

Adequate Telephone Rates Must be Provided.

It is obvious to everyone that the operating incomes of any business must of necessity be sufficient to meet its operating expenses and permit of a reasonable return upon the capital invested.

The telephone business affords no exception to this accepted and well understood fact.

On account of the general high costs prevailing for labor and materials in these unusual times, the people have been willing to accept advances in the cost of almost every necessity.

The Telephone Company has had to meet the same increases in cost of materials and labor the same as all other industries and business and asks its patrons to recognize this fact and accept the increase in telephone rates in the same spirit of fairness and consideration, realizing that only through adequate rates can the telephone company provide adequate service.

Where Did It Go?

In these days of difficulty over the high cost of living, there is much wonderment in Congress and elsewhere as to what was done with the $1,000,000,000 fund appropriated in the assistance of the President in order to provide food for European peoples. It was pointed out at the time the last Congress made the appropriation that it would tend to add to the cost of living in America. Representative Good has introduced a resolution asking the President for a detailed statement as to what was done with the $100,000,000, to what countries the food was distributed, what reimbursement was received, and other specific facts. For one thing, Congress would like to know how much went to feed Germany.

COAXING YOU TO SMILE.

Spelling Oddities.

An American in London was introduced to an Englishman, who said: "Why, no introduction is necessary; you and I have had a lot of correspondence."

"I beg pardon," said the Yankee.

"What was the name?"

"Chumley."

"Chumley?"

"Yes, J. Evelyn Chumley—C-H-O-L-M-O-N-D-E-L-E-Y."

"Oh, to be sure! But will you kindly tell me why you folks over here don't pronounce your names as they are spelled?"

"In what way?"

"Well, you people spell the name of your Secretary of State L-A-N-S-I-N-G, and you pronounce it House."

Proof.

A student had a barrel deposited in his room, contrary, of course, to rule and usage. He received a summons to appear before the president.

"Sir, I am informed that you have a barrel of ale in your room," said the latter.

"Yes, sir."

"What explanation can you make?"

"Why, the fact is, sir my physician advises me to try a little each day as a tonic, and not wishing to go to the various places where the beverage is retailed, I arranged to have a barrel in my room."

"Indeed! And have you derived any benefit from the use of it?"

"Oh, yes sir, when the barrel was first taken to my room I could scarcely lift it. Now I can carry it easily."

So Hubby's Ruse Failed.

Hubby had been celebrating and arrived home in the small hours feeling rather dubious of his reception.

Absolute stillness reigned, however, and with a load off his mind he hurried, shoeless, to the cradle and commenced rocking it energetically with the air of a man who had been at his post for hours.

"What are you doing there James?" quired the strong minded spouse, awakened.

"I've been sitting here nearly two hours trying to get the baby to sleep," he growled in return.

"That's strange" remarked his wife "Baby is here in bed with me."

Ordering a Dinner.

A stylishly dressed woman entered the restaurant. The waiter handed her a bill of fair written in French and said: "Please mark off the dishes you wish to order."

Could a woman dressed in the height of fashion confess that she was unable to read French? Taking the pencil she made a few dashes and her order read: "Dinner, $1.00, June 20, Vegetables. Please pay at the desk. No tips."

The waiter brought her a dinner of steak and potatoes.

He Knew His Daughter.

"The late war has knocked all our customs and traditions topsy-turvy," remarked the new speaker of the House, Representative Gillett, the other day.

"Now it is the young folks who run things. Like the case of William, William was in love. He had declared his passion to the young lady and she had passed him along to her father. Father listened to his tale patiently. It's all right as far as I am concerned," the old gentleman said, "but I am afraid that Jennie will not marry you." "Oh, don't say that," the young man pleaded. "Has she said so?" "No," said the old gentleman, "but what I know of Jennie, if she wanted you she would have taken you without referring you to me."

His Need.

"Hey! You there with the sorrow stop!" snarled a customer in the rapid fire restaurant. "My order's been in twenty minutes and I don't want to wait all day for it. See?"

"What you want ain't what you need!" retorted Claudine, the waitress. "You need a book of etiquette. If manny had been running down from Heaven forty days and nights you'd still be a rube. Try that on your canary."

Only A Check.

A countryman tells how at a railway station, as a number of wives were starting for the seashore and bidding their respective husbands adieu, he heard one really charming young matron say, as she kissed her hubby goodbye: "Au revoir, dearie. Don't forget to write!"

"Oh, I'll write often," protested her husband.

"Do dearie," continued the wife; "do—if it's only a check."
