SEN. HITCHCOCK HURLS DOOM-ERANG.
Nebraska Senator Draws Quick Retort to Absurd Accusations.

When Senator Hitchcock, Democrat of Nebraska, administration spokesman in the fight over the peace treaty, attempted to link opponents of the league of nations with pro-German, bolsheviki and anarchists, he got in return more than he looked for. Senator Poindexter, reviewed Senator Hitchcock by advocating an embargo on arms and ammunition to the entente before the United States entered the war had played fully into the hands of Germany. He declared that if at that time efforts of men like Senator Hitchcock had been successful Germany probably would have been victorious. A lively colloquy ensued and Mr. Hitchcock got the worst of the argument, especially as the Republican leaders of the treaty fight all advocated a vigorous defense policy long before President Wilson decided to act. Senator Poindexter, reviewed Senator Hitchcock's record before and during the war and declared that the administration leader became prominent in his anti-Germanism only after the conflict was won.

"The Senator talked a great deal about the bolsheviki, and it is not long since he was talking about pro-Germans being opponents of the league," said Senator Poindexter. "It seems to be quite a bold attitude," Senator Poindexter went on.

"for one who while fighting was going on between the allies and Germany was doing what he could to retard it, at least up to the point where the United States declared war; who on various occasions introduced bills and resolutions for the purpose of thwarting the efforts of our allies in their war with Germany and to cut off the supplies of munitions that were necessary for them to carry on the war; who declared on various occasions in Congress that he sympathized with Germany, on other occasions that he was neutral in this war; who was not conspicuous at any time, even when we entered the war, in waging it to a victorious conclusion. He only became prominent in his anti-Germanism and his denunciation of pro-German affairs after the fighting was over," Senator Poindexter continued. "There is always a certain type of men who safely place themselves on the outskirts of a fight while the fight is going on and after it is over they immediately take the center of the stage and become exceedingly belligerent."

Senator Poindexter said he recalled also that many persons now ardently advocating the league urged that the United States make peace with Germany on the same terms that the bolsheviki government of Russia accepted.

"It is quite enlightening to refresh our minds on the attitude of these gentlemen by looking back over the records of Congress for a few months and comparing their attitude while the war was on with their attitude after the war had been won," said Senator Poindexter.

Chairman Good Reports They Must Be Kept Up to Meet Expenses.

Direct taxation must continue to be the government's main source of income for many years because of the nation's large war debt and increased expenditures as an aftermath of the war. Chairman Good, of the Appropriations and Special House Budget committees, said in formally reporting the resolution providing that after July 1, 1920, one budget committee shall have charge of all appropriations. Mr. Good estimated that the governmental expenditures will average $4,000,000,000 annually for several years instead of about $1,000,000,000 as in pre-war days. Because of this he urged the necessity of the greatest possible economy and said that House leaders are certain that more money can be saved by having all appropriations voted by one committee instead of seven, as at present.

The strongest opposition to the whole budget program that has been recommended by the special committee is expected on the plan to take away from such committees as Military, Naval and Postoffice their appropriation powers, but Mr. Good in his report urged the representatives to submerge their personal ambitions to the public good. The report in part states: "For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, the total receipts from customs amounted to $134,457,867, while the internal revenue, including income taxes and corporation and excess profits taxes, amounting to $3,839,950,612.

"It is thus seen that in the future by far the greater part of the revenue required for conducting the public business must come from direct taxes. This, coupled with the further fact that the ordinary expenses for running the government will in the future probably exceed $4,000,000,000, a year, will cause the public to take a much greater interest than heretofore in appropriations by Congress. "The political issues of the future will be centered around the problems of economy as reflected in the appropriations made by Congress. If this is true Congress must place itself in a position where it can meet these problems in the most efficient way. The soundest and most approved methods of business transactions must be adopted by Congress if it is to perform well and efficiently the duties which this new condition creates. "The enactment of a national budget system and an independent audit of government accounts is absolutely necessary. The adoption of resolution under consideration to complete the program laid down by that measure is highly desirable."

Mr. Gompers urged arbitration of the steel strike at the industrial conference, but only a few days ago he declared that if a law should be passed requiring arbitration of industrial disputes, the law would be disregarded by labor organizations. What is the use of arbitration if those whose dispute is arbitrated are to be free to disregard the decision when made?
