Is President Wilson sure that he knows the sentiment of the American people better now than he did last fall?

Some old fashioned Americans still have more faith in the Boston tea party than in the Buckingham palace dinner party.

After looking over Henry Ford's new weekly we believe that instead of being Dearborn it should have been Stillborn.

The officials who are defending the Brest camp ought to be given an indeterminate sentence to that military hogwallow.

Upon the adjournment of the present congress the taxpayers of the country will mourn their loss, but not the loss of Congress.

The league of nations scheme, according to Senator Lewis, does not provide for disarmament. As a guarantee of peace, then, it is a joke.

A good deal has been said derogatory to the Mexican war, but if we hadn't saved Texas what would this administration have done for cabinet material?

Kaiser William expects to be recalled to the German throne. The Kaiser may get a call, but he will be unexpectedly fortunate if it is an invitation to ascend a throne.

"The women of America" held a banquet at a fashionable Washington hotel recently, but why they invited "Pansy" Baker to attend it has not been officially explained.

President Wilson says that the American soldier fought as one in a dream but evidently it was more like a nightmare to the German troops arrayed against them.

Prof. George Herron says "the kingdom of heaven is at hand" but those who know George think that if this is true he makes a very poor advance agent for the show.

No mild punishment should be meted out to our home-grown bolshevik; they should be sentenced to live in Russia, where they don't seem to want to be.

Here's a suggestion for a Democratic national ticket in 1920: For President, George Creel; for vice president George Herron. Platform: "Let George do it."

Well, if Vic Berger has as poor an opinion of the government at Washington as he has always professed he would prefer a long term in the penitentiary to a short term in Congress.

President Wilson says that America must not fail the world. Nor must it fail itself. To paraphrase familiar lines, the nation that is not true to itself will not be true to any other nation.

If the platform of the league of nations is like a Democratic national platform, all you have to do is to construe every pledge to mean what it doesn't say, and then you will know what it really provides for.

While America free traders are twittering about the removal of all economic barriers, John Bull puts up a steer-high, hog tight fence against the importation of nearly every article of American manufacture.

It is very surprising indeed to most American soldiers to know that what they were fighting for was the defense, not of the American flag, but of the Fourteen Points, but of course it is better to have this news late than never.

The 1919 method of keeping us out of the war by making us parties to an agreement to go to war upon the vote of a majority of the members of a league of nations doesn't seem to have very many advantages in plausibility over the 1916 model.

Would it be too much to ask of the Democratic leadership of the country that it supply the unsatisfied demand for self-determination in the southern states under their control where the "mock" has been put in democracy, before they begin to supply the export trade?

What has become of the old fashioned Democrat who used to charge the high cost of living to the infamous Payne-Aldrich tariff law? He is now busy explaining the 1912 Democratic platform which demanded an immediate return to that economy and simplicity befitting a Democratic government.

President Wilson says that other fighting men in Europe fought nobly because they "had a vision"; they had a dream. Probably the colored troops had a vision of a Dixie election under Democratic auspices at which they would be lynched for approaching the polls by President Wilson's associates in party leadership.

The limitation of the hours of labor will be an easy problem in the United States if we get through the league of nations that freedom of

Study This Teat Cup

THE action of the Teat Cup of your milking machine depends the comfort and health of your cows and the quantity of milk they give.

Study carefully the Perfection Teat Cup illustrated above. It has been chosen for such well-known herds as the St. Olaf College herd at Northfield, Minn., the Grahamholm herd at Rochester, Minn., the A. L. Hyzer herd at Storm Lake, Iowa, the Upland Farms herd at Syracuse, N. Y.

Nature's Way

Put your finger in a calf's mouth and note its action. You will find it first sucks, then squeezes toward its throat (downward not upward) and then momentarily stops sucking while swallowing.

Now put your finger in the Perfection Teat Cup. If you were to shut your eyes you might think your finger was in the calf's mouth—so identical is the action of the Perfection and the calf. That is why cows like the Perfection so. It applies first a gentle suction, then a downward squeeze followed by a short period of release from suction. The Perfection feels natural to them and they give down their milk freely to it.

Suits All Cows

The Perfection Teat Cup fits all sizes of teats. You will find it a great convenience to be able to use the same teat cup for all cows.

Like every part of the Perfection, the Teat Cup is as simple as it is strong. It has only four pieces and can be taken apart and put together again without tools.

economic barriers so much talked about. With the world's work done in the cheapest labor markets the American wage earner will have nothing to do but to "loaf and refresh his soul."

To be entirely fair with the southern Democratic politician we believe they would be willing to regulate the price of cotton by fixing it at forty cents a pound now that the war is over.

One of the most prized specimens in the coin collections of the next generation will be a nickel with a date prior to 1921 that was not spent a couple of times by the national administration.

The figures on the coinage ought to be changed before the end of the present administration. Indians, eagles and buffalo's don't move fast enough to be appropriate. A jackrabbit rampant would symbolize the flight of money under a Democratic administration pretty well.
