

Yes, it's toasted

YOU know how much toasting improves bread. Makes it taste good. Of course—more flavor.

Same with tobacco—especially Kentucky Burley.

Buy yourself a package of Lucky Strike cigarettes. Notice the toasted flavor. Great! Nothing like it. The real Burley cigarette.

Remember the good old Republican days when the standard price for a good shirt was one dollar?

It is announced that the army has enough shoes to last five years. How would you like to be the army?

President Wilson says he is getting ready to put the question of wages on a new footing. The old footing for wages was getting paid for what you did; the new footing, one may assume from watching the motions of deserving Democratic job holders, is getting paid for what you don't do.

There are rumors that President Wilson will seek a third term. Nothing would better please a lot of people who think they have had enough of inconsistency, of oratorical parading, of extravagant economies, of indifference to domestic issues, of costly altruism that gets nowhere.

Just to show how honest it is in the statement that the league of nations covenant will end war, the administration asks for a billion dollars a year for the army and a few hundred millions for the navy. For those who believe that sort of thing that is about the sort of thing they would believe.

The battleship Baden, the cruisers Frankfurt, Nueremberg and Emden and fifteen destroyers, all of the huge German fleet sunk by its crew at Scapa Flow, have been floated, the State department was advised in an official dispatch from London. Three more destroyers are expected to be raised.

Royalty never had much on a gentleman in this country who is traveling de luxe at public expense. Kings and queens, that is by those names, have no standing here, but kingly and queenly splendor rules on that train. Then, too, as an advertising campaign it isn't so bad—at the price.

"We must join our fortunes to the fortunes of men everywhere," says President Wilson. For a statesman who believes in Jim-crow acts and disfranchisement for the black citizens of the United States, President Wilson does a pretty good job of pretending to want to get real chummy with everybody on earth.

The partisan purpose of the senators who are determined to amend the covenant, says the New York Times, is demonstrated by their determination to make the debate public. Yes if they were good administration senators they would keep their proceedings as dark as the debates at Versailles.

One of the greatest St. Louis breweries is reported to be making more money manufacturing soft drinks than it made on beer because of the great reduction in the expense of doing business. It does not have to finance a chain of hundreds of thousands of saloons and do business with irresponsible retail booze sellers.

What this country needs, and needs badly right now, is a man like Grover Cleveland, or Theodore Roosevelt, a man at the head of the nation who has real backbone for a spinal column, not merely a whitebone stitched in the back of his coat, and a flood of milk of human kindness saturating the interior of his ghest.

An administration organ calls attention to the fact that we have loaned European nations $9,672,272-555 and wants to know what will happen to this debt if "the treaty is defeated or the league scrapped." If we have loaned ten billion dollars of the American people's money to repudiationists the sooner we find it out and pass judgment on the public officials who did it the better.

President Wilson says he won't stop agitating. The trouble with President Wilson was that when he and his party got complete control of both the legislative and executive branches of government and had the power to bring to the people all the objects they had been agitating for, instead of doing anything to better conditions they just kept on agitating while conditions grew worse instead of better.

In 1913 nearly half the cost of government was paid from duties collected at our custom houses on foreign importations,—forty-four per cent, to be exact. In 1919 custom duties provided only 4 per cent of the cost of government. The Democratic politicians do not care how high taxes are, just so the American people pay all of them and the alien gets free entry into the American market without assuming any obligation to support or protect the American government.

Another piece of M. Clemenceau's wit is delighting the town. At a meeting of the interallied committee last week there was a question what time they would resume in the afternoon. Signor Tittoni did not want it too early in the afternoon. Mr. Lansing did not want it too late, for he wanted to have his drive in the Bois and then his siesta before dinner. M. Clemenceau then summed up, "The meeting will be at 3," he said, Signor Tittoni can sleep before it, Mr. Lansing can sleep after it, and Mr. Balfour and I can sleep during it."

All honor to Governor Coolidge, of Massachusetts, who in the face of menace as organized policemen deserted their posts of duty declared: "Government and the form of law cannot be arbitrated. Order will be maintained." Some difference between that sort of executive and one who, under pressure, abandons his police commissioners in the District of Columbia and tells them to back up in the face of political threats, in order not to meet just the issue Governor Coolidge was not afraid to face. It's the difference between a political opportunist and a courageous patriot in public office.

There are a dozen wars now in Europe proper. The various governments pay little heed to the orders of the peace conference, made up of the same governments that will form the league. Will they pay any more to the league and can he say more to not have to help administer discipline? Mr. Wilson favors this government accepting a mandate under the league for Armenia. That will require an army of 100,000 men right off the bat. It would be a direct consequence of the treaty under which, if ratified, he tells the folks, "the men in khaki will never have to cross the seas again." He must think the folks of the West are mentally mighty weak. He told quite another story to the Senators.

Letter From Mexico.

Noria, Sonora, Mexico.
September 20, 1919.

Editor Tillamook Headlight,
Tillamook, Oregon.
Dear Sir: I beg space in the columns of your valuable paper, to make a statement to the people of Tillamook, who own land here, with regards to conditions in the farming line. Being acquainted with those who have bought land here, I feel it my duty as a friend to give them what information I can relative to conditions here. I have a friend here from California, a Mr. Ripley, who is an experienced dry farmer. He now owns a farm adjoining the one I am operating for Kathleen Mills and her brother Morrison Mills. He is only experimenting this year with different varieties of crops adapted to a dry climate; we have worked together this summer and studied the soil conditions and rainfall and different crops, and what I am writing is the true state of conditions as we see them.

In the first place, we wish to state that you people who own land down here and wish to have it farmed, it is impossible to operate a tractor successfully here, as fuel is too high, and there are no repair shops nearer than Nogales, so taking into consideration the loss of time in case of breakdowns which are liable to occur at any time, and the necessity of working this land at the proper time, it is very necessary to have mules to do it with. They are well adapted to the work required here, as there is an abundance of grass during the busy season, and with very little grain good results may be obtained. Hand labor is plentiful, but it is impossible to hire good teams, so by owning your own stock and implements you can get your land farmed right, and with our experiments with different varieties of crops, we believe good profits may be made.

There seems to be an impression here, that with castor beans, all you have to do is to plant them and harvest them. This is a mistake. We have thoroughly proven that the soil here needs thorough cultivation, and it is very important to do so when it is in the right condition. Crops grow very fast here when properly handled.

Another matter of very much importance is the seeding of this land when in proper condition. We have made several mistakes this season owing to a lack of knowledge of soil and climatic conditions here, which we will be able to avoid another year with proper equipment to work with. The mules, when not at work, will not require feeding, as there is an abundance of grass for grazing purposes; this makes their upkeep very slight. We have some experimental crops growing that look fine, considering the amount of equipment with which to work them. We have a small piece of Sudan Grass that will make six tons of good hay per acre.

We think it advisable to get mules from Arizona or the Imperial Valley, Calif., as they are accustomed to a warm climate; they should be bought in winter so as to become acclimated gradually; the mules here are small and of an inferior breed but even they will beat the tractor at that. By several of you buying together, a car load could be obtained much cheaper.

We are writing this article because we have great confidence in the future of this country, and to remove the impression that there is everything required to farm with here. There is an abundance of wild hay here that could be made good use of when we get the proper equipment to handle the same.

Mr. Coffelt, from Coos County, Ore. owns a farm adjoining that of Miss Mills and Mr. Mills. He has a small crop of Milo Maize growing that was planted very late, but will make a fair crop anyway, and is certainly much better than we expected it would be.

Our first planting of beans on the Mills farm have not done so well as the second planting, due to the conditions of the soil at planting, the earlier beans planted are doing well but will not make a crop before next year owing to the lateness of planting.

The two men subscribing to this with me, own land here and are farming it, and have no object other than to see the country developed.

To my friends, I wish you happiness and success; I do not expect to see Tillamook soon, for when one lives in this country as long as I have, they have but little desire to live there again.
With regards and best wishes to all I beg to remain,
Yours sincerely,
J. W. Maddux,
L. S. Ripley,
Enos J. Coffelt.
