue on one end. I then went through the Palace de Glaces. This is a fine structure. From here I went to the Arch of Triumph, this is a great piece of architecture, on every stone that is in it, a name of a man is carved, this arch has been closed since the French were defeated by the Germans. President Wilson has been through the arch since he has been "Over here" It will be open when peace is signed.
I went through the wonderful Notre Dame Cathedral. This is an immense piece of work, and has never been completed. Inside are all the statues of the Bible time people, since the resurrection of Christ. The Louvre is another fine building. The Hotel de Ville is another fine building. There are so many fine buildings that it would take up too much of your space to name them all.
Their subways are superior to those of New York. Their terminals in the subways are equal to a large depot. You can take a car to any part of the city from one terminal.
The traffic on the streets are a joke. They have bus room for two, if they squeeze in tight enough, and they only have two cylinders, so you can imagine the noise they make. They go like the dickens, and any way to get through. I saw a woman killed the day I was there, and one of the boys told me he had seen seven accidents in one evening. Some of the cars, or rather the busses have no lights. Most of the streets are lighted by gas lamp posts. Some of the streets are so crowded that you have to wedge your way through.
The way the ladies go to market is a big joke. In the morning they get what we call a dairy lunch. They have a pitcher to get their milk in. Then they go to a bakery and get a loaf of bread about three feet long. Bread under one arm, and the pitcher in the other hand, they go down the street. Can you imagine our American ladies doing their shopping like that?
The Mademoiselles that work in the stores go to a bakery, get a chunk of bread, put it in their basket, and that's their dinner. There are some mighty funny things "over here".
The weather here is freezing and the ground is covered with snow. I have received about 15 issues of your paper, and I surely appreciate them.
Of all the sights I have seen over here, I still stick to the motto I used to see in the papers, "See America first".
With best regards to everyone, I am,
Yours truly,
Guy Stockman.

Viscount Shows His Gratitude.
Viscount Peufeulhox, a French gentleman and a property holder in Tillamook, several months ago contributed $20.00 as the initial fund "for the relief of wounded soldiers of Tillamook." It was explained to the Viscount that our beneficent government would take care of the wounded soldiers of the country, and an offer was made to return his contribution. The gentleman writes from France as follows:
"I duly received your letter of the commencement of October and must apologize to have not answered sooner, but for some weeks I have been very busy and sometimes sick. The quality of food, chiefly bread, is now often poor and not favorable to people having stomach trouble like my self.
"Before receiving your letter I gave some suggestions to Josec. Michaud to use my draft to honor the memory of your countrymen killed in helping my native land to expel the Huns. Since it is impossible to employ it for the wounded soldiers, I give you full authority to use this money in the best way to accomplish this purpose.
"I loved the United States as soon as I saw them a long time ago. Now, after seeing the marvelous things done by them to preserve France from German barbarity, an infinite gratitude is added to my old admiration. I don't hesitate to tell you; the States have delivered Europe from German tyranny. At the present time it is necessary to exact severe punishment and reparation for so many crimes, so many useless devastations. The Huns merit no pity. Have they had any pity for our young girls and their parents carried away like cattle, for our men and boys working 14 hours a day like slaves without rational food, for our prisoners, without food, clothes, shoes and the simplest medicines, without even fire in winter? Sometimes these Attila soldiers have not destroyed our churches, but they made stables for their horses out of our finest cathedrals. Do you know our foes put a lot of mines in this city and a few days after leaving many children and other civilians were on that account killed. The papers do not print all events."
The editor had the pleasure of forming the acquaintance of Viscount Peufeulhox when he resided in Tillamook City some years ago and he became acquainted with quite a number of our citizens at that time.
