FALSE STANDARD OF VALUES

World Too Much Given Up to Worship of Material Prosperity, Declares Writer.

Wherever we turn we find that possessions are too often the standard by which men are measured. A man's income and position bulk much more largely in the mind of most than what he is or what he does, and a nation's wealth is still instinctively spoken of in terms of finance, or territorial possessions, even by those who, on platforms, glibly say "true wealth consists in a healthy and contented people."

It is this false and pernicious view which is responsible for much of the evil in the present day. The little child who learns to pray by its mother's knee, when it rises is urged to "get on in the world;" to make money, to achieve fame. No harm in this, some may say. Man cannot serve two masters, and if we examine closely we shall find that it's just this effort for each to do the best possible for him or herself that is responsible for the evil in the world.

The great need of the world is that we shall change the values. There is only one thing of supreme value, and that is humanity. This makes the millionaire and the homeless tramp equal. When the world has learned the lesson that man does not live by bread alone, then will be laid the foundation upon which a regenerated world can be built.

GOES BACK TO ROMAN LAW

Writ of Injunction Almost as Old as the Institution of Trial by Jury.

Use of the injunction is a feature of the law almost as old as the institution of trial by jury. It was first used in 1382, when the king of England empowered the chancellor to issue writs restraining the barons from overriding the common law courts. The principle of injunction dates back further still to Roman law; "It is classified in the law as one of the 'extraordinary writs.' Its essential purpose is to prevent the doing of a wrong whose effects, if consummated, would be irreparable. In other words, instead of waiting for a threatened wrong to work its damage, which a law court might redress by punishment or the assessment of damages, the equity court steps in with its 'extraordinary writ' of injunction to prevent the damage being done. Its twin is mandamus, which commands performance of certain rights and duties, while the province of injunction is to forbid performance of certain acts which might interfere with rights or result in wrongs."

Fetishes of Riksha Pullers.

Although the diffusion of education among the Zulus and other natives of Natal is removing many fetish customs from their social life, some practices are held tenaciously by the children of bigoted natives. At one curio establishment in Durban, Natal, it is said that on rare occasions natives ask for "Jokelosi 'muti,' or magic medicine made from the flesh of native children. This 'muti' (which, it is believed, was once used by the warriors of Tshaka and Dingaan), is supposed to convey the virtues of youth and strength. It is occasionally asked for in Natal by riksha boys. The riksha pullers have a firm faith in the fat of lions, tigers, crocodiles and hippos. These are stored in jars for sale to Kaffir clients. Snake muti is also a favorite decoction for those desiring cunning. "A good deal of the fat for these medicines is imported by us," said a well-known curio dealer, "from Central Africa; and we are supplied by firms in Livingstonia."

Olive-Growing Centers.

Of all the olive-growing lands Spain is the most important in the total yield of oil, and is by nature one of those best fitted to fill its own large demands and furnish an increasing supply for export. Italy, the second olive-oil producing country in Europe, has an area planted in olives about a third greater than Spain has, but its yield in normal years is smaller. The French area under cultivation is confined to the Mediterranean coast, and is reported to be decreasing, since greater profits are obtained from viticulture. It is asserted that in recent years 20,000 hectares of olive groves have been turned into vineyards in France. Tunis and Algeria are declared to offer better prospects for olive raising than does French territory in Europe.

First Telephone Inventor.

The earliest form of telephone is probably that in which the sounds of the voice are transmitted over a stretched string or wire and this form is said to have been used by the Chinese ages ago, it being impossible to give the name of the inventor. Alexander Graham Bell, born in Edinburgh, Scotland, but then resident in the United States, invented the electric telephone at Boston about the same time as Elisha Gray in Chicago, but Bell was granted priority.

Other Men's Affairs.

"Every man should mind his own business," remarked the severely industrious citizen.

"But what are you going to do," protested Senator Sorghum, "when you've got a whole lot of constituents, every one of whom thinks his business is your business!"

There has been a good deal of discussion of the purpose of keeping a flock of sheep on the White House lawn, but probably it is to raise more wool to pull over the people's eyes.

Senator Kirby, of Arkansas, says: "We democrats have no candidate for president and won't have until we hear from the president." How much mental wear and tear it does save a rubber stamp senator to have someone in the White House to do all his thinking for him.

BOTH CHRISTIAN AND PAGAN

Rites of Mexican Festival Constitute One of the Strangest Mixtures Known to History.

Probably the strangest mixture of the ancient and the modern, and of Christian and pagan rites, which can be seen in the world today, is the annual Mexican festival of the "Matachines."

No white man can tell exactly what is the significance of this festival, which is celebrated in all parts of the Mexican republic every spring. Those who take part in it are typical Mexicans of Indian and Spanish blood, with some purebred Indians among them. The dances are much like the war and harvest dances of the Apaches, Comanches and other southwestern Indians, except that many of the dancers flourish swords, and wear by way of decoration, the tin tops of beer bottles.

The dancing is kept up for two or three days, and the ceremony ends with a dance about a great wooden cross which is set on a high hill near the town. This would seem to show a Christian influence, and it probably does, but the cross is known to have been sacred to ancient Aztecs. Indeed, this whole ceremony is undoubtedly one of Aztec origin, with Christian elements added.

This bewildering mixture of pagan and Christian religion is seen throughout the Southwest. The "Penitentes Hermanos" of Mexico and New Mexico are another example. On every Good Friday they whip themselves until the blood comes, as a penance, and cruelly one of their number with ropes. These fanatics claim to be Christians, but their practices have been condemned by the church, and like the Matachines can be traced back to Aztec times.

NEWSPAPER HAD SHORT LIFE

"Public Occurrences" in 1690, Got Out One Issue, and Then the Authorities Suppressed It.

America's first newspaper, the Boston News-Letter, first published in 1704, on exhibition at the Massachusetts Historical society, marked the beginning of continuous journalism in the British colonies. Until 1704 the nearest approach to a newspaper in the everyday life of the colonies was the manuscript "news-letter," which was usually addressed by the writer to a governor or a leading clergyman, and was presumably shown around and the "news" further circulated by word of mouth.

An earlier effort than that of the Boston News-Letter to publish a newspaper in the colonies is on record in the attempt to publish Public Occurrences, in 1690. The introductory paragraph announced that "it is designed that the country shall be furnished once a month (or if any Glut of Occurrences happen, oftener) with an Account of such considerable things as have arrived unto our Notice." The "legislative authorities" of the time, however, found some "reflections of a very high nature" in its columns, and the Public Occurrences made no second appearance.

Trace Pedigree for Centuries.

Speaking of old families and family trees, English and Americans who pride themselves on ancestry have reason to envy the Arabs, many of whom can trace their family line back through many centuries by means of authentic documents. Prof. Talcott Williams, an American who was born and spent his youth in Turkey and has traveled much since in oriental countries, says the descendants of Mohammed are numerous all over the Moslem world—in Arabia, Somaliland and East Africa—and that they prove their line by these records, which they value highly. There are also many descendants of Abu Bekr, the immediate successor of Mohammed. The leading Moslem family in Jerusalem are the Khaldi, descendants of Kalked, who conquered Syria 1,300 years ago and whose descendants have kept their genealogical records intact for all that period.

Waterspout in the Pacific.

A waterspout formed Sunday afternoon off the Haku coast. The surface of the ocean was agitated until spray and mist formed into a cuplike smoke. Then a fingerlike extension gradually reached down from the cloud, until the two connected in midair. For several minutes the spout must have been from 10 to 15 feet in diameter. It swayed irregularly back and forth, as though unable to support its own weight fully. Also, it was not solid, but a tube of mist and spray, whirling rapidly. Next to the water it was like smoke or dark spray, at the top dark and less transparent, while most of the length was glassy and plainly showed the hollow center. It formed quite slowly and disappeared the same way. This scene was much the same as the dust whirlwinds on the land, only much higher and made of water. —Wailuku Times.

Beliefs Concerning Friday.

Americans haven't got around to the point of view of the ancient Scandinavians, who called "Frigi deag" the day of the Goddess Friga, or Freyja, the luckiest day of the week; but they are getting more like the Moslems, whose conviction that the sixth day of the week is a pretty average day, after all, is expressed in their belief that it was on Friday that Adam was created, entered paradise, was expelled, repented and died, and that on Friday will come the day of resurrection.

The "buy cheap r cuts of meat" week launched by the department of justice as a remedy for the high cost of living is over, and the only result is that the people have been able to notice is that the cheaper cuts became dearer.

There are only seventy-one American soldiers left in France but Senator Smoot says there will be 250 press agents left in the Washington departments. Told you it would be harder to demobilize the press agents than the soldiers.

GEORGE CHRISTENSON. LISTER L. LITSCHER.

No, not all the unrest in the country is due to labor. On the contrary, much of the unrest is due to the conscienceless exactions of the big and little influences which keep pushing prices higher and higher every month without regard to actual costs or values in the effort to get while the getting is good. Every man who wants to be honest is willing to admit that so-called big business is not the only big sinner in this matter. The trouble is nearly everybody's doing it.

There's one thing Mr. Wilson can't keep us out of anyway, and that's a chance to swat the administration at the polls on November 2nd.
