

The GEM THEATRE.

Tuesday, June 24--"Riddle Gawne," Featuring William S. Hart.

They called him "RIDDLE" because he had only one object in life--to "get" a man. Had he nursed his hatred through a score of years? Now, when they saw him face to face with his man they knew that hell had come to earth. He was the man who had murdered "Riddle's" brother and defamed his only Love. Don't miss this scrap.

Outlook for Vetch Good.

The outlook for a bumper vetch and hay crop is reported by farmers in all sections of the county. Never for years has the vetch and hay looked so good at this time of the year and in some localities the first crop is now being cut. The clover crop will also be a "hummer" according to reports and the price of clover hay will be bigger than ever before. Several large fields in the vicinity of Broadmead were cut this week and the yield according to the growers was far beyond their fondest dreams. Buyers from distant points have been in Dallas endeavoring to buy up all the clover hay available, but according to reports very few of the crops were disposed of.—Polk County Observer.

"Luck and Pluck" at the Gem.

How many men, in running down enemy aliens, have won the love of a charming girl during the operation? Very few probably. But Geo. Walsh is one of them. He does the trick in "Luck and Pluck" a remarkable William Fox comedy production, which will be shown on the screen at the Gem Theatre Thursday, June 26. Walsh never is happy in his picture work unless he is risking his life in stunts which makes the spectator gasp. And in his new photoplay he has enough hair-breadth escapes to satisfy any seeker after the sensational in dramatic incident.

"Luck and Pluck" is a work of peril plotting, patriotism and prestidivinity. Whether luck or pluck has the great part in Walsh's escapes and final triumph over a gang of enemies is a question each spectator must decide for himself or herself. But it is certain that this athletic Fox star never had a play better calculated for display of his extraordinary agility and nerve.

"The Burden of Proof."

"The Burden of Proof," Marion Davies' second Select Picture, in which she is directed by Julius Steger, will be shown at the Gem Theatre Sunday, June 22nd. The story is to do with the plotting of a German secret service employe, whose work for a moment threatens to disrupt the love of a newly married young couple. Marion Davies is the young married girl and her husband is Robt Ames, whose uncle is a member of the United States cabinet.

Miss Davies plays the part of Elaine Brooks, who, with her mother, is prominent in Newport social circles. Before Elaine becomes Ames' wife a Mrs. Durand, the German secret service agent, tries to gain Ames' love for herself. Charles Kemp, the publisher of a society journal in Washington, who is also a member of the German secret service, has information that Ames is about to be sent abroad with valuable papers. He enlists Mrs. Durand in the attempt to secure them, and as her first step in the matter has Kemp pay Elaine's mother liberally for furnishing society news for Kemp's paper. Thus becoming on friendly terms with Elaine and her mother, Mrs. Durand has little difficulty in getting Elaine to write Kemp a letter, apologizing for not having invited him to her wedding. When the letter is finished it includes a peculiar phrase that enables Mrs. Durand to throw the blame on Elaine for the loss of the papers, which Mrs. Durand succeeds in stealing from Ames' desk, enclosing them in the envelope with the letter which Elaine sends to Kemp. Ames is first inclined to believe that his young wife is guilty of aiding the enemy, but his friend Geo-

Blair traces the theft to Mrs. Durand and obtains her confession, paving the way for a settlement which ends in Kemp's punishment and a happy honeymoon for Elaine and her husband.

New Photoplay of W. S. Hart Has Strong Heart Appeal.

In the wide range of fiction perhaps no stranger story than "Riddle Gawne" the new photoplay in which William S. Hart, the famous Thos. H. Ince star in Artercraft pictures which will be shown at the Gem Theatre, Tuesday, June 24 could have been chosen as a vehicle for the display of his remarkable talents in Western portrayals.

The story was adopted from a serial by Charles Allen Seltzer which was published in Argosy last fall. It details the experiences of a man seeking the slayer of his brother and who finds him at last as the boss of a bad town in the West. Gawne proceeds to clean up the town and at the end of a life and death struggle with his enemy learns that he is really the murderer he is seeking and his vengeance is complete.

How Gawne meets and loves a pure woman, regains her veneration of the good things of life of which he had been robbed when his brother was slain, are told in a series of unusual scenes all of which are filled with thrills and deep heart appeal. In the supporting cast are Katherine MacDonald, his leading woman, who filled the same position in "Shark Monroe," and Lon Chaney, who is the "heavy." Mr. Hart himself directed the picture with excellent results.

Housework is hard enough when healthy. Every woman who is having backache, blue and nervous spells, dizzy headaches and kidney or bladder trouble, should be glad to hear Hillsboro woman's experience:

Mrs. S. A. England, 728 W. Oak St., Hillsboro, Ore., says: "Two years ago I had such a bad attack of lumbago I wasn't able to get up or down stairs. When I sat down on a chair I could hardly get up again. Sharp pains, like a knife sticking in my back nearly killed me. I could hardly drag myself around. I felt so completely played out. I had taken only a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills when my back began to feel stronger and had used only one box when I was able to get about as well as ever. Since then have never had any trouble with my back or kidneys."

COAXING YOU TO SMILE.

Not Bothered.

Amos J. Cummings and Ernest Jarrold were once in a pilot boat during a great storm. The former lay on a bunk, intently reading. The boat gave a fearful lurch and careened until it seemed that she must turn completely over.

"This is awful, Amos!" said Jarrold. "I'm going to put on a life preserver, for the boat can't stand it many minutes longer!"
"Oh, keep quiet and let me read, Mickey!" said Cummings, never lifting his eyes. "The men on this boat draw a regular salary to keep her afloat."

Brought Up On a Bottle.

While sea fishing with a friend a doctor lost his sinker. Rather than cut the day's fishing short, he hit upon the happy idea of utilizing his flask. The bottle was filled with water, carefully corked, and sent down on its mission. A few minutes later the doctor was lucky enough to pull up a pair of whiting, one on each hook.

"Ha, doctor!" exclaimed the companion; "twins this time!"
"Yes" replied the doctor, with a smile, "and brought up on the bottle too."

Squabs Left.

By way of providing a little exercise for its hundred of girls employees officers of the ordinance corps in Washington arranged last summer a series of daily military drills for the fair young war workers. It was a great success until a girl, who hadn't left her dignity behind when she said to a group of her mates that she hadn't given all to the government when it needed her, just to be insulted.

"I'm a lady," she said, "and I don't propose to stand in line out there and have anybody—even if he is an officer and has a gold bar on his shoulder—call me fresh names. I'm surprised that you girls stand it."

"Why, what's the matter, Ethel?" one of her surprised friends demanded. "I was with you all afternoon and I didn't see a thing out of the way. Everything was perfectly lovely."
"Lovely!" Ethel cried. "Lovely!" Didn't you hear that lieutenant stand out there and yell 'Squabs right' and 'Squabs left' every few minutes? Nobody can call me a squab and get away with it!"

Everything Lovely.

"Howdy Gap!" saluted an acquaintance, upon meeting the well known Rumpus Ridge citizen on a shopping expedition in Tuminville, Arkansas. "How's everything going with you?"
"Finer'n frog hair, Jurd!" triumphantly replied Gap Johnson. "Of course my wife has been sort of puny of late, and several of the children have got the measles and mumps and one thing and another, and the lightning struck the corner of the house tuther night and like to have tore the whole place to pieces, and one of the kids fell out of a tree and broke his arm, and a feller took a shot at me day before yesterday and ventilated my ear, and such as that, but I swapped for a running horse last week, and a couple of my hounds have got six pups apiece. Aw, I tell you, they can't keep a good man down!"

Busted.

A captured German major was assigned to an American soldier to be taken to the prison camp upon reaching his destination the major made a close observation and refused to enter, indignantly remonstrating that he would not associate with privates. In an instant the Yank ripped off the major's epaulets and replied, "You're busted now get in there!"

Had Twisted Their Bible.

A middle-aged man was examining a phonograph record catalogue in a store recently.

"Why is this opery called Samson et Dalila?" he asked. "As I recollect the story, Dalila darn near et Samson."

His Memory Good.

A widely known humorist was being shaved by a very talkative barber and was forced to listen to many of his anecdotes.

The barber had to strop the razor, and when he was ready, brush in hand, to commence again, he asked "Shall I go over it again?"
"No thanks," drawled his customer "It's hardly necessary, I think I can remember every word."
