preserve and beautify

THE first essential of paint is to preserve. Second, to beautify. Too many people make the mistake of considering only the latter, consequently buy paints of inferior quality.

The result is a temporary beautifying effect, without preserving the wood.

FULLER Paints and other products are of that quality which preserves and beautifies. Through their use, inside and out, years of life will be added to your home and it will be made more livable to yourself and family.

Seventy-one years of paint-making experience are back of every brushful of FULLER Products. Insist on FULLER'S and you'll be sure of results. And remember, there's a FULLER Product for every paintable surface—inside and out.

The day Mr. McAdoe ran fourth in the Michigan Democratic presidential primary he became the father of a new girl. One first class baby is worth more to any discriminating man than a dozen of this year's Democratic presidential nominations.

Evidently the reason Mr. Wilson tied the covenant into the treaty of peace on the assumption that the Senate would accept the former in order to get the latter was that he supposed the American people were for peace at any price.

After viewing the Michigan primary returns we will say that if Mr. McAdoe spent any money there making the race he has a right to feel hard about spending money to get a presidential nomination.

The Republican who is spending time making assertions, in his partisanship for some candidate for a nomination, that may hurt the nominee of the Republican party in the campaign just ahead, is a pretty useful assistant Democrat.

It's about time for somebody to start a movement to organize a searching party for Colonel House.

The State University, Agricultural College and the State Normal

have for many years spent less money per student per year in training Oregon boys and girls than is spent at any other state institution. The present cost of the State University is $203 a year; at the college it is $180. But even before the war when money would buy twice as much as it buys now, the average cost of all other state institutions was $325 a year. In addition

Their Building Investment is also very low

At the State University it is at present $322 per student; at the College, $300. But in state institutions elsewhere, statistics show the average to be $995. These are convincing proofs of economical administration, but the three institutions can no longer give satisfactory training to the vast numbers of Oregon boys and girls (5400 in fulltime course alone), unless they receive more support. On May 21 the Higher Educational relief measure will appear on the ballot. You are urged to preserve the quality of higher education by voting for it.

What the Editors Say

The last acquisition to the feathered tribe in this city is a four-legged duck being cared for by a north Roseburg boy. The high cost of living is bringing forth all kinds of freaks, but it is hoped, under prevailing prices, that no extra lower extremities are added to the human race. The average fellow has got enough to cover up without taking on a couple of extra legs.—News Review.

The experiments reported by the bureau of chemistry of the department of agriculture aimed at producing a new motor fuel from straw, dried leaves and cornstalks will be watched with interest sharpened by the rising price of gasoline. It is now recalled that Henry Ford once proposed to make alcohol from straw in such quantities that it would become the universal fuel for automobiles, but the department of agriculture experts, judging from meager reports of their work, seem to be working in a different direction. The plan involves the use of a gas bag attached to the engine, from which the gas is run directly into the carburetor. The device might be clumsy, but a good deal might be forgiven any scheme that promised to turn into fuel so plentiful a product as dried leaves, and if it succeeded only to the extent of reducing the price of present standard fuel it would be universally regarded as having justified itself.—Oregonian.

The Oregon Voter devotes several pages of its issue to General Disque's story of the spruce production division, but what's the use? To our way of thinking the more this unfortunate matter is stirred the worse it is for all concerned. General Disque appears to have been a likeable fellow, for he made a host of warm friends during his occupancy of the Leen building. On the other hand there is the record of the division. Disque's friends say he accomplished wonders; their opponents say the record shows great activity, but that the people are willing to forget it, and if they can be induced to give an opinion will say that the great mistake was made by the higher-ups who picked an army officer for a lumberman's job, and especially when there was much of the latter talent available. Disque they will say did his best, and is entitled to all credit for his endeavors but he was a soldier and not a lumberjack and while his defenders may convince people of the prairie states, where a sunflower is considered a tree, there are too many people in the north who know all about it, and are willing to be fooled. But they are willing to be tolerant and forget, so why not let it go at that?—Hillsboro Independent.

A Scratching Rebuke.

"It is clear that the government of the United States is operating a part of the Communist party."—Federal District Judge Anderson.

During the war this column published an editorial to show that the Wilson administration was working hand in glove with the International Socialists. We published a long list of radical socialists that the president had appointed to important positions. Later we showed how the president had filled the federal trade commission with bitterest radicals in the country, giving them the opportunity they longed for to excite class prejudice in this country by "showing up" the country's large business interests, especially the packers.

For the publication of these very evident truths, some people, who care more for their party interests than they do for their country rapped the Gazette-Times for its "partisanship." The editor of the Gazette-Times thrives on raps, cares not a whoop about them and continued bringing to the notice of the public the awful conditions into which this country had been brought by the very evident sympathy with Internationalism of Woodrow Wilson.

While the war was on, that anarchistic outfit, the leaders of the Nonpartisan league of North Dakota, later convicted of sedition, were thick and thin with George Creel and the other Socialist publicists with which the administration had surrounded itself. When genu American business by the score with important business on hand were unable to see the president, A. C. Townley was granted an audience of two hours and went away satisfied.

Mr. Wilson's secretary of labor is a radical with a jail record for promoting riots. His assistant secretary of labor, Mr. Post, was the editor of a radical Socialist paper when he was appointed, so it is not to be wondered at that alien reds slated for deportation are released by him about as fast as they are caught.

Now a resolution is pending before congress asking that Mr. Post be impeached. Why stop with Mr. Post? Who is responsible for Mr. Post? Does anyone for a moment think he could stay in Mr. Wilson's cabinet as assistant secretary of labor if his mind did not "go willingly along with mine?"

The latest is the startling statement of federal judge Anderson to the effect of our government—your government and mine—is in partnership with this outfit that follows the red flag and whose only purpose is to change our form of government for that advocated by socialists. This is a very serious charge, but it is a charge made, not by a partisan newspaper, but by a federal judge, a man who is accustomed to weighing his words and not speaking inadvertently, a charge made because of the evidence brought out before the judge while he was hearing a case concerning the Red activities. It is not a charge made on the floor of congress which yellow newspapers have caught the republic to regard so flippantly. It is a charge made by a federal judge who is not interested in politics, whose job does not depend upon political favor, and, because of its seriousness and its high authority, the congress and the people should take due notice and govern themselves accordingly.—Gazette Times.

Help Obtain Permanent Roads.

The proposed constitutional amendment raising the state bonding limit from two to four per cent, to be voted on Friday, May 21, will make available $20,000,000 to use in constructing roads throughout Oregon. That the money will be saved and the roads built from waste is the startling statement of the Hon. R. A. Booth, of Eugene, member of the State Highway Commission.

"The funds obtained from license fees and gasoline tax are sufficient to pay interest and retire all bonds issued under the proposed plan, said Mr. Booth. "The average cost of gasoline is 25 cents a gallon and the tax is one cent a gallon. Therefore when I travel over roads making 104 miles and using the same amount of gasoline as previously was required to cover but 100 miles, I have saved the tax, and all additional mileage is gain.

"Tire casings average $40 each and licenses cost about $20 each. When one casing is saved in a year twice the cost of the license is saved and a set saved, therefore, eight times the cost of the license. I have saved a set and not cut down mileage the past year. Add to this decreased wear and tear on engine and rest of the car that is prevented by good roads, eliminating much expensive repairing, and it appears that the roads are actually built from waste."

Milton A. Miller, pioneer of Linn County, at present collector of customs, states that Linn County residents are favorable to the proposed amendment because they have found the benefits accruing from improved roads a sound financial investment. He said that Linn county contains about 1,500,000 acres of which practically 700,000 acres are in timber. "Linn County has a network of roads possibly 3000 miles in extent," said Mr. Miller. "Most of us won't live forever and the proposed amendment will get us good roads while we are able to enjoy them. The other plan requires waiting indefinitely, retarding progress in all directions."

"S. A. Pattison, editor of Heppner Herald, writes: "Morrow county needs money for completing the Oregon-Washington highway now being graded. Unless sufficient funds are provided to hard surface the road, much of it, particularly the lower end, will blow away."

"L. J. Simpson, former candidate for governor of Oregon, who owns a large sawmill at North Bend, writes that Marshfield Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the amendment and predicts a large favorable vote in Coos County.

Representative James S. Stewart, of Fossil and Corvallis, is quoted in the Cottage Grove Sentinel as having addressed a citizens' meeting as follows: "Bear in mind that this amendment will not raise your taxes a single penny. The automobile license fees and gasoline tax will pay the interest and retire all these bonds when due and if you do not pass this measure it will not reduce the fee or tax; nor will they be increased if you do."

"Surely the state should be allowed to bond up to four per cent to build roads which will bring the ever ripe tourist crop to Oregon, that will entice easterners to come here and invest their money, that will raise the value of every piece of property in the state, that will save the automobile owners who pay for the roads more than the bonds cost them. Counties are permitted to bond up to six per cent. Without ability to vote these bonds we will be unable to match funds amounting to millions set aside by the federal government and this indirectly would, in effect raise your taxes."

A. A. Smith, of Baker, writes that only by this method can eastern Oregon get money necessary to carry on road building in that section.

The Dalles Commercial Club has endorsed the proposed amendment and the Astoria Chamber of Commerce and Warrenton Commercial Club have gone on record as favoring the proposed amendment, according to a letter received from A. W. Norblad, of Astoria. Klamath Falls Commercial Club has indicated that the members will endorse the measure when they meet. Many other clubs are added daily to this list. The Lake County Examiner, of Lakeview, not only endorses the plan but has sent a liberal subscription to assist in carrying on the work of publicity.

Jackson County will vote on a bond issue of $500,000 in addition to favoring the proposed amendment. Medford Chamber of Commerce has a membership drive and now has 400 members. They have raised $18,000 and to this will be added $2000 more. Jackson County plans to get help from the state and then match the combined fund with federal aid.

All the money raised by bonds has either been spent or contracted for and the amendment is necessary to authorize further bonding. Without this assistance a direct mileage tax might be voted against property this fall; at least the only available funds for road construction will be the income from license fees and gasoline tax as the amounts are collected annually. From this amount would be deducted money necessary to pay for bonds issued previously, all of which means indefinite delay. By bonding you will get your roads now.

Any candidate who may come to the next republican national convention threatening he will start a bolt in case he fall of nomination should be promptly booted out of the place.
