The Smaller Cars—and the World's Most Popular Tires

No tires bearing the Goodyear name, not even the famous Goodyear Cords which equip the world's highest-priced cars, embody a higher relative value than do Goodyear Tires in the 30x3, 30x3½, and 31x4-inch sizes.

In these tires owners of Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, and other cars taking these sizes, are afforded a measure of performance and service such as only the world's largest tire factory devoted to these sizes can supply.

All that this company's experience and methods have accomplished in these tires is available to you now at the nearest Goodyear Service Station.

Go to this Service Station Dealer for these tires and for Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes. He has them.

30x3½ Goodyear Double-Cure Fabric, All-Weather Tread. $20.00
30x3½ Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread. $17.65
Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes are thick, strong tubes that reinforce casing properly. Why risk a good casing with a cheap tube? Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost little more than tubes of less merit. 30x3½ size in water-proof bag. $3.00

Discuss Current Topics

St. Cloud (Minn.) Journal Press: "The real issue that will confront the country in the coming campaign is how to reduce the high cost of living. The answer is: Knock out the blundering, inefficient, south-bossed party now in the saddle. It has cost the people of this country several billion dollars in the mere matter of waste alone."

Fort Worth (Tex) Republican Councilor: "With the Democratic party in Texas split into three factions there is every indication that the Republicans will win a great victory in the Lone Star State this year according to those who are giving the situation their earnest and thoughtful attention. The fact that the Republican movement is headed by men who formerly were prominent in Democratic ranks in Texas lends strength to the assertion that the end of the Democratic rule is near and that the majority piled up by unthinking men will soon be a thing of the past."

Fl. Wayne (Ind.) News: "We are hearing a great deal these days from fatuous sentimentalists and fathed-out politicians concerning America's duty to the world, America's duty to the allies, and America's duty to all the races and kindreds on earth. But we are hearing little of America's duty to herself and nothing at all of the duty of other nations to America. Our President apparently cherishes the strange notion that he is a sort of super-man, divinely chosen to regulate the conduct of the world, and to just the extent this hallucination is encouraged and humored to just that extent will there be hell on earth and bad will amongst men. America's duty to the world is to stay at home and mind her own business. The Lord knows the business needs minding and needs it badly."

We cannot force the contractors to pay us more than they get out of their contracts. The employer cannot force us to work for less than we can live on. The public cannot afford to pay exorbitant prices for work done.

Tilting wages on the one hand results in tilting prices on the other, and the mass of people cannot stand this forever. Capital everywhere is studiously considering ways and means to intensify production of goods and materials as the only solution. We in turn must consider ways and means to intensify our production by doing more work in the same time than we have been doing.

It has now come to a condition where capital and labor are vitally concerned in the economic disaster which is sure to overtake our country should conditions continue as they are going.—Wm. Noonan, Electrical Worker.

Senator New, of Indiana, in a speech in the Senate advocated the establishment of a Department of Aeronautics such as is proposed in a bill which was introduced. Senator New in the course of his remarks commented upon the rapid dissipation since the armistice of the energies of the making of the aircraft at that time of the war. The program which the war department brought forward when the nation entered the war he said was absurd, although when the war ended production had reached a high point. He declared Congress had completely lost confidence in the capacity of the War department to handle the aircraft question and this accounted for the reluctance shown in the House to grant large appropriations asked by the War department for aeronautic development. "It will not do," said Senator New, "to leave the development of this art to the war and navy departments. They are incompetent to handle it. There must be cooperation with cities and states in the creation of routes, the establishment of fields and myriad other matters." The Indiana senator said that the army now had only planes which were almost obsolete and if the country went to war it would not have a single pursuit plane.

William Boyce Thompson, chairman, addressing the ways and means committee of the Republican national committee, declared that certain Democrats in a desperate effort to win the next election are spending prodigious sums of money. He said: "I am not speaking for the people's money. We all know how they have been spending that. An speaking of leaders of the Democratic party and the way they are spending their own money, for it gives an indication how they are acting to spend some more of yours. The Democratic party has headquarters in Washington. That is as it should be. But is it as it should be that there are now, ten months before election, 300 men and women working at those headquarters, sending out 12,000 letters daily? Is it as it should be that an electrical equipment worth as much as $200,000 should be installed there, capable of turning out a million letters a day? Is it as it should be that the monthly payroll at that office is already $50,000? It means this, that from a dollar and cent standpoint certain men feel that they have got to win the next election. They don't care what it is going to cost them—twenty million, twenty-five million, thirty million, any sum at all. They have got to win."

Department of justice slouts at Gary, Indiana raided a "Russian den." They discovered a well thumbed volume printed in Russian. Evidently it was popular. Probably it contained the ordained procedure in dynamiting. To headquarters at full speed and an interpreter summoned. "Read it to us—what does it say?" The interpreter opened it at random and began to run over the sentences translating in fragments. "Then you put the blood on—dig a grave and bury it near midnight—burn up the rest—" "We've got 'em now" exclaimed one. "That's the master book. Read some more." "That helps the blood," went on the interpreter. "Pretty soon off she comes." "That means an explosion," the slouts chorused. "Begin at the beginning," demanded one. "What's the book called?" The interpreter turned to the title page and read: "The adventures of Tom Sawyer, by Mark Twain." He had been reading from Huckleberry Finn's receipt for war.

the Senate refused at the last session to ratify unconditionally the unamended treaty of Versailles. As they read the treaty and came to understand the true meaning of its mandates, they arrived at the brave, but honest, conclusion that they could not give their unconditional advice and consent to ratification and remain obedient to their oath of office. They therefore refuse their unconditional advice and consent to the ratification of the unamended treaty * * *

Coaxing You to Smile.

Envy.
A man from Osawatomi met an acquaintance from Tonganoxie. The latter was shedding tears.
"What is the matter, Emory?" he inquired.
"I have just learned that there is in Manitoba, a place called 'Athapupukow,'" was the answer, "Aw-hoo! hoo! hoo!"
Thereupon his friend clasped hands with him and they both wept bitterly.

Ample Grounds.

An Indianapolis lawyer who handles many divorce cases in the county courts was approached by a man who contemplated bringing divorce proceedings against his wife. "I want to find out if I have grounds for a divorce," he informed the attorney on entering his office. "Are you married?" the lawyer asked. "Why, yes, of course," responded the client. "Then you have grounds," the attorney said.

The First Contingent.

An English captain who had heard that American troops were in France but as yet had seen none in his sector, passed one night in an abandoned dugout. Hearing movements within it, he at once thought of German spies, drew his pistol and leveled it at the entrance. "Who's in there?" he called. A flash of white teeth showed in the darkness and a soft voice answered, "Dis am de American army, suh."

Judge Ought to Know.

It was quite a common story in the police court; a neighborly argument had become a brawl, and now the applicant wanted summons for assault against his neighbor. "Are you married?" asked the judge. "Yes, sir," replied the applicant. "Where is your husband?" "Away sir." "Away!" exclaimed the judge. "My good woman, what do you mean by 'away'?" "Please sir," said the woman hurriedly, "you put him away yourself last week."

Bolshevism and Books.

Joseph Hergeshelmer was talking at the Author's Club in New York about the copyright law which deprives a writer and his heirs of any remuneration from his work fifty-eight years after its copyright. "We authors," said Mr. Hergeshelmer, have little to fear from the bolsheviks. Our work has always been treated as under the bolshevik regime. "But, then, literary artists," added the alert writer whimsically, "have the consolation that their work lives after them. Look at Rubens! He painted a thousand pictures yet there are something like four thousand in existence today."
