See "Oh, You Women" at the Gem. It may have been fine for the women of the country to take the positions held by the men while they served in the great war and helped make the world safe to live in, but it is all wrong for them to keep these positions when their heroes come back home.

So firmly did they believe in those principles that they made a photograph based on that theme, which has been released by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as one of their special Paramount Productions, under the title "Oh, You Women," which will be shown at the Gem Theatre on Wednesday Jan. 7. Ernest Truex the celebrated comedian, and Louise Huff are the principals of the cast.

The subject is one of the most absorbing that has come as the result of the recent war, and is particularly timely, because of the recent return of the warriors who served so well in France. With no idea in mind that it would be post war propaganda, Mr. Emerson and Miss Loos, made this spectacular production, and their results have been commented on in a most flattering manner from all quarters, particularly by government officials.

MIDNIGHT FROLICS AT BEACH CHARGED.

Mrs. Hawley's Name Linked With That of Lifeguard.

(From the Oregonian)

Charges of infidelity, in which his wife's name is linked with that of a lifeguard at the life-saving station at Barview, Or., are made by Willard Hawley, Jr., manager of the Hawley Pulp & Paper Company of Oregon City, in an answer and cross-complaint to his wife's suit for divorce.

The cross complaint was signed by the young husband yesterday and mailed by his attorneys, Griffith, Leiter & Allen, for filing at Oregon City today.

Direct accusations of infidelity and improper conduct on the part of his wife, Marjorie Hawley, are made. He asserts that while she was spending a vacation at Barview in July, 1918, she habitually disported herself in such undignified manner as to cause unfavorable comment in the community of Barview, and that she would attend night dances, leaving their year-old baby with an inexperienced girl of 15 years.

Lifesaver is Mentioned. "More particularly, this plaintiff became infatuated with a member of the lifesaving crew of the United States lifesaving service at Barview," states the cross-complaint.

It then relates that she was continually in the company of this lifeguard, whose name is unknown to him, and would stand watch with him during the day time and attend dances with him at night. The further charge is made that she permitted this lifeguard to wear a wrist watch in public which Mr. Hawley had gave to her as a birthday present.

On the night of August 7, 1918, Mrs. Hawley entertained this lifeguard at her cottage from 1 a. m. to 4 a. m. the husband charges. He further asserts that they sat upon a cot where they engaged in mutual hugging, kissing and other demonstrations of affection and endearment.

After his wife's return to Oregon City and on the evening of August 25, 1918, she entertained some young man of about her own age in the parlor of her home, charges Mr. Hawley.

Visitor Hidden, is Charge. He asserts that when he arrived home and entered through the rear door his wife hid her male guest in a back bedroom during the time the defendant remained in the house. After Mr. Hawley left the house to be gone for two hours, he says his wife's unknown guest emerged from his hiding place and continued to be entertained by Mrs. Hawley until a late hour.

The cross-complaint further charges Mrs. Hawley with neglecting the welfare of their child and with being a poor housekeeper. The defendant says he provided her with a good home, paid all the bills and allowed her $50 a month for personal spending money.

The plaintiff asks that the decree be granted him and that the custody of the child be awarded to him on the ground that his wife is incompetent to care for it. He further asks that her temporary alimony be reduced to $250 a month and wants her attorney fees lowered to $2500. He further asks that she be deprived of all dower or other interest in his real property.

Expert Examines Water System.

On Monday and Tuesday evenings Prof. T. A. H. Teeter Hydraulic Engineer at the O. A. C., met with a committee from the city council and a committee from the water commission, together with Mayor Boals and Fire Chief Coates, and discussed the present water system and fire protection facilities.

On Monday and Tuesday Prof. Teeter made a personal inspection of the system. He stated that the pipe lines were in good shape, and that there was plenty of water, but that the town had outgrown the system. He stated that meter system installed here would conserve at least 50 per cent of the water and enable the present system to serve the city for another five years.

Prof. Teeter recommended the purchase of a fire engine in any event, as an engine could be utilized at the slough and protect any part of the business section.

A good fire engine can be purchased for $13,000.

"Captain Kid, Jr." Splendid Story.

Mary Pickford, it is safe to say, has never in the whole course of her film career, had a more charming story as a vehicle than her latest Arctcraft picture, "Captain Kid Jr.," from the stage play by Rida Johnson Young, which will be the attraction at the Gem Theatre next Tuesday, Jan. 6. It was considered appropriate by the little star that after having raised millions for Uncle Sam war chest she should participate in a photoplay having to do with a buried treasure and all the mystery which usually surrounds the same.

However selling Liberty bonds was far more serious business than the search for the mythical hidden millions on the Butterfield farm, which is an interesting feature of the story of "Captain Kid, Jr." so that "Mary" entered upon her suspected film activities much as one would begin a vacation. Contrary to published statements Mary returned from her arduous Eastern trip in better physical condition than was hers at the beginning of the long trip. She actually gained five pounds while hopping-scotch over the continent, doing one night stands for Uncle Sam and the Allies.

"Tarzan of The Apes."

"Tarzan of The Apes," which will be shown at the Gem Theatre next Thursday, Jan. 8, excited considerable interest among the readers of fiction several years ago. Being the story of a primeval man, or, rather, of a man brought up among apes and endowed with many of their abilities—it presents not a few difficulties to the movie maker. All of these have been overcome in the film and apes swing realistically from bough to bough in the jungle, the wild lions and leopards seek their prey on the ground below.

Interwined with the jungle story is a domestic narrative which grows tedious at times, and the expedient of the cut-back is resorted to a trifle too freely. All of this is more than compensated for, however, by the stirring scenes of the jungle. A majority of these were photographed in Brazil, and several hundred natives appear before the camera. The picture, as a whole, in addition to being interesting, also has a touch of educational value.

Vivian Martin in Yankee Girl Role.

Vivian Martin appears as a quaint but charming little Yankee girl in her new Paramount picture, "The Home Town Girl," which will be shown at the Gem Theatre next Monday, Jan. 5.

Miss Martin's many admirers will be glad to learn that in this picture she is at her best. In the role of a New England girl, she admirably conveys all the qualities of loyalty, faith and unselfishness. By the employment of these attributes, she saves her boyish lover from moral ruin and routs envy and selfishness from the minds of all with whom she comes in contact.

The story is written by Oscar Graeve and Edith Kennedy adapted the story. The support cast is all star including such popular Paramount players as Ralph Graves, Lee Phelps, Carmen Phillips and others of equal note.

"Faith of The Strong."

One of the strongest stories of the north that has ever been filmed will be seen at the Gem theatre next Sunday night when Select Pictures presents Mitchell Lewis in "Faith of the Strong."

In this attraction Mr. Lewis is seen as Paul La Rue, a man whose word is law to the lumber camp of Louis Rey. La Rue fears neither man nor God, and the friction, between the lawless element and the supporters of the church become so acute that La Rue threatens to burn the church. Jean Follet learns of La Rue's threat, and he himself burns the church while attempting to steal little Babette, the motherless waif and ward of the camp. A fight follows and Babette is rescued, but La Rue is carried to the minister's house in a dying condition. There he meets Ena, a girl who has tried to drown herself in the river, and believing that he is nearing death La Rue marries the girl to save her from disgrace.

However, in the end La Rue recovers his strength, and also grows to care for the girl, but she is unable to return his love. Then La Rue loses faith even in God. He challenges the minister to give him proof that God really exists and the challenge does not fall on barren ground. La Rue gets his proof, and with it comes the faith which makes him the happiest man in the north.
