Quick Action.

Two negroes met at a peace celebration on the day following the signing of the armistice. It was in a Colorado town, and the state had just gone Republican a few days before.

"Well, what you all think of it now?" inquired one.

"Shurs do look good," the other replied. "President Wilson sure did stop them Huns."

"President Wilson nothin'," retorted the first speaker. "Listen heah you Democrat nigger! Didn't I tell you somethin' gwine happen if we Republicans got elected? We've only been in a few days, an' look what we done!"

Explicitly Explained.

The engineer had become tired of the boastful talk he heard from the other engine drivers at his boarding house. One morning he began:

"This morning I went over to see a new machine we've got at our place and it's astonishing how it works."

"And how does it work?" asked one.

"Well," was the reply, "by means of a pedal attachment, a fulcrum lever converts a vertical reciprocating motion into circular movement. The principal part of the machine is a huge disc that rotates in a vertical plane. Power is applied through the axis of the disc, and work is done on the periphery, and the hardest steel, by mere impact, may be reduced to any shape."

"What is this wonderful machine?" was asked.

"A grindstone," was the reply.

Couldn't Do Without Pipe.

Force of habit is a wonderful thing said a Lewiston girl. "Now, my father smokes a pipe. Smokes a great deal, and then when he is going away or anything his pipe is his first consideration. Some time ago there was a fire in the neighborhood in the middle of the night.

"Father was out of bed with the first stroke of the alarm and rushed downstairs. Mother and I were a little longer getting there. When we got downstairs we found father with a raincoat on over his night shirt, leaning as far out of the back door as he could, gazing wild-eyed at the blaze down the street.

"When he heard us enter he brought his head in long enough to exclaim, 'Great Gosh, Alice, the Jones' house is all afire and I can't find my pipe!'"

His Dental Destiny.

Father and mother were having a little chat by the fire before retiring for the night. The future of their little ones was the interesting topic of their conversation.

"Then, what about Harold?" said the father presently.

"Ah, Harold," sighed the mother, a shadow crossing her face, "I sometimes wonder what will become of Harold! He seems to take a fiendish delight in hurting his brothers and sisters."

"Is that so?" said the father promptly. "Then we had better make him a dentist."

Ain't It The Truth!

At a recent Lowell centenary meeting in Cambridge, Mass., Prof. William Roscoe Thayer, who presided, told this:

When Cornell University was founded there was a struggle between Ithaca, N. Y., and Ovid, N. Y., for the location of the institution. Ithaca won out. It seemed necessary to compensate Ovid in some way, and so the new state insane asylum was located at Ovid. After some years had gone by, and both institutions were flourishing, the Ovid people began to suspect that Ithaca had a better thing than they had. Two old citizens were growling about Ithaca's prosperity one day, when one of them said:

"Well, we got the insane asylum, anyway."

"Yes, we did," said the other, "but you'll find out that it takes three insane asylums to equal a college."

His Bright Idea.

"Please can you give a poor man a little something to eat? But I don't want no bread please."

Woman—"You don't want no bread, eh? I guess you aint starving. You can just get along out of here."

"Wait till I explain madam. You see, the woman next door just gave me a piece of paving stone for bread, and as she said she was the best bread maker on the street—"

"The best bread maker on this street! Just come right in here, my poor man, and I'll show you what good bread really is. Lor', how some people does brag!"

Brains Unnecessary.

Being dismissed from various employments on account of some mental deficiency, Pat, recently consulted a brain specialist, who, having examined the contents of his cranium said:

"These brains want to be washed and cleaned, and if you leave them with me for a day or two I'll make a job of them."

"All right sir," agreed the hero. "I'll come back for them at the end of the week."

He failed however, to redeem his promise and, on receiving a reminder from the medico, sent the following note in reply:

"Dear sir: Ye can keep them brains altogether. I've just got a government job, an' so do not want them any more."

Wanted Too Much.

"I have here a knife," said the weary canvasser.

Don't want it snapped the busy man.

"It's an extremely useful article, sir. Apart from the many blades—"

"Take it away!"

"It has a screwdriver, a tin opener, a cigar cutter, a tobacco stripper, a wire cutter, a buttonhook, a—"

"I tell you I don't want it!"

"It further contains a pair of scissors and engraved upon it is the compound interest table, principal cash fares and the price of the whole thing complete is one and six pence."

"I repeat I don't want the wretched thing."

"No, I know you don't. You're one of those blooming old misers who won't buy a knife unless it has a weekly newspaper, a perpetual season ticket to an Italian opera company attached. Well, we've given up making that kind in war times at one and six pence."
