

Roads Seem Pressed Flat By Wonderful New Triplex Springs

THE wonderful Triplex Springs of Overland 4 effect such a change in riding comfort that bad roads now seem to ride like good roads. Overland 4 has the steadiness of larger cars of long wheelbase, with the light weight, ease of control and low fuel and tire expense of 100-inch wheelbase. Equipment, including Auto-Lite starting and lighting and three-speed transmission, is high class, in keeping with the general character of the car.

W. H. Christensen Elected President Tillamook County Creamery Ass'n.

The Tillamook County Creamery Association held its annual meeting at the court house on Monday. Meeting called to order by Ben Kuppenbender, president, when nineteen of the directors were present. Annual reports were read by the Secretary and Inspector, both reports being accepted as read and ordered published. W. H. Christensen was elected president. Carl Haberlach was elected secretary. Ben Kuppenbender was paid $150 for expense money on trips to Portland, and a vote of thanks was given him for his efforts on behalf of the cheese industry. First National Bank was elected treasurer. F. W. Christensen was engaged as inspector.

It was decided that the association equip an office and Carl Haberlach, Solie Smith and Ben Kuppenbender were appointed a committee to report at the next meeting. Resolutions adopted that this association recommend that hereafter all factories be painted a Colonial Yellow, white trimmings and black roof. Mr. Peck of the Agricultural College appeared before the meeting and spoke on improvement of grounds.

Matter of joining with Coos and Curry was taken up and it was decided not to do anything at this time regarding amalgamating the two associations.

The average attendance for last year at the thirteen meetings was 16 directors, which shows a good interest in the work.

Live Stock Quarantine Order Protecting Tillamook County.

Prohibiting the importation of any cattle into Tillamook County, Oregon, until said animals have been tuberculin tested within ten days of such movement by a graduate veterinarian from a recognized veterinary college and certificate of authority given for such movement or when the cattle originated from a Federal accredited and tuberculin tested herd.

Whereas, it is provided in Section 3, Chapter 14, laws of 1913, "It shall be the duty of the State Live Stock Sanitary Board to exercise a general sanitary supervision over the live stock and poultry of this state, and as far as possible to protect the poultry and live stock of this state from disease; to take all measures necessary and proper in the judgment of the board to eradicate infectious, contagious, and communicable disease that may exist among live stock and poultry of this state, etc." and

Whereas, Tillamook County, Oregon, has carried out a general tuberculin testing of the dairy and breeding cattle of their county, and have largely eradicated bovine tuberculosis; and

Whereas, if protection is not afforded to the new tuberculin tested herds of Tillamook County, Oregon, by requiring all cattle coming into said Tillamook County, Oregon, to be tuberculin tested and proved free from tuberculosis, the herds will not remain so free and will again become affected and the tuberculin eradication work already carried out will be of no avail;

Now, therefore, We, the State Livestock Sanitary Board of Oregon do hereby declare that all cattle that are not tuberculin tested and are not from tuberculin tested and accredited herds are presumed to be affected with tuberculosis and must be tuberculin tested within ten days time prior to their entry into Tillamook County, Oregon, and a certificate fully describing such animals and such test shall accompany each shipment or movement of such animals into Tillamook County, Oregon. All persons and railroad companies are hereby ordered and warned not to import, trail, drive or allow to drift into the said Tillamook County, Oregon, any cattle unless accompanied by a certificate as heretofore described showing them to be free from tuberculosis as indicated by a negative reaction to the tuberculin test or from a tuberculin tested, free and accredited herd.

Issued at Salem, Oregon, this 13th day of February, 1920. Oregon State Live Stock Sanitary Board, By W. K. Taylor, president, W. H. Lytle, Secretary.

Death of J. A. Monroe.

The funeral of J. A. Monroe, a well known orchardist who passed away suddenly on Monday afternoon of last week near Santa Clara, California, was held at 2 o'clock from the funeral chapel of Mrs. Emma Hirsch, thence to the Christian Church where the services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. McCullough, of San Jose. The burial was in Santa Clara cemetery and a pretty collection of floral tributes were placed upon the grave. The following served as pallbearers: J. M. Killwell, W. A. Buick, Geo. Melovich, R. S. Stretter, J. A. Bunds and R. C. Elliott. Mr. Monroe passed away at his residence near Santa Clara February 9, at 3 o'clock p.m. Death was caused by paralysis of the heart. The deceased was born in Boone county, Missouri, August 20, 1849, where he lived until he was 26 years of age, where he met and married Anna C. Steen, July 20, 1873. To this union was born three daughters, Lola Pearl Alice May, and Jennie Glen. There are left to mourn his loss his widow, Mrs. A. C. Monroe, Mrs. J. H. Brombley, of Napa and Mrs. D. W. Luther of Santa Clara; his grandchildren Donalweena Luther, Le Van Leland and LeRoy Brombley.

The deceased moved from Boone County, Missouri to Linn County, Kansas; from there to Portland, Oregon, and from there to Tillamook, Oregon, where he spent eleven years of his life, then moved to Napa, where he followed contracting and building for a number of years, when he bought an orchard near Santa Clara where he resided until death.

He accepted Christ and was baptized when 21 years of age, and had lived a consistent Christian life, so was ready when the summons came.

And Somebody Called Alaska "God's Country!"

Bert Phillips, the sandy-haired (what there is of it) Scot, who makes semi-monthly trips to Tillamook has not always sold canned string beans and nickel cigars for Mason, Erhman Co. Several years ago he was prospector, soldier of fortune, and fur trader in Northern Alaska, and his experiences there have given him an almost inexhaustible fund of memories, some meretriciously saved from tragedy by his ready dry humor. The other night in the lobby of the Tillamook Hotel, he and another hard-boiled old timer who sold hardware and things like that, were swapping yarns and B. P., reminiscences thusly:

"My pal and I were once caught in the marshes of the upper Yukon country and forced to remain there for three months. Our grub consisted of cold pancakes, baked monthly; we had no netting and the mosquitoes bit us into two big red lumps night and day. Day in and day out for ninety days our chief sport was scratching the bites; the air was constantly moist and soggy and the water stagnant; we had no clean linen, because we didn't dare remove the B. V. D.'s from our backs for fear the mosquitoes would find some new and exposed vulnerable section ripe for an attack; we sweated in the day and froze after sundown; we ran out of tobacco and matches; and Or Gawd, them pancakes! One evening my pal, who was a married man, drank the dregs of despondency. He sat huddled up in Eskimo fashion for a while, and then broke the silence with his mournful tones: "When I get back, if I ever do get back to civilization, I'm goin' to put one of my kids on each knee, and have my frau sit in front of me and when all is quiet and attentive, I shall tell them the history of this trip word by word, day for day, omitting no painful and lurid detail. And when I've finished—doggone 'em—'em—they don't cry 'I'll 'em'!" Only of course you ought to hear Phillips himself tell this.
