

PUBLIC SALE.

Owing to the subdivision and sale of quite a portion of my farm, formerly owned by M. W. Harrison, and the necessity of making room for my pure bred Holsteins, I will sell at public auction, beginning at 10 o'clock A.M.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1920,

the following personal property:

64 HEAD

Choice, High Producing COWS.

Among these cows are top-notchers running close to 80lbs of butter fat per month, as shown by the Association test records, while owned by Mr. Harrison and later owned by me.

In the month of June, 1919, the records of the Tillamook Cow Testing Association show that there were 1,426 cows in the association, of which number 644, or 45 per cent, made the creditable record of over 40 pounds of butter fat for the month. During that month 62 of the 64 cows I am offering for sale were in the association and 45 of them, or over 70 per cent, produced better than 40 pounds of butter fat for the month, and approximately 50 per cent of these cows, as shown by the official records of the association, produced between 50 pounds and 75 pounds of fat. Note the difference between the average production of the cows of the association and the cows of this herd.

In the Honor Roll published for said month more than one-twelfth of the honors were captured by this herd.

An examination of the records of the salesman of the Tillamook County Creamery Association will disclose that the yearly earnings of this herd surpasses that of any other herd of the size in Tillamook county.

These phenomenal records were made on a grass ration, with the scant care a cow gets in a big working herd.

As a result of the test work the undesirables formerly in this herd were discovered, weeded out and replaced with high-class young cows.

These cows will freshen in February, March and April. A number will be fresh at date of sale. The Jerseys are bred to a St. Mawes bull and the Holsteins to a registered Holstein bull, a descendant of King Sergis. They are well wintered, in good flesh, acclimated and free from contagious and infectious diseases.

Unquestionably this is the best herd of cows ever offered at public sale in Tillamook County.

22 Head of Heifers, coming two years old.

Mostly Jerseys, bred to freshen at seasonable times this spring.

3 Registered Holstein Bulls.

4 Head of Horses.

1 Set Double Harness, 2 Wagons and 1 B.L.K. Milking Machine.

Responsible buyers desiring credit will be able to make satisfactory arrangements with representative of one of the banks, who will act as clerk.

Sale will be held at my farm adjoining Tillamook City, under cover if it rains.

Col. J. W. Hughes will cry the sale. He is an able auctioneer, genial and entertaining, always has something to say worth while. Come and enjoy the day, whether you buy or not. Free lunch at noon.

F. R. BEALS.

WHAT OTHERS THINK OF US!

A Traveling Man.

Jim Murphy, he of the beaming smile and glad hand and perfect sixty-four waistline, who sells bon-bons for Russell Gilbert, was interviewed recently, while here on his regular monthly trip. When asked to give his honest opinion of our burg, he said, "Well, well", a couple of times, chewed his stick in embarrassed silence and grinned feebly and said, "Well, well, let's see!" More chewing, more silence, more grin. Then "Well, up until recently I was pretty keen about Tillamook. Always felt welcome here, took good sized orders, knew everybody in town, found a fountain where the moonshine flowed crazy about the Louvre's buckleberry pie. Then, on my last visit, while strutting around one evening, enjoying a smoke and the digestion of my dinner, and admiring the paved streets and the telephone poles, the foot struck something on the sidewalk and my two hundred and ten pounds of beef and brains was laid low. When I climbed to an upright posture, I discovered I was in front of the new garage, that rejoiced in French windows and the name of Sun. Very playfully the guy that owned it and left some pipes sticking up through the cement, in order to make life interesting for the lumbie pedestrian, who shaves not in the exciting adventures of the motorist, and therefore needs some sort of entertainment. With Stetson cocked over one eye and big toe swollen and aching, and elbow turning purple, I hobbled back to my hostelry, bathed in Sloan's liniment and felt all blue and lonesome and neglected." Mr. Murray chewed and spat and added, "Since then the town hasn't looked good to me." By the way, the pipes have been sawed off, and foot traffic is once more safe on the corner of 2nd Ave. and 4th Street. When informed of this, Mr. Murray said, "Hump, what of it? It doesn't restore my four bits for the lodgment or my affection for Tillamook." Ain't he the onery cuse?

N. C. Maris, of Portland, An Industrial Club Worker Says.

"I am quite familiar with Tillamook and its people and its possibilities. And yet, it is not of these I am reminded when I hear of your little city. About five years ago I came here to attend a fair, and was caught in a terrific October storm. The rain came and drenched the new guaranteed water-proof hotel, the tent at the fair was blown to smithereens and the flaps plapped and the ropes dangled, and the stakes shook, and great was the fall thereof. So poignant is the memory of that trip here that it was with quivering lip and heavy pulse that I made my second visit."

After being properly condoled and sympathized with, Mr. Maris was asked about the work in organizing industrial clubs. Mr. Maris modestly evaded discussion of himself, but spoke warmly of Superintendent Lamb and the boys and girls of Tillamook County. Noah Richards, a successful young potato-raiser, Evelyn Glad, prize winner in both state and county "Rural Home Beautification" contests, and Dilow Smith, a dairy herd record keeper, all of Tillamook County, came in for generous praise. These three will receive a free educational trip, and two weeks summer course at the O. A. C. in June. These advantages are offered to all Oregon boys and girls, who are willing to pitch in and work at any one of the various projects offered by the Extension Service Bureau of the college. Get busy, take your choice. There are sheep, turkeys, ducks, potatoes, cherries, etc. to raise—sewing and cooking and canning for the girls, chickens and their eggs, goats and cows and their milk—all the thousand and one activities alert workers can find to do. Join the ever increasing army of club members. Further information may be obtained from Mr. G. B. Lamb, who says: "I regard the boys and girls industrial club work as the most important work we are doing in the schools today. It is opening up to the average boy and girl a wider world of knowledge. It brings them to a more clear and definite vision of the value and dignity of labor; teaches them early in life that as one labors so shall he be rewarded; and teaches them to be honest and manly and womanly."

"The trip to the state fair each fall is worth a year's schooling to those who are permitted to go. It takes them out of their local communities and brings them in touch with other boys and girls from other sections of the state and the child thereby learns of the manners and conditions as they exist in other sections of Oregon."

"I hope the time will never come when the people will withdraw their support from this important service our schools are rendering to the public."

Bids Wanted on Wood.

Clover Leaf Creamery Company wishes to receive bids on Hemlock and Spruce wood delivered in its wood shed, four miles north of Tillamook City, Oregon, wood to be cut in 16 inch lengths and to be of good, sound quality. Bids will be received in quantities up to 75 cords. Leave bids at Carl Haberlach's office, Tillamook, Oregon, before March 1st, 1920. Company reserves the right to reject any or all bids. Delivery to commence April 1st, 1920.

Apparently the army and navy had a bunch of what was coming to the league of nations, one asks for $1,000,000,000 and the other for $5,000,000,000.

A school has discovered that a small can travel half a mile in seven days, this beating the well known United States mail in several recorded instances.

"Lincoln: The Martyred Statesman."

The Rev. Mr. McRae never spoke more forcefully or sincerely than he did on Sunday morning, February 15th. The Presbyterian church had a record attendance of members of the G. A. R., the W. R. C., the American Legion and others who came to pay tribute to Lincoln. Mr. McRae was eloquent yet concise. His sermon follows:

Members of the Grand Army of the Republic the Womans' Relief Corps, the American Legion and friends, we have met today to observe the memorial anniversary of America's greatest president Abraham Lincoln. His life and his character moulded by barriers which he overcame stands as the brightest jewel upon the escutcheon of American history.

Abraham Lincoln was not only America's greatest statesman, he was the greatest martyr, he was the greatest Christian; a Christian being one who lives the divine truth and ennobles himself by the touch of the divine son of man. We today need his regard for the convictions and the rights of all men. We today need his sublime faith in the victory for righteousness and truth. We need to know that the destiny of this nation is absolutely safe, as long as we stand for human freedom and human brotherhood.

Yes, we need Lincoln's spirit to transform the political life of our day. We need his spirit of unity and love to solve our industrial discord and unrest. We need his spirit to make all Americans forever true to America. We need a president, a congress and a Senate who could stand before the statute of Lincoln and see as he saw, who would give as he gave and who would think as he thought.

America is Lincoln's truest and highest memorial. He lives in the life of this great nation. He died to save, he lives again in the heart of every true American. He lives in the devotion and memory of this nation's glory and achievement. He lives in this glorious United States of America, the freest and best nation under the rays of the sun.

If we forget our great martyred statesman we are unworthy of his memory and the heritage which is ours. Men of the Grand Army and men of the American Legion, may God bless you and this great Republic, which your heroic courage defended. May this indeed be the land of the free and the home of the brave."

In debate with Frederick Douglas he revealed the fact that he cared more for the right than he did for popular favor or personal ambition. Listen to his own words: "The time has come when these sentiments must be uttered, and if it is decreed that I go down because of this speech let me go down linked to the truth—let me die in the advocacy of what is just and right. A house divided against itself can not stand."

The utterance of these words cost him a place in the halls of the United States Senate, but they placed him in the president's chair in the White House four years later.

As Abraham Lincoln became president of this great Republic in 1861 furious storm clouds threatened to break into civil war at any moment. His life was threatened as he journeyed from Springfield to Washington. There was a plot to assassinate him at Baltimore.

Notice how he tried to win all hearts to the one flag and one nation in his first inaugural address, these are his closing words: "We must not be enemies. The mystic chords of memory stretching from every battle field and patriot heart to every living heart and hearthstone all over this broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union, when again they are touched, as surely they will be, by the better angles of our nature."

Then four long weary years of civil war deluged a hundred battlefields in blood. The brave honest men of the North met those equally as brave and honest from the South in deadly conflict. The tears and prayers of the North were struggling with the tears and prayers of the South.

Those were dark days when men's souls were tried with fire. Abraham Lincoln through it all with one supreme purpose, bore upon his great heart the saving of the nation, as the end, which would repay the sacrifice of all else.

Hear his closing message in his second inaugural address on March the 4th, 1865. "Yet, if God wills that it continue until all the wealth piled up by the bondsmen 250 years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and every drop of blood drawn by the lash, shall be paid by another drawn by the sword, as it was said 2000 years ago, so must it still be said, 'The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.'"

With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right—as God gives us to see the right—let us strive to finish the work we are in—to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widow and his orphan—to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace, among ourselves and with all nations.

The immortal Lincoln taught us the sacredness of government. The W. W.'s and the Red Radicals who would destroy the foundation of the free Republic have absolutely no right to take upon their lips the name of Lincoln. He was a preserver of life and liberty, they are the destroyers of these holy things. He was an emancipator of slaves, they are the enslavers of class to class.

Lincoln taught us the duty towards the union of every American citizen. He taught us the wickedness of treason. He taught us the love of liberty, which included the liberty of black and white, rich and poor, high and low, educated and uneducated. He taught us the love of truth which was open to conviction. He taught us the hatred of tyranny and oppression.

The great Lincoln by his exalted character and example taught us not to treasure up personal insult and injury. No public man since Christ was so misunderstood, so ridiculed, so abused, so hated, as he the matchless man, yet through it all he looked up toward the eternal hills and called his soul his own. A man of lesser mould would have been overwhelmed by the bitter opposition.

Lincoln taught us undiscouraged faith in humanity. He had faith in the honor of the South. He had faith in the integrity of the common man. He had faith in the impulses of the heart of the American people. The above all he taught us faith in Almighty God and his wise providence. He believed that a divine plan and a divine purpose ran through the tangled thread of our national life and that His ways are ways of pleasantness and his paths are peace.

Abraham Lincoln was the ideal American for he was the inspiration of the coming generation. He was so big that to him there was no North nor South, there was no East nor West, but from ocean to ocean from the Great Lakes to the Gulf there was one people, one nation forever inseparable. He was so big that he was bound by no narrow partisan prejudice of a political party. He stood as the representative of great principles of human government deserving freedom for all men. He was of the people, by the people and for the people.

We need the spirit of Lincoln today with his devotion to the eternal principles of truth and freedom. We need his reverence and genuine religious life, in order that all life may be elevated and ennobled and made sacred by the touch of the divine son of man. We today need his regard for the convictions and the rights of all men. We today need his sublime faith in the victory for righteousness and truth. We need to know that the destiny of this nation is absolutely safe, as long as we stand for human freedom and human brotherhood.

Yes, we need Lincoln's spirit to transform the political life of our day. We need his spirit of unity and love to solve our industrial discord and unrest. We need his spirit to make all Americans forever true to America. We need a president, a congress and a Senate who could stand before the statute of Lincoln and see as he saw, who would give as he gave and who would think as he thought.

America is Lincoln's truest and highest memorial. He lives in the life of this great nation. He died to save, he lives again in the heart of every true American. He lives in the devotion and memory of this nation's glory and achievement. He lives in this glorious United States of America, the freest and best nation under the rays of the sun.

If we forget our great martyred statesman we are unworthy of his memory and the heritage which is ours. Men of the Grand Army and men of the American Legion, may God bless you and this great Republic, which your heroic courage defended. May this indeed be the land of the free and the home of the brave."

TILLAMOOK'S NEW FLOUR AND FEED MILL IN OPERATION.

Novel and Interesting Process.

The E. S. Betcher Milling Co., has recently completed the installation of an American Marvel Flour and Feed Mill. It has taken some time to build the mill, however, considering the size of the plant and the nature of the work to be done it has gone up as well as could be expected. This mill and its process of flour-making are most interesting. It is entirely self contained and makes flour in one minute after the wheat enters the mill. There is a total absence of the usual maze of elevators, conveyors and the miscellaneous machinery of the old process which one expects to encounter.

The entire plant is most cleanly and sanitary. In discussing the new plant Mr. Betcher said, "The features of the marvel system of milling are its shortness of duration and extreme gentleness. These points are absolutely essential for the production of really good flour. They preserve the shape of the starch and the gluten cells of the wheat berry and, on that account, the bread will rise better, retain its moisture, is more digestible and displays the most delicious and palatable nature flavor. This delightful flavor is not present in flour made by any other method."

Our mill is open at all times to our friends, whom we cordially invite to inspect the new plant. We are proud of it and shall be glad to show them how flour is made the modern Marvel way. Our feed grinder and roll is also interesting and we are prepared to do all kinds of grinding for the drymen. It will pay them to see the kind of feed we run thru. We have samples of the grain that we grind."

"We have been busy from the beginning and are pleased and encouraged by this substantial evidence of public desire to patronize a home industry. It shows the public appreciates it, means greater prosperity for us all to buy and sell at home. The money we spend at home remains at home to come back to us in higher wages, more trade, increased real estate values, better roads, finer schools and churches and lower taxes. The money we spend away from home stays away to benefit some other community."

We ask for the co-operation and patronage of our home people and they will always receive from this mill, only the fairest treatment and the best flour and feed it is possible to make."

The first consignment of grain consisted of oats, barley and hard wheat. Process barley will be manufactured, rolled oats, ground oats and mill run will be the feed stuff produced. The new flour, called "Flavo Flour" as will sell for $3.65 per sack for the present which is a reasonable price in view of the high price now paid for hard wheat flour. Those interested in Spring feed should visit the mill and see the grade of feed being made and secure prices. "Flavo Flour" as proved by bakers tests goes much further than the ordinary flour which is to be considered in view of the price paid.

People of Tillamook City should patronize the new home industry and see to it that they give the mill its share of their business. The quality of the product will be the best.

It is debatable which ran behind the most during government operation—the railroads or the trains.

So the liquor supplies of foreign vessels are not to be kept sealed while the vessels are in American ports. Will it be necessary, we wonder, for American citizens to procure passports, or permits from the Great High Parliament of the Anti-Saloon League, in order to visit such a ship?

If the American people will buckle down to work and for every square day, pay deliver a square day's production the high cost of living can be made to stop pillaging everybody's income. If they go on loafing on their job of production they are sticking to the road which leads to the national prostration.

Colonel House, Vincent Grey and the politicians of the New York world and Saturday Evening Post got together, it seems, and picked a president for us. The people, however, are becoming disgustingly curious when it comes to examining into the origin and auspices of presidential candidates.
