Poor Excuse for Robbery.

Some American newspapers are saying of China, despoiled at the peace table, robbed in the house of her friends, that it "serves her right."—because China has always been a pacifist nation. This is a pretty poor excuse for joining other nations in dismembering the republic. China at least never claimed to be "too proud to fight." She has been too poor and too weak to get ready to fight, and has had a pathetic dependence in recent years in the disinterested friendship of the United States, more than once invoked to prevent wrongs upon China. Now, however, China sees her old friends sitting in at a diplomatic poker table where Japan holds all the high cards and gets all the chips. This cannot be blamed upon China's lack of military and naval power, except that if she were armed for the fray, there might be more hesitancy about pulling off this piece of international grand larceny. China had no more right to expect such treatment than the United States would have had to suppose that her allies would take New England and annex it to Canada. It is a sorry start on the millennium that the phrase-makers say is right around the corner to justify the despoiling of China by mentioning China's inability to defend herself against aggression. China may by this very act be made militaristic, and thus become a menace to the world.

League of Nations Not Constitutional

(By H. Brent Cooke.)
 The great fundamental question soon to be brought before the senate of the United States, whether or not this government can be, or should become a member of a league of nations, is not and must not be made a political party question. Every senator, when he takes an official oath to support the constitution, certainly ought to understand that from that moment his political party welfare becomes a question of altogether secondary importance. The support of the constitution by all means becomes the first and greatest of his solemn official duties.

As Senator Henry Clay, of Kentucky expressed it, "I am a Kentuckian, but I know no east, no west, no north, no south. I am an American citizen. I would rather be right than be the president of the United States. If the members of the next senate follow Senator Clay, we will not believe that one of them will vote to make the United States a member of a league of nations."
 We ask Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, a Democrat, the question: "What is the legal meaning of the second section of the second article of our great fundamental law? We ask Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, a Republican, to answer this same question. Call the roll in the Senate and let every Senator answer this question. These words do not give the Senate with a unanimous vote any more power to transfer this power to a body of foreigners or a league of nations, than it does the most humble American citizen in private life. If we were a member of the senate we would not vote for the transfer of this power, although every other senator in both parties voted for it.

Hello London, This is New York

"Within three months, from your hotel room in London, you will be able to call any New York telephone number, get it inside of fifteen minutes, and then talk for three minutes for $5."
 This is how Marconi expressed himself, according to the Scientific American, in discussing the recent successful culmination of many preliminary experiments which had been made in long distance telephony and which had resulted in a conversation on March 19 between Clifden, Ireland, and Glace Bay, Nova Scotia.

Says the Scientific American: when the Marconi engineer from his wireless hut in Ireland called Glace Bay, instantly came the answer, "Glace Bay talking." From that moment Clifden communicated continuously with Nova Scotia, the voices carrying clear and strong all day. To quote General Manager Bradford, of the English Marconi company: "Transmission was absolutely instantaneous, and the voices were as clear as over the telephone. After the first messages were exchanged, conditions were so perfect that our engineers continued their conversation all day, saving the delay of writing their comments and recommendations regarding improvements."
 Though detailed information regarding wireless telephoning between Ireland and Canada, is withheld for the present by the Marconi Company, the transatlantic wireless telephone promises to be an astonishing success, as the first efforts to talk through the air were much more successful than the first attempts at wireless telegraphing.

"The establishment of a regular system of commercial wireless telephony from New York to London is believed now to be merely a question of time, and before long Sidney, Australia, and the furthest parts of the earth will be placed on the aerial exchange."
 No man can be a good American and engage in "propaganda in the United States in behalf of any foreign nation."

Help! Save the Nation.

Hackensack, May 15.—At a meeting of the Bergen County Republican Committee last night, President Breunen of the State League of Republican Clubs exhibited a new three cent stamp showing the flag of the allies and protested against its issuance on the ground, that it was Democratic propaganda in favor of the League of Nations.
 He said that no other flag but the Stars and Stripes should be placed on stamps of the United States Government.—New York Evening World.

Our esteemed contemporary is pleased to be facetious but, just the same, the use of any but the United States flag on postage stamps, or any other printed matter issued by this government, is absolutely improper and the parties guilty of such impropriety should be removed from the government service. Such a thing could not have occurred except under a Free-Trade administration, with its usual disregard for thing-American and its tender solicitude for and interest in other nations.—American Economist.

That "Plain People" Stuff.

President Wilson continually talks about his special understanding and appreciation of the "workers" and the "plain people". Where did he learn so much about them? He was either a college student or professor, continuously from 1874, when he entered Davidson College as a student, until he left Princeton University to become Governor of New Jersey, excepting two years he spent in an unsuccessful effort to acquire a law practice at Atlanta. Since 1902 he has been continuously a politician and office holder. Before he became a candidate for office he had pronounced views about labor unions, and unprofitable servants, and ignorant "crews" from the south of Europe, which did not indicate that he was lying awake nights worrying over the welfare of the proletariat. He has been surrounded by wealth and social and educational exclusiveness all his life. He is the most secluded and exclusive President the American people have ever experienced. Yet Mr. Wilson continually turns patronizing phrases about "the humbler classes" and "the simple firesides" and the "plain jackets" as if he had been a rail splitter or blacksmith or something all his life. The truth is that the only way to understand the common or garden variety of folks is to be one of them and to live with them. Mr. Wilson, with all his affection of undying love for the proletariat, knows only one thing about those he calls "the plain people" and that is that in this country they have a lot of votes. This is the plain, unvarnished truth of the matter, and the country is really getting rather fatigued with this continuous flow of college rhetoric about the "common people."—National Republican.

A Doughboy Witty.

Favorite song of the American Army of Occupation, somewhere in Germany. Composed by a soldier and sung by all the rest of them.
 Air—"Silver Threads Among the Gold."
 Darling, I am coming back—
 Silver threads among the black—
 Now that peace in Europe nears,
 I'll be home in seven years.
 I'll drop in on you some night,
 With my whiskers long and white,
 Yes, the war is over dear,
 And we're going home, I hear!
 Home again with you once more,
 Say—by nineteen-twenty-four
 Once I thought by now I'll be
 Sailing back across the sea;
 Back to where you sit and pine,
 But we're stuck here on the Rhine.
 You can hear the gang all curse—
 "War is hell but peace is worse!"
 The Watch on the Rhine (published by the American occupying forces in France).

The Hawkers.

The New York Herald says: "When Harry Hawker, with Lieutenant Commander Grieve, start off at St. Johns on his Atlantic flight, dropped the under carriage of his airplane he was but living up to a tradition of his curiously interesting family. For the Hawkers have always been strictly unconventional and careless of consequences. For example, Robert Stephen Hawker, the parson of Norwinstan in Devon—author of "The Song of the Western Men," sometimes called "Trelawney"—who ruled over a congregation of pious smugglers and wreckers, used to walk with nothing on in the early morning from his vicarage to the rocks for his daily plunge in the sea. When some of the inhabitants of the neighborhood protested against this Garden of Eden costume of the Vicar he replied: "My maker brought me in to the world as I go out to swim. Let them complain to him! The Hawkers believe in going light!" Robt Stephen Hawker will not be forgotten as long as men read poetry written in English. Harry Hawker may be forgotten, but before he is there are twenty thousand Cornishmen and other men by the hundreds of thousands, all admirers of bravery, who will want to know the reason why."

If a woman is nervous or has dizzy spells, suffers from awful pains at regular or irregular intervals she should turn to a tonic made up of herbs, and without alcohol, which makes weak women strong and sick women well. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Druggists sell it in liquid or tablets. Send 10 cents to the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package. Then, for the liver and bowels nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. These are little, sugar-coated pills, composed of Mayapple, leaves of aloe, root of jalap—things that Nature grows in the ground.

Opden, Utah—"During expectancy I suffered a severe nervous break-down. Became very weak, was nauseated and sick all the time. My mother advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. After the first few doses I could eat, something I had not done for some time. I kept on taking it and had practically no suffering and a fine large baby, weighing eleven pounds. I would advise all prospective mothers to take 'Favorite Prescription.' They could take nothing better."
