The tall smoke stack of the Coast Power Co.'s plant collapsed on Tuesday evening, and fortunately did not injure anyone. The smoke stack at the joint above the roof had become pitted and rusted out, and being unable to withstand the weight, part of the stack crashed down by the side of the boiler and part fell out side the building. It will cost about $1,500 to replace it.

Portlanders who attended the convention of the Oregon Butter and Cheese Makers' Association recently, said the speech of H. W. Thomas, of Tillamook, was one of the most practical talks they ever heard. Hugh Barber was a whirlwind when it came to taking prizes and Mr. Thomas and Frank Wilson had some prize cheese there that was hard to beat.

The association unanimously voted to join the Oregon Dairy Council. L. B. Zeimer, A. Jensen and R. E. Cavett, all spoke highly of the way in which the council is encouraging the people to use butter, cheese and milk in the diet.

E. E. Bently, conductor on the Portland-Tillamook line, fell from an engine and received serious injuries in the back and leg. Dr. Robb, of Hillsboro, was called and the unfortunate conductor was taken to Portland.

P. S. Brumby, of the Blodgett Co., has returned from the East, where he had gone to procure money to build the railroad over the Wilson river, and it is reported that he not only obtained the necessary money, but could have obtained four times the amount. The Blodgett Co., had a large amount of timber burned, as well as other timber owners last year, and the building of the railroad will be constructed as rapidly as possible to get out this timber as soon as possible.

Mr. Paul F. Cooper and Miss Leona Alley were united in marriage in Tillamook on Tuesday, Dec. 23, Rev. Oliver, of the M. E. Church, officiating. The ceremony was attended by the immediate relatives of the parties. Mr. Cooper is interested in the Mohler Mercantile Co., store at Mohler and Miss Alley, who is a daughter of Commissioner H. V. Alley, is teaching in the Mohler school district. The happy couple left on the train for a short honeymoon trip to Seattle and other points.

Tillamook boys home for the holidays from Hill Military Academy are Lee Stephens, Magnus Woolley and Errol Halton. These lads were among the leaders in the rescue brigade that went to Westover Terrace, Portland, where a large 11 ton oil tank was stranded. The boys by united effort of about 100 cadets succeeded in getting the truck to its destination, the Portland Central Heating plant. The Portland papers commented on their bravery in saving the district from suffering from the cold by getting the oil to the plant. The Tillamook lads all stand well in their studies. The government has shipped arms and equipment to Hill Military Academy and the lads will soon be getting the advantage of new equipment. The commandant at Hill is Colonel Bowen, U. S. A.

Marguerite Clark in "Come Out of the Kitchen."

Although the requirements of her role in "Come Out of the Kitchen," her latest Paramount photoplay, which will be displayed at the Gem Theatre next Tuesday, Dec. 30, demands that she be ignorant of the art of cooking, Marguerite Clark is a past mistress of the science of cuisine as all who have enjoyed collections prepared by her dainty hands, have substantial reasons to know.

Miss Clark has a splendid equipped kitchen in her New York home and when she is busy with some gastronomic chief d'oeuvre, it is highly indiscreet to ask her to come out of the kitchen until her work is done. But in "Come Out of the Kitchen," Miss Clark is seen as an aristocratic Virginia girl who finds it necessary to assume the role of a cook, but while her accomplishments in this line are nil, she manages to win the love of a rich Northerner, which, after all, proved the best thing she could have done.

Gymnasium Assured.

Considerable interest was taken in the special school election which was to settle the question of a new gymnasium for school district No. 2, to cost $17,000, and when the votes were counted on Friday evening it resulted in a majority of about two to one in favor of bonding the district. The vote stood: For 127, against 65.

At the special school meeting Friday afternoon, the district voted in favor of purchasing the Hays tract of five acres for $10,000, the vote being: Yes 30, No. 19. The school board will issue school warrants to pay for the land.

The public school went on a vacation on Friday for two weeks, and Thursday afternoon the pupils paraded the city boosting for a gymnasium.

Farm Record Books.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis—The Tillamook County and First National Bank of Tillamook are among the 50 banks in Oregon to order farm record books for distribution among the farmers. These books are published by the department of farm management extension and have just been sent out to the banks.

With one of these record books a farmer can keep accurate and complete account of the year's business. County agricultural agents assist the farmers in starting the records and in balancing them at the end of the year and also give any other help that may become necessary.

Teachers of agriculture in the high schools working under the Smith-Hughes vocational education act are using these books in connection with home project work. The high school student will keep the record of his pigs or acre of corn or whatever is the nature of the home project, and these records are the basis of farm management studies in the classroom.

Miss Lola DeLillies is Married.

One of the sweet voiced "Hello" girls in the local office created the surprise of the season when she reported for duty Friday evening. With her came a young man escort.

The young man acted as though he was going to stick around awhile. But as he was removing his coat a large white paper fluttered from his pocket to the floor.

One of the girls quickly stooped and picked it up. Hardly had she set her eyes upon it before she let out a scream and everyone scrambled for stools and chairs and began looking around for the mouse.

But there was none. It was simply that the young lady who had picked up the paper and discovered that she held in her hands a marriage license. Then the guilty lady came forward and introduced her new husband, Mr. Charles Lucas. The young lady was Miss Lola DeLillies. They had secured the license last Friday but the storm prevented them from going to Vancouver until Friday, where they went and were married and returned in time for Mrs. Lucas to take her regular trick at the board.

The couple sprang a complete surprise on their many friends. They are to make their home in Portland, —From Oregon City Paper.

Mrs. Lucas is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. DeLillies of this city and has many warm friends here who wish them a long life of happiness.

Jersey Breeders Meet.

The Jersey Club met at the farm of L. C. Daniels for the regular monthly meeting December 18. Mr. Daniels' place is located on the Wilson river, about one mile north of Tillamook, and is one of the finest farms on the river. He is building up a splendid herd of Jerseys. The dinner as usual was very appetizing and much appreciated. A vote of thanks was extended to Banker Rowe, of Wheeler, who tendered the banquet to the breeders at the Pacific International Stock Show.

"How is the county going to raise funds for building on the land recently purchased for a fair ground?" This question was the basis of much discussion. Is the money to be raised by taxation, subscription or bonding? Each method was favorable to some. The Jersey Breeders are anxious for all improvements to be strictly modern, they would like very much to hold their next county fair on the newly purchased grounds.

More Jersey herds start on official test. Mr. H. J. Olson, who came to do the official testing had charge of the Tillamook Cow Testing Association, until a few months ago.

Another Jersey world's record has just been completed in Oregon, and by an Oregon bred heifer, a record scarcely less remarkable than that of Vive La France, when she increased the butter production for all ages by over 31 pounds. This time the record is made by a yearling heifer (so classed because she was under two when the test began), Lulu Alpha, of Ashburn, owned by J. J. Van Kluk, of Beaverton, Oregon. She began her test at the age of 22½ months and finished on November 30, 1919. Her production for the year is 13,668.7 pounds of milk and 800 pounds of fat. She produced 1090 lbs. of milk during her last month. Her production is claimed to make her not only the world's record yearling Jersey, but the world's record in her class for all breeds of dairy cattle.

There is quite a demand for Tillamook Jerseys. P. W. Todd recently sold some Jerseys to a Washington state dairyman, J. J. Van Klux and Son, of Beaverton, whose heifer, made the above record, want to purchase the bull Golden St. Mawes Rorarie, owned by Joe Donaldson, but the bull is not for sale.

The annual meeting for the election of officers will be held at the home of F. D. Bester, January 24, 1920.

Dies in Tillamook.

Word was received Monday of the death of E. S. Gilman, father of Charles Gilman, of Willamina. Mr. Gilman has made his home for some time in Portland with his daughter, Mrs. R. D. Richards, but just before the storm he went over to Woods on the coast to visit his son Ernest, and Sunday he was stricken with paralysis which caused his death.

The body was brought here by train from Tillamook Wednesday and funeral services were held in the M. E. church Thursday. Rev. James, of Sheridan conducted the services.—Willamina Times.

Who Slew Schuyler? "Vickey Van" Mystery!

How a woman, wife of a wealthy New Yorker, passed through a secret door into the next house and disappeared, a different name, appearance and personality, is partly the story of "Vickey Van," a new Paramount picture starring Ethel Clayton, which will be seen at the Gem Theatre next Monday, Dec. 29. The big problem is the death of Randolph Schuyler, husband of the heroine. Who killed Schuyler? "Vickey Van?" You will know when you see the picture.

Ethel Clayton is said to be at her best in a sort of dual role. The cast is also declared to be excellent. Noah Beery has the important role of Schuyler—a semi-heavy part, which demands much fine acting.

Fred Stone's New Artaft Picture Has Splendid Plot.

The story of Fred Stone's new Artaft photoplay, "Johnny Get Your Gun" which will be shown at the Gem Theatre next Wednesday, is ideally suited to that distinguished comedian's third appearance in motion pictures. The characters are all of distinct type and the role of Johnny Wiggins, which Mr. Stone portrays is one that could not be bettered for his particular comedy gifts.

Johnny Wiggins is a wild west stunt man in a motion picture company. His chum is Bill Burnham, formerly a cowboy, whose pugnacity gets him into trouble and ultimately lands him in jail. It develops that Bill's father has died in Florida, leaving a vast fortune to Bill and his sister Janet, who is about to be married to a fortune hunting Count. Bill prevails upon Johnny to personate him, go to Florida, prevent Janet's marriage and take charge of the fortune until Bill's jail term expires. And when Johnny reaches Florida a series of events happen which is full of thrills and laughter.

Frank Paul, who left to visit relatives in South Dakota and New York, arrived at the former place and expected to spend Christmas in New York. It is thirty years since he had seen some of his relatives. He writes from South Dakota.

I arrived here Thursday after several delays and blockades. The train was held up six hours one night in Montana on account of a wreck on the track ahead, and the thermometer was at 35 below zero. I walked a few blocks from one depot to the other at Aberdeen, S. Dakota, and when I got there, there were icicles two inches long on my mustache. Things are very comfortable here at Charley's house, as he has a furnace in the basement and a radiator in each room. Charley did not know me at all. I asked him if he had a job of work. He said he did not, but perhaps he could get me a job in town. Then I told him I thought I had seen him before. He said perhaps I had, but he had no recollection of ever having seen me. He was greatly surprised when I told him who I was. I should not have known him either, he weighs about 215. He is not gray but rather stoops and walks and talks quite slow. I do not know how long I will stay, hope you are well.

THE I. W. W. SENTENCES.

Governor Olcott Butts In—District Attorney Goyno Makes Reply.

Salem, Ore. Dec. 13, 1919.

Hon. T. H. Goyno, District Attorney, Tillamook Oregon: My Dear Sir—Please find enclosed clipping from the Oregonian which was sent to me by a man prominent in the American Legion. I wonder if you could furnish this office with a statement relative to these cases and the reason why disposition was made of them as set out in the clipping? Could you kindly return the clipping when you are through with it? Very truly yours, Ben W. Olcott, Governor.

Tillamook, Oregon, Dec. 16, 1919 Hon. Ben W. Olcott, Governor of Oregon, Salem, Oregon.

Dear Sir—I am returning you here with enclosed the clipping from the Morning Oregonian which you mailed me with your letter of inquiry regarding the sentences imposed upon members of the I. W. W. society in the circuit court of this county recently.

I have some hesitancy in answering your inquiry as to why such sentences were imposed, owing to the fact that the power of sentencing convicts rests solely in the hands of the judge of the court; but will forward Judge Bagley a copy of my letter, that he may be informed as to matters I have written.

I believe such articles as this are, as in this instance, based upon only a partial understanding of the facts. People rush into print, or take matters up with the higher authorities frequently to get a little notoriety for themselves.

It was the universal opinion of all who had anything to do with those cases, after a careful investigation, that the persons charged with a violation of the Syndicalism and Sabotage laws of Oregon, were, in nearly every instance, induced to join this society without realizing that such society taught or advocated syndicalism or sabotage. They were a bunch of men who appeared to be no worse than the average man, and were merely joining the society because they were led to believe that it was going to be the means of bettering their conditions, both as to wages and as to the surrounding circumstances; and, in no instance, so far as we were able to determine unless it might be one or two exceptions, did the parties agree with any doctrine advocating violence, crime, or destruction of property. The officers, including myself, of course, took careful means to inquire diligently into the character and beliefs of these men, and to find out how they came to join the society, and after a great deal of cross-examination, we concluded as above stated. In all of the cases, we failed to find a single instance of where any of them in anywise advocated violence, or crime, or the destruction of property for the purpose of accomplishing their political ends, or for profit, and, after such examination, it was agreed by the officers and others, who were instrumental in the prosecution, that, while these men belonged to a society which we all know as a matter of fact teaches and advocates criminal Syndicalism and Sabotage, it would have been a difficult matter to prove even that the society taught such things under the technical rule of the introduction of evidence, and as to the individuals themselves, it would have been impossible to convict them of such actions, and the only thing we could convict them of, if at all, was of being members of a society which taught and advocated such acts. Yet, we all felt that as an example they should receive some punishment, and they have all promised to renounce I. W. W. ism, and have received the sentences and been paroled as set forth in the item. We all feel that more has been accomplished than if these men had been sent to the penitentiary, when, so far as could discover, they were induced to join this society without realizing the menace which it meant to our country, and without intending in anywise to advocate what in the indictments we set out that the society was guilty of teaching.

There are a good many things to be taken into consideration in sentencing men charged with crime, and I feel that the judge has acted wisely in the matter. Yours very respectfully, T. H. Goyno, District Attorney of Tillamook County.

Gasoline Price Jumps.

Elsewhere in this paper the Standard Oil Co. announces an advance in the price of gasoline of 1½ cents per gallon which became effective December 17, but reached us too late for our last week's issue. It is said that this advance is necessary to meet the extra cost of refining and handling special gasolines required under the existing Oregon state law.

When interviewed by a representative of the Headlight, Mr. J. E. Balsley, district sales manager of the Standard Oil Company, said "To meet the requirements of the existing Oregon state law, which specifies that gasoline shall be of 56 degrees gravity, Baumé test, to be saleable in this state, it is necessary for the Standard Oil Company to make a special gasoline. This special gasoline, although of no greater efficiency than the gasoline regularly refined by us and sold in Washington, California and elsewhere, is more expensive to furnish because it requires special refining and handling. Also there is a lower yield of this special gasoline from the crude oil than there is of our regular gasoline, with consequent increase in the cost of the special gasoline. The advance of 1½ cents per gallon in the price does not fully represent the additional cost of the Standard Oil Company of manufacturing the special gasoline. At the same time, the higher price of the special gasoline does not secure for the user any greater value than is given in our regular gasoline.

"The Oregon state law establishes a gravity specification for gasoline. This is in itself a mistake for gravity tells nothing about the combustive, or power, qualities of gasoline. This was clearly pointed out by the United States Fuel Administration's Committee on Standard Specifications for Gasoline. As a result, the government adopted boiling point standards for aviation and all other motor gasoline purchased by the government.

"Our regular gasoline comes within the United States Government standard specifications. It is refined to a set specification of a chain of boiling points determined by our experts as being that which will give the maximum power and mileage consistent with due regard to gasoline conservation and the maintenance of reasonable prices to the consumer.

"Another lamentable phase of the Oregon State law is that it limits the possible extraction of gasoline from the crude oil and thus operates directly against gasoline conservation, making less plentiful and more costly the supply. The demand for gasoline is growing faster than the supply and it is unfortunate that anything should be done to decrease the production of good gasoline."
