What the Editors Say

It is an inspiring thing to see the soldier boys get home from France one day, and the next to see them don their overalls and right on the job at work. They do not seem to care for a vacation but are eager to do their part in the activities of peace.—News Reporter.

It is estimated that it will cost the United States a billion dollars to maintain the price of wheat at $2.25 a bushel this year. If a man had spent $1 every minute of every hour, day and year since January 1, A. D. 1, until the present, he would have spent only a little more than a billion dollars.—Telephone Register.

A story comes from California to the effect that one fig tree down there this year netted the owner $300. We have no way of knowing, but, shucks! how much do you suppose that old fig tree in the Garden of Eden netted when leaves alone were all the rage in wearing apparel for all the fair sex of that neck of the woods?—Itemizer.

Oleomargarine. What is it? Some manufacturers say "it is butter," some say "it is just as good as butter," others say that "it is made under more cleanly conditions than butter," while there are still others who will declare that "it is butter." It is not in Holland, nor in Denmark nor in New Zealand. The greatest dairy country in all the world is Oregon.—Oregon Dairy Bulletin.

Swift & Company have sold stock in their company at par to more than 15,000 of their employees. The employees will now be in a position to learn whether or not the stock has been drawing too large dividends whether or not they are getting too little for their labor. Nothing has a better effect in stabilizing industry than to have all employees partners in the business.—The Sentinel.

Robins are protected by Oregon laws, and yet robins destroy thousands of dollars worth of fruit every year. It is impossible to make the growers believe that these birds carry off enough bugs and worms to warrant their being protected. Maybe the state officials responsible for the enforcement of the bird law can throw some light on the matter. There is no real intention down this way of doing the robins an injustice.—Observer.

The report comes from Paris that the Huns will have to surrender to France 500 stallions, 3000 fillies, 90,000 milch cows, 1,000,000 sheep and 10,000 goats, according to the report made by the French peace commission. To Belgium the Huns must surrender 200 stallions, 50000 mares, 50000 fillies, 50,000 cows and 40,000 heifers. The Huns must pay for stealing cattle, for the destruction of private and public property, and inhuman treatment of civilians and soldier prisoners.—Banks Herald.

The Duchess of Somerset denounces the "outrageous dresses now being worn in the British metropolis." The Marchioness of Townshend describes the prevailing fashion as "almost immoral in its inadequacy," and says Paris reports skirts slit to the hips. Lady Hastings criticizes the new styles as "day undress and evening no dress." An American soldier returned from Paris says our fashions in this country are originated by the prostitutes of Paris. "Let the people think."—Telephone Register.

Prices of farm tractors have gone up in North Dakota, due to two freak laws passed by the last session of the Non-Partisan League legislature. One law requires free time by the purchaser and leave it on his own place without paying for it if it doesn't suit him. Another requires branch warehouse paying for it if it tractor sold with a full supply of parts. As both of these requirements add heavily to the cost of doing business, the tractor buyers have to pay the bill by paying increased prices.—Oregon Voter.

The investigation now going on in Washington to uncover the facts of the brutality practiced by officers in military prisons in France and to place the blame where it belongs, divulges a condition of inhumanity which was little dreamed of by those who remained at home. An inkling of these conditions was obtained from several Sheridan boys returned from the war scenes, who were guards at prison camps, but they talk of these conditions unwillingly because of the horrors it brings up. Their evidence, however, would add materially to that now being gathered by the committee of investigation and might assist in the punishment of the higher officials guilty of the brutal acts.—Sheridan Sun.

A 16 year old girl returning home after a visit to a girl friend was maltreated and murdered near Bandon Sunday and her body life to be found later by distracted parents. Footprints of a man were found among other evidences of a struggle, yet if the man who made the footprints can be found and the dastardly crime brought home to him the only punishment that can be meted out will be imprisonment until the crime is forgotten. Other states are returning to capital punishment after discovering to their cost that the hangman is the only treatment for crimes of this kind. When will the maudlin sentimentalists who made the law possible in Oregon come to their senses and unite with the sensible people who believe the extreme penalty should be available when needed?—Independent.

And now comes Mr. Hughes and lines up with those Americans who are trying to have the league covenant made safe for America. He has four distinct reservations which he deems essential before the senate can afford to ratify the treaty.

Like Root and Taft, he insists on a revision of Article X so that no foreign council can declare war for us.

He insists on exempting the Monroe Doctrine from the provision of the covenant.

He insists on our right to withdraw after two years' notice and without any strings to the procedure. He insists that we, as well as every other country, shall have control over its own domestic questions, such as immigration, tariff, etc.

Until these reservations are adopted no senator with an ounce of patriotism left in his blood can afford to vote to ratify the treaty.—Gazette Times.

COAXING YOU TO SMILE.

"I want to be procrastinated at de nex' corner," said Erastus Pinkley to the street car conductor.

"You want to be what?"

"Look in de dictionary. 'Procrastinate: put off.'"

During a violent thunder storm the teacher began to tell the wonders of the elements.

"Jimmy," she asked, "why is it that lightning never strikes twice in the same place?"

"Because," said Jimmy, confidently "after it hits once, the same place ain't there no more."

The small boy was the first to answer the telephone. The person on the other end of the wire was a friend of his mother, and the following conversation ensued:

"Is this Mrs. Blank's residence?"

"No Maam; this is Mrs. Blank's little boy."

Customer: "You say this hair restorer is good, do you?"

Druggist: "Yes sir; I know a man who took the cork out of the bottle of this stuff with his teeth, and he had a mustache next day."

I should like a porterhouse steak, with mushrooms, said the stranger, "some delicately browned toast with plenty of butter—"

"Scuse me suh," interrupted the waiter. "Is you tryin' to give an order or is you jes' reminiscin' 'bout old times?"

The young man sidled into the jeweler's shop with a furtive air. He handed the jeweler a ring with the stammered statement that he wished it marked 'with some names.'

"What names do you wish?" inquired the jeweler.

"From Henry to Clara," the young man blushing answered.

The jeweler looked from the ring to the young man and said in a fatherly manner, "Take my advice, young man, and have it engraved simply 'From Henry'."

The Profiteers.

"These profiteers," said Representative Esch, of Wisconsin, "accuse themselves with their excuses. They remind me of little Willie. Little Willie came home the other day with a nice new golf ball. 'Look at the lost ball I found this afternoon, father,' he said. 'Are you sure my boy,' the father asked, 'that it is the lost ball?' 'Oh, yes, sr' said little Willie. I saw the owner and his caddie looking for it."

Acted on His Tip.

A false charge had been brought at his court, and the magistrate remarked: "We are all liable to make mistakes. I thought I was wearing my watch, but I have just discovered that I have left it at home."

When he arrived home that evening his wife said to him:

"I hope you got your watch all right. I gave it to a man from the court who called for it."

Cumulative Desires.

"Glipping is thinking of buying a new motor car. He can't be happy, it seems, with less than three machines.

"Well, he has the money to indulge in that kind of extravagance."

"To be sure, I was just thinking about the days when Glipping was poor. He used to say the height of his ambition was to be able to own two pairs of suspenders at the same time."

Back at Him.

The brilliant wit of the bar looked at the moon-faced farm laborer, and winked at his friends and whispered, "Now we'll have some fun." "Have you been married?" he began. "Ye-es," stammered the laborer, "once." "Whom did you marry?" "A w-woman, sir." "Come, my good man, of course it was a woman. Did you ever hear of anyone marrying a man?" "Ye-es, sir; my sister did."

The Poor Fish!

"I hear you are going to marry Archie Blueblood?" said one society woman to another. "Is it true?" "Marry him?" exclaimed the other. "Not likely. What on earth could I do with him; He's rejected from the army, he can't ride, he can't play tennis, golf, nor, for that matter, can he even drive a motor car!" "Oh!" said the friend, "but he can swim beautifully, you know."

"Swim, indeed! Now, I ask you would you like a husband you had to keep in an aquarium?"

Turn About, Etc.

A Canadian woman wanted to show her Chinese servant the correct way to announce visitors, and one afternoon went outside her front door, rang the bell, and made the man usher her into the drawing room. The following afternoon the bell rang, and not hearing him answer it, she went to the door herself. To her surprise he was standing outside. "Why Sing," she asked, "what are

Tenderfoot Tire Buyers

WHEN you find a man who is still shopping around for tires you may be certain he is still a tenderfoot on the tire question. No matter how long he has owned a car he hasn't yet learned to profit by the experience of men who really know.

Let him ask for and abide by the experience of the men whose cars have Firestone Gray Sidewalls on every wheel, including the "spare." He will never change again you doing here?" "You fool me yesterday; I fool you today," was the reply.

Wished to Forget.

"Stop that!" cried the Groucher to his small nephew, who was reclining about the cow jumping over the moon. "There's no use constantly reminding us how high beef and dairy products have gone."

One Distinction.

A Philadelphia woman did not approve of the dress of her cook. One day, as the cook, in a particularly stylish frock, showed up after a day off, the mistress said: "Why Mary, what elegance! It would be hard to distinguish the lady from the cook."
