SAN FRANCISCO STUDENTS SAVE $75,000 A YEAR

Organized Thrift Now Under Way in 269 California Schools

San Francisco's public and parochial school students are saving nearly $385 a day and are investing their savings in Thrift and War Savings Stamps. In 59 days they saved $22,699.88. These facts were brought out in a report filed by Philip J. Lawler, manager of the School Savings Department of the Bank of Italy with C. A. Farnsworth, associate director of the War Loan Organization of the Twelfth Federal Reserve District.

For the first seven days of school this year a total of $2,673.88 was saved and invested in Thrift, War Savings and School Penny Stamps. The School Penny Stamps are put out by the Bank of Italy.

There are about 95 schools in San Francisco with an attendance of approximately 80,000 students. This includes day and evening high schools, day and evening grammar schools and kindergartens. The Thrift Campaign will be pushed throughout all of these schools for the remainder of the school year.

The number of individual purchasers of stamps so far is 51,359, according to Mr. Lawler's report. Six thousand one hundred and seventy students bought stamps during the first seven school days of the present term, while 45,189 invested in the securities of the preceding 52 school days during which the savings plan was in operation last term. The number of individual purchasers of Thrift and War Savings Stamps was 19,380. The number of purchasers of the Penny Stamps was 39,979. The Thrift and War Savings Stamps had a total value of $15,359.53 while the School Penny Stamps had a sales value of $7,300.35.

Within a short time the school savings plan will be in full operation in 269 schools in Northern and Central California and results will be checked closely by Mr. Lawler for the Bank of Italy and the government.

Speaking of the savings achievements of San Francisco's students to date, Robert E. Smith, director of the War Loan Organization in the Twelfth Federal Reserve District, said: "Thrift is the greatest thing a student can learn in school. School days are character-forming days. The boy or girl who learns to save in school has already mastered one of the biggest secrets of success."

THE TREND OF PRICES

"Past history has proven quite conclusively that you can no more legislate the cost of living up and down than you can stop the tide by building a sea wall. The basic economic law of supply and demand always has and always will determine prices, in spite of artificial restrictions which may seem to interfere temporarily. When demand exceeds supply, prices are bound to rise. With three hungry men for a single loaf of bread, but one thing can happen. When supply exceeds demand the reverse is true. Three loaves of bread to one man bring prices tumbling down."

"The real cause for the present high level prices is apparent when you realize that the United States is exporting at present twice the foodstuffs that it exported a year ago, and three to four times the amount exported in normal years. We are feeding Europe. What's more, we must continue to feed Europe, until it gets back on its own feet again. Their crop of 1919 will help some, but we must wait until the harvest of 1920 before they are wholly independent of this country. . . . If the general public can be educated to an appreciation of the situation as it is, and can be made to see that the well-being of every one of us depends upon every man producing as he never produced before, supply can be increased to meet and exceed this unprecedented demand and we shall weather the storm with everybody ahead. . . . Under the circumstances, it is more of a religious question than an economic one. Maximum production on the part of every individual must be made a moral issue. . . . Decreased demand means depression, and unemployment, and hard times for everybody. Increased production will meet the situation and solve the problem, but that can only be accomplished by every man putting his shoulder to the wheel, and producing as he never produced before. . . . When the majority of people were made to feel that slavery was wrong, it was abolished. When the majority of people were made to feel that drinking was wrong and were ashamed to be seen going into a saloon, we got prohibition. In the same way, when people begin to look down on the man who is not a producer, or who curtails his production, we shall strike at the tap root of the cost of living problems. We must go on a 'producing crusade.'—Roger W. Babson.

If six votes in the assembly are not better than one, isn't it strange Lloyd George insisted on having 'em?

What we need in the matter of public expenditures right now more than we do a budget system is a stop-it system.

The best way for the Italian government to get rid of Gabriel D'Annunzio would be to send a trained squirrel after him.

The Democrats used to be for sixteen to one with silver on the long end. Now they are for six to one with England on the long end.

Maybe President Wilson thinks that because one vote can equal six in Mississippi and Virginia the same thing will hold good in Geneva.

There will be a big representation from the United States at the league of nations meetings so long as Geneva remains wet, anyhow.

But of course if those extra five British votes don't amount to anything England won't object to an amendment, so why all this opposition?

It is reported that it will take at least seventeen kinds of Bibles to swear in the different delegates at the first convention of the league of nations.

Maybe the Dixie senators are afraid that if the treaty goes back to Paris Liberia will ask for reservations against Jim Crow cars and indiscriminate lynching.

A campaign of ridicule is being directed against the congressional investigation into administration waste and extravagance. The committee must be "getting warm."

If we keep on at our present rate it won't be many years until the only place you can observe the Constitution of the United States will be in the Smithsonian Institute.

Why not give extra votes in the league of nations for Alaska, the Philippines, Porto Rico, the Canal Zone and the American West Indies?

The more we read the peace treaty the more we are convinced that Lloyd George and Clemenceau had a few three card monte men sitting in the conference against President Wilson.

Secretary Bryan is advocating the adoption of the unexpurgated covenant. He has changed his slogan from "sixteen to one, to six to one," and does not add "without the advice or consent of any other nation whatsoever."

Don't overlook the fact that the President had a Democratic Congress at his back and call up to March 4 last and that if anything in the way of needed legislation was neglected, the Democrats cannot shift that responsibility.

The reason they say the league of nations covenant provides for peace and arbitration is that it neither provides for disarmament nor leaves the decision of international disputes to a world court. In other words, they say it does because it doesn't.

"I do not recall," "I was not informed," "I had no knowledge of that until I returned," and "all documents relating to that subject are still in Paris," are answers not to be found in Mr. Bullitt's testimony before the Foreign Relations committee.

Secretary Lansing, who will not deny that he told Mr. Bullitt that if the American people understood the treaty and covenant they would not ratify it now makes a speech demanding immediate ratification. Probably Mr. Lansing thinks the people still do not understand it.

The New York Times, an administration organ, editorially states that it is practically settled that President Wilson is to be the first president of the league of nations. It is understood that the place will carry a salary of $200,000 a year, and the term will be for six years.

Sir Edward Carson says President Wilson is wrong when he says the league of nations will open the way to secure consideration of Irish independence. If the friends of the league of nations cannot agree in its interpretation now, what do you suppose will happen after the scheme is adopted?

The Grand Army of the Republic and the United Mine Workers have joined President Wilson's "Contemptible Quitters Association." But the boys in blue stuck to the guns and the miners to the mines until two big jobs were done, and if they had stayed on their jobs like President Wilson stays on his neither task would have been finished yet.

Now if Congress would only amend the law of supply and demand so that we would have more supply and less demand, the solution of our troubles would be simple.

Maybe a "contemptible quitter" is a fellow who sends the army and navy to Vera Cruz to get a salute, doesn't get it, and comes away without it, leaving his countrymen to the mercy of murderous Mexico.

Quick action: "If I could do as I pleased, I would take away the president's war power so quickly that he wouldn't know what struck him, and bring home every single soldier, sailor and marine in the United States service abroad," exclaimed Representative Houghton, Republican, of New York, at a recent hearing of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Henry Ford's paper says: "Today the world exists—civilization exists,—only by virtue of American industry, which was able to produce in magnificent quantities when all others were paralyzed by fear." And American industry exists only because of the protective policy which made it possible, and which was maintained over the protest of free traders like Henry Ford.

Lord Robert Cecil, reputed one of the chief authors of the league of nations covenant, says: "If we rely on provisions of the covenant to preserve peace we shall be living in a fool's paradise." He continues: "Those who appeal frankly to national selfishness, are perhaps, commoner in the United States than in this country." With the accent on the word "frankly."

Preliminary to an "elucidation" of it, President Wilson, speaking at Salt Lake City, quoted the Foreign Relations committee's proposed reservation concerning Article X of the league of nations covenant. The crowd applauded the reservations so vociferously the President was forced to wait for quiet, and then he protested that the applause was not at the right time.

The administration partisans who say that the un-amended covenant of the league of nations doesn't impair the Monroe doctrine, prevent us from getting out of the league when we want to, interfere with domestic questions or require us to enter wars we do not care for, but that if we insist amendments specifically saying that we so interpret it, the other nations will refuse to accept it, furnish a sufficient commentary on their own sincerity.

President Wilson spoke at Columbus of having been "bred in the old Revolutionary stock." His biographers state that his father's father and mother were immigrants from Ulster and that his mother was born of Scotch parentage in Carlisle, England. Just how a statesman with four British grandparents can claim to have been "bred in the old Revolutionary stock" is not entirely clear, except to those who accept everything Mr. Wilson says as true whether it be true or not.

Oh, well, it's six to one and a half a dozen to the other.

A rather remarkable statement throwig some histecho obscured light on the lack of efficiency of Secretary Baker's department during the war was made recently before the Senate Committee on Military Affairs by Major General John F. O'Ryan, who commanded the 27th Division in France. The 27th was a national guard division and General O'Ryan testified that it fought through the war without any American equipment except coats and some trousers. All the guns, aircraft, shoes, rifles, machine guns, and even subsistent supplies, he said were supplied to the division by the British. The division's artillery support, he added, was supplied by British and Australian units.

The Omaha Bee says: "Mr. Wilson insists that the peace of the world depends upon accepting in its entirety the ambiguity of Article X, even as illuminated by his own construction, admitting the right of the supreme council to 'advise' sending American soldiers abroad and holding for the moral obligation to follow that advice. The Senate is not ready to surrender the constitutional power of Congress to a foreign body. Think this over for yourself, and decide which is better for the peace and security of the nation—whether it is wiser to retain the power to declare war in the hands of Congress or to turn it over to a body that is responsible only to itself, in whose affairs the United States has but a single vote while the British empire has six."

I have just returned from France. 150 people have asked me what the gold stripes mean.

500 have asked whether or not the average German was a brutal type—"do they look different from other people, I mean?"

1000 have said, "You must have seen some awful sights!" and demanded gory details.

3,497 have hinted archly at entangling alliances with French maidens. 48,673 have remarked, "It was a wonderful experience wasn't it?"

Gosh! How my back aches! After influenza or colds the kidneys and bladder are often affected—called "phritis," or inflammation of the kidneys. This is the red-flag of danger—better be wise and check the further inroads of kidney disease by obtaining that wonderful new discovery of Dr. Pierce's known as "Anuric" (anti-uric), because "Anuric" expels the uric acid poison from the body and cures those pains, such as backache, rheumatism in muscles and joints. Naturally when the kidneys are deranged the blood is filled with poisonous waste matter, which settles in the feet, ankles and wrists; or under the eyes in bag-like formations. Dr. Pierce's Anuric is many times more potent than lithia and often eliminates uric acid as hot tea melts sugar.

Madera, Cal.—"I recommend Dr. Pierce's Anuric very highly. I have suffered for the last three years with catarrh of the bladder, having tried every remedy I heard of but without relief. I saw 'Anuric' advertised in the paper and like a drowning man grabbing at a straw I thought I would try it also, which I did with great success, as it relieved me almost immediately before I had taken all of the trial package, and having great confidence in the remedy I immediately sent to the drug store and bought a package. I can say to all suffering from any disease of the kidneys or uric acid troubles, try this remedy and suffer no longer. I have great faith in Dr. Pierce's remedies."—S. F. Henning.
