Represented, Anyway.

A couple of old codgers got into a quarrel and landed before the local magistrate. The looser turned to his opponent in a combative frame of mind, cried: "I'll law you to the circuit court." "I'm willing," said the other. "And I'll law you to the supreme court." "I'll be thar." "An' I'll law to 'em!" "My attorney'll be there," was the calm reply.

Was He An Incumbent?

The Hooser schoolteacher still remains in some parts of Indiana. One of these "last levers" recently declared that she wished a new position. She wanted one of the younger generation of teachers and told of her plans. "I'm writing a letter to the trustees of the town in which I wish to teach," she said, "and I wish to tell about my work here. I've taught ever since Mr. B. became superintendent here. Now shall I say I worked for twenty-five years under his administration or his incumbency?"

Young Logic.

"The logic of the child is always amusing and oftentimes embarrassing," remarked a well-known educator. "They tell a story of little Bess, who had been complaining that her stomach felt bad, and her mother said: 'Perhaps it's because its empty, dear. It might feel better if you had something in it.' Shortly afterward the minister called. In reply to a question as to his health he said that he was well but his head felt rather bad that day. 'Perhaps it's because it's empty,' spoke up Bessie. 'It might feel better if you had something in it.'"

Little sister was telling the next door little girl all about it. "My sister Beatrice is awfully lucky." "Why?" "She went to a party last night where they played a game in which the men either had to kiss a girl or pay a forfeit of a box of chocolates." "Well, how was Beatrice lucky?" "She came home with thirteen boxes of chocolates."

The Word Painter.

Mr. Smith, dissatisfied with his house, put the sale of it in the hands of an agent. A few days later he saw an advertisement of a house exactly answering his needs. The more he read of its beauty and comfort the more anxious he was to secure it for himself.

So he called up the agent with: "There is a house advertised by 'A. B. C. 5 See 'A. B. C. and buy it for him.'" "Sorry," was the laconic reply. "But I'm A. B. C. and the house is your own."

Tit for Tat.

A well-known French artist, whose pet dog was ailing, sent for a great throat specialist. Though highly offended on arriving and seeing his patient, the specialist made no complaint, but treated the animal and pocketed his fee. The following morning he sent post haste for the artist, who, thinking the call was with reference to the dog, hurried to the appointment. "How do you do?" was the specialist's greeting. "I want to see you about having my front door painted."

Simple Remedy.

The squad from the nearby cantonment was out on a range for target practice. A lanky farmer approached the officer in charge of the squad and said: "Be you the boss of these here fellows?" "Yep" replied the officer. "What's the trouble?" "Trouble enough," replied the farmer. "You fellows come around here shooting worries the hens an' keeps them from laying. Now what I am going to do about it?" "Put ear muffs on the hens," replied the officer.

An Astronomical Fact.

"Astronomers tell us," said the man of statistics, "that an express train moving a hundred miles a second would consume several million years in reaching a certain star." The other man sat silent, wrapped in thought. "Did you hear me?" asked the man of statistics. "Oh, yes, I heard you," responded the other quietly. "I was just thinking what a predicament a chap would be in if he should miss the last train and have to walk."

In a New Light.

His client was being sued for divorce by her husband and the attorney was trying to get her as much alimony as possible. Right in the middle of a flow of eloquence the attorney was interrupted by the husband, who said to the court: "Your honor, I have suddenly decided to withdraw my suit, and if my wife is willing I would like to have her come back to me." Pressed for explanation he said: "Mr. Blackstone has presented her in such an attractive light that I've fallen in love with her all over again."
