

TOM MIX

IN "THE DAREDEVIL"

Gem Theatre, Tuesday, May 18

Adults 25c.

Children 15c.

MARY PICKFORD

"THE HOODLUM"

GEM THEATRE, FRIDAY-SATURDAY MAY 14-15

"The Hoodlum" is Mary Pickford's greatest comedy. There is even more fun in it, than there was in "Daddy Longlegs" and we will say "that is going some!"

Don't fail to see it!

"WALTZ ME ROUND" 1 REEL SNUB POLLARD COMEDY.

ADULTS 25c.

CHILDREN 15c.

Vote for GOOD ROADS MAY 21

Vote 302 X Yes for 4% State Road Bond Limit

STEADY, AMERICA!

Let Us Work This Out Together

Republicans, It Is Up to Us to Elect a Real President This Fall.

He Must Be the Biggest and the Soundest and the Most Effective American We Can Find.

Before Committing Yourself Consider These Facts:

Out of thirteen states, where the contest was between Wood and Johnson for the instruction of delegates to the Republican National Convention, the elections have been decided for Wood in nine.

Total Number of Delegates Pledged to Vote for Wood at Republican National Convention, 321

Since the narrowing down of the field, the situation is generally diagnosed as follows:

A vote for Hoover, for Lowden, or for Poindexter is a vote for Johnson.

KEEP THE PARTY TOGETHER

WIN WITH WOOD

(Paid Adv. by Leonard Wood Campaign Headquarters)

SALE OF GUERNSEYS 11 HEAD REGISTERED

6 Cows, 4 Feifers and 1 5-Year Old Bull,
1 Cow and 2 Heifers, Full Blood Guernsey, but not registered.

6 Grade Guernsey Cows,
4 Grade Heifers Guernseys, soon to freshen.

1 Empire Milking Machine, 4-Horse Gas Engine.

1 No. 6, Birdsall Clover Huller,

1 SMALLEY ENSILAGE CUTTER.

SATURDAY, MAY 22nd, 1920 10 A.M.

Sale held on the Wm. Keyt farm 3/4 miles south west of Amity, Oregon.

WM. YARNES, OWNER.

DAIRY RANCH FOR RENT---Stock for Sale.

This place contains 150 acres of fine land, good house and barn. Place is well improved.

The stock consists of 21 first class dairy cows, team, two wagons and harness, 5 hogs. Lease runs for 5 years. All kinds of machinery go with the place. Place is nicely located on main highway.

Come in and see me at once, as this proposition will sure go soon.

F. B. McKinley.

Vote for GOOD ROADS MAY 21

Vote 302 X Yes for 4% State Road Bond Limit

Pd. Adv.

High School Notes.

Last week the "Frosh" battled the "Sophie" in a game of volleyball. The "Sophie" have an exceptionally fine the colleges of Oregon to seek an ed-spirit.

Mr. Stewart, of Corvallis, addressed the student body on the issues to be voted on May 21. He especially emphasized the fact that if the education bill is not passed thousands of students will be turned away from the colleges of Oregon to seek an education in other states. Oregon's colleges are now of the best, but if this bill is not passed we will have colleges that are inferior to those in other states.

Last Saturday the Tillamook High School annual picnic was held at Netarts. About 8:15 a.m. a truck load of fun-seeking students followed by several private cars left the High School. The students were able to go around Maxwell's point at low-tide. Misses Graham and Star were the faculty members who chaperoned the party.

Miss Clark, who was a teacher of history last semester, left for Chicago Friday, April 30.

Last Friday the High School Glee Club featured the light opera "Love Pirates of Hawaii". The operetta was a huge success. George Lienkemper made an unusually good pirate chief who was finally won by Miss Primer, teacher of a private school for girls. La Verna Holden, who took the part of Dorothy Dear has an unusually fine voice and we hail her as a coming prima donna. Arthur Harris took the part of Lieutenant Dick and made a splendid sweetheart. Cora Oliver, who so unwittingly stole the pirate chief's heart was rather strict when gentlemen endeavored to call on the girls in the school.

Cheesemakers Hold Meeting and Elect Officers.

The Tillamook County Cheesemakers Association held their second meeting of this year in the directors' rooms of the Tillamook County Creamery Association by invitation. Owing to a good deal of sickness among the makers the association had been prevented having a meeting sooner.

At the meeting in Beaver in April it was decided to hold meetings once a month, also to have the cheese scoring contest monthly.

A fine attendance was had on May 6th, at which new rules for scoring contest were adopted, several new members were admitted to membership and a general discussion of the problems facing the cheesemakers and the dairymen were discussed regarding the manufacture of better cheese.

Owing to the fact that the card notification failed to reach them before the cheese drawn for the scoring was boxed, there were very few entries in this month's scoring. However for next month they will be notified in time to save their cheese.

The following are the new rules for scoring adopted at the last meeting:

Rule No. 1—Scoring contest to be held on Wednesday previous to the first Thursday of each month.

Rule No. 2—Entries to be delivered to scoring place the day before, or in time not to hold the judges back.

Rule No. 3—Entries to be from the first vat on days selected by lottery. Lottery to be conducted in the offices of the Tillamook County Creamery Ass'n. by disinterested parties.

Rule No. 4—Scoring to be supervised over by F. W. Christensen, cheese inspector for the Ass'n.

Rule No. 5—Base of points to be as follows, flavor, 40; Body, 15; Texture, 15; Color, 10; Finish, 20. Total 100.

Rule No. 6—Judges to be selected by the executive board. The judges to be those living near the place of scoring.

Rule No. 7—Judges are to make entries on the score cards, the condition the entry was in, at the time of scoring, for references.

Rule No. 8—Judges are to give an explanation at the regular meeting of the merits of the entries.

The scoring contests we feel are going to be very instructive and interesting, and if the dairymen will give us the cooperation in producing good clean milk and the cheesemakers from all over the county will give their cooperation, the results can only be a wider knowledge of the manufacturing of cheese for the makers and a superior grade of cheese.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were:

Floyd B. Culbertson, Pres; Harry W. Thomas, Sec.; Executive Board, Floyd Culbertson, chairman, Hugo Barber, Roy M. Savage, Frank Wilson and Harry Thomas.

We wish to thank the Creamery Association for the use of their rooms, also their cooperative spirit in helping us.

H. W. Thomas, Sec.

"The Right of Way," With Lytell, Coming

"The Right of Way" in motion picture form, an adaptation of the famous novel by Sir Gilbert Parker, in which Screen Classics, Inc., presents the magnetic and versatile star, Bert Lytell, will be shown at the Gem Theatre, Friday and Saturday, May 21 and 22.

As those who have read the book—and it is estimated by Harper & Bros., the publishers, that they number well into six figures—will recall, this is stirring, picture-que and unusual story of Canadian life in Montreal and again on the fringe of the north woods. The action revolves chiefly about the character of Charley Steele, called, for his dash and manner by his friends and enemies, both of which were numerous, "Beauty" Steele. The famous court-room scene in which, after clearing a man of the charge of murder, Steele snaps at him, "Out of my sight

FATHER OF ROOSEVELT HIGHWAY IN TILLAMOOK

B. F. Jones Given a Rousing Reception at a Public Meeting and Vote of Thanks

Ben F. Jones, father of the Roosevelt Military Highway measure, and a live wire, and booster for the Coast counties, paid Tillamook a visit the first of the week, and it was only natural that he should receive a royal welcome from our citizens who had taken such a lively interest in the highway. What brought Mr. Jones here was his candidacy for secretary of state on the Republican ticket. But that cuts very little figure, for he was glad to come to Tillamook and thank the citizens of this county, who had carried on a most active campaign with such flattering results. So Mr. Jones found himself in the midst of co-workers, all imbued with Roosevelt Military Highway spirit.

Everywhere Mr. Jones went he was gladly taken by the hand, which showed plainly how our citizens appreciated his efforts. There is one characteristic about him when asked about the highway he goes off like an alarm clock. There's no stopping him until he through. Why, he can talk about the highway and the Coast counties by the foot, yard or mile, and talk interestingly. Mr. Jones is in the same pew with our local Roosevelt Military Highway boosters. They are confident that they are going to win out, but it is a question of education back in Washington, and they don't propose to quit until the government has taken over the building of the highway. That's the way to succeed, and they have gritted their teeth with a determination to succeed.

So as to give Mr. Jones an opportunity to enlighten the people on the status of the Roosevelt Military Highway bill, introduced by Congressman W. C. Hawley, a meeting was held at the Court House on Monday evening.

Attorney H. T. Bots presided, and in a few appropriate remarks he highly commended and introduced the visitor.

Mr. Jones just touched upon the matter of building a road from Neskowin into Lincoln county. He stated that it was about 70 miles between the court houses of the two counties, yet they had to travel several hundred miles to make the journey. He made the statement that if the 4 per cent bonded indebtedness measure carried at the primary election, the state highway commission, with the co-operation of the two county courts would build the seven miles of road. From the northern portion of Lincoln county the dairymen packet their milk butter and cheese to Willamina, whereas, if the road was built all the business from that end of Lincoln county would come to Tillamook. Mr. Jones remarked that where Tillamook county had prospered and succeeded was because the dairymen had gone to work, while Lincoln county they had relied upon about six weeks of tourist travel to keep them a whole year. But, he said, they were getting wise over in his county and hoped to develop it in the same manner as have the dairymen of Tillamook county. He said there was a difference of 25 cents in butter fat in the two counties.

These few remarks were just a preface to what he had to say. He then divided into the Roosevelt Military Highway, and everybody present became highly interested in what he said, when he introduced the measure in the state legislature it was looked upon as a joke and some of the state legislators voted for it because they thought that was the best way to kill it. It was considered one of the most unpopulous measures to be voted upon, but it was simply brought education that the measure became the most popular of any of the measures. Seeing what Oregon was doing in voting the $2,000,000 provided the government would appropriate a like amount, California voted to extend the highway from the Oregon line to the Mexican line, and in February of this year Washington also ratified the measure.

When the Roosevelt Highway is finished it will be the greatest one in the world, extending from Puget Sound to the Mexican line. Another interesting fact was noted by Mr. Jones, and it was that out of the sixty million acres of land in Oregon, thirteen million five hundred thousand are not taxed. This land is in Forest Reserve, and the amount given above does not include that which is in Indian Reserve. In the seven —you're guilty as hell!" opens the drama; and this same striking unexpectedness, this suddenness and almost stunning surprise is repeated in the various incidents which go to make up the novel which won for Gilbert Parker the title Sir Gilbert Parker.

Jury Acquits One and Disagree in the Other Case

The jury before which the case of Steve Rossham was tried Friday, acquitted him, as there was not sufficient evidence for conviction. He was charged with having joined the I. W. W.'s in Tillamook county, after a law had been passed in the state of Oregon making such an act a criminal offense. It was proven that he had joined in Montana, where there is no law against the organization. Rossham was supposed to have simply taken out an enrollment card and paid his entrance fee, and then not having had any more to do with it. He can not read or write English, but the literature of the I. W. W.'s is published in almost every different language.

The case of Gus Hersche, an I. W. W., was tried before the Circuit Court Saturday. He was charged with being an I. W. W., joining the organization in Tillamook county, and having helped to organize it in the county. Last February a law was passed making it unlawful for any one to join the I. W. W.'s, and anyone so doing was liable to fine and imprisonment. Hersche said in his first hearing after he was arrested, that he had joined the organization in Wheeler, on August 28, 1919, but in the trial Saturday he claims to have joined in Seattle, and that he had never been in Tillamook before he came to work for the Brighton Mills Co., last November, at their logging camp near Mohler. He also claims that he never attended a business meeting of the I. W. W.'s, or that he had never studied any of their literature. All that he had done was to join and to be present when bunches of them were making merry in some of the logging camps in Washington. He said they used to gather and sing I. W. W. songs and have music and dance. I. W. W. music, too, no doubt. One of the most popular of their songs was, "Work and pray; live on hay, and you'll get pie in the sky when you die," which is a very catchy little ditty when sung to the tune of "In the Sweet Bye and Bye". The defendant said when asked why he joined the I. W. W.'s, that he believed, and still thinks that for the working man to get a square deal, the so called capitalist class should be done away with, and that the working class should be organized into one union. He says he would give up anything, even his life, for the cause of labor. Although he doesn't believe in the destruction of property, he thinks that strikes are all right, and has taken part in several small walk-outs, as he calls them.

Hersche said in his testimony that he had not read in the I. W. W. literature and had never heard any of the I. W. W.'s advocate destruction of property, but the testimony of two of the other witnesses, Lieutenant Thatcher, a member of the Portland police, and W. E. Josh, an ex-member of the I. W. W.'s, proved that this was one of their principles.

Lieutenant Thatcher identified the pamphlets and magazines which were introduced as evidence, as being the same ones he found in the I. W. W. headquarters in Portland when they were searched by the police on the night of Nov. 11, 1919. There were a number of them and they were all I. W. W. literature which advocated sabotage, which is the term they use for wanton destruction of real and personal property, to gain their ends. The organization also distributes stickers, called "silent agitators," which are put up at different places as warnings to the boss, or that the men shall slow down on the job. W. E. Josh, an ex-member of the I. W. W.'s of Tacoma, Wash., testified that he had been a member of the organization for several months, and had become a "delegate", an official member whose duties are to enroll new members, collect fees, etc., and he said he got all the inside dope about the organization. To get a new member to join, the delegate tells him what his labor conditions will be made better, and then if he doesn't join he shows him some literature, which, by the way, does not advocate violence, and if he still refuses to join, the delegate threatens him. The latter process usually gets him, too. Josh said that after he had belonged to the organization for some time he found out that it was unlawful, and that it was a radical corrupt outfit and that he didn't want any more to do with it. In the latter part of October he severed his connections with it and in January of this year, he started out to work for the state on the different I. W. W. cases. Seems to like the job, too, and is making quite a profession of it, as he has attended a dozen different trials, as witness.

The I. W. W. Cases

The case of Gus Hersche, an I. W. W., was tried before the Circuit Court Saturday. He was charged with being an I. W. W., joining the organization in Tillamook county, and having helped to organize it in the county. Last February a law was passed making it unlawful for any one to join the I. W. W.'s, and anyone so doing was liable to fine and imprisonment. Hersche said in his first hearing after he was arrested, that he had joined the organization in Wheeler, on August 28, 1919, but in the trial Saturday he claims to have joined in Seattle, and that he had never been in Tillamook before he came to work for the Brighton Mills Co., last November, at their logging camp near Mohler. He also claims that he never attended a business meeting of the I. W. W.'s, or that he had never studied any of their literature. All that he had done was to join and to be present when bunches of them were making merry in some of the logging camps in Washington. He said they used to gather and sing I. W. W. songs and have music and dance. I. W. W. music, too, no doubt. One of the most popular of their songs was, "Work and pray; live on hay, and you'll get pie in the sky when you die," which is a very catchy little ditty when sung to the tune of "In the Sweet Bye and Bye". The defendant said when asked why he joined the I. W. W.'s, that he believed, and still thinks that for the working man to get a square deal, the so called capitalist class should be done away with, and that the working class should be organized into one union. He says he would give up anything, even his life, for the cause of labor. Although he doesn't believe in the destruction of property, he thinks that strikes are all right, and has taken part in several small walk-outs, as he calls them.

Hersche said in his testimony that he had not read in the I. W. W. literature and had never heard any of the I. W. W.'s advocate destruction of property, but the testimony of two of the other witnesses, Lieutenant Thatcher, a member of the Portland police, and W. E. Josh, an ex-member of the I. W. W.'s, proved that this was one of their principles.

Lieutenant Thatcher identified the pamphlets and magazines which were introduced as evidence, as being the same ones he found in the I. W. W. headquarters in Portland when they were searched by the police on the night of Nov. 11, 1919. There were a number of them and they were all I. W. W. literature which advocated sabotage, which is the term they use for wanton destruction of real and personal property, to gain their ends. The organization also distributes stickers, called "silent agitators," which are put up at different places as warnings to the boss, or that the men shall slow down on the job. W. E. Josh, an ex-member of the I. W. W.'s of Tacoma, Wash., testified that he had been a member of the organization for several months, and had become a "delegate", an official member whose duties are to enroll new members, collect fees, etc., and he said he got all the inside dope about the organization. To get a new member to join, the delegate tells him what his labor conditions will be made better, and then if he doesn't join he shows him some literature, which, by the way, does not advocate violence, and if he still refuses to join, the delegate threatens him. The latter process usually gets him, too. Josh said that after he had belonged to the organization for some time he found out that it was unlawful, and that it was a radical corrupt outfit and that he didn't want any more to do with it. In the latter part of October he severed his connections with it and in January of this year, he started out to work for the state on the different I. W. W. cases. Seems to like the job, too, and is making quite a profession of it, as he has attended a dozen different trials, as witness.

In the indictment against Hersche, he was charged with having joined the I. W. W.'s in Wheeler, in August, but he said he had not been in the county before November. When he came in on the train then he met M. R. Hanenkraft, who was returning from New York, and Rudolph Zweifel, of Mohler, known as "King of the Swiss." As all three men were Swiss they naturally talked of the old country. But what did seem rather queer was the fact that Mr. Hersche did not ask them a single question about the county, but instead, talked about being a vegetarian, and told them all about the vegetable diet. Hersche surely didn't care for a meat diet, for the joke of the trial was that he testified to having been fed "rotten" food all the time he had resided within the state walls of the county jail. E. T. Epplert was called and sworn in to testify that the food was good, but the court decided that it was unnecessary, and that Mr. Hersche ought to consider himself pretty lucky to get his eats for nothing, in this time of high prices. We think he ought to have been doubly glad, for he said they fed him on meat and potatoes. Just think of it folks, with potatoes so high that we have forgotten what they taste like!

The jury was out from Saturday noon until Monday morning, and was still unable to agree, so were dismissed, there being seven for conviction and five for acquittal. A new jury was chosen and the case re-tried.

There was no doubt in the minds of the jury men that Hersche was a rank I. W. W., but the point that they could not agree upon was whether he became a member in the State of Washington or Oregon. Judge Bagely ruling that if he joined the I. W. W. in Washington the jury would have to acquit him.

"The Indestructible Wife," at the Gem Theatre

"The Indestructible Wife," Allice Brady's latest Select Picture, will be seen on Sunday, May 16, at the Gem Theatre. The story deals with Charlotte, the strenuous bride of Jimmy Orday. She is athletically inclined while her husband is not, and he finds a great deal of trouble in keeping up with her. He meets Brandy, a professional athlete, whom he decides is the correct man to tire her out. Brandy falls in love with Charlotte. Jimmy decides to tame Charlotte as Petruchio did the Shrew. He kidnaps her and takes her to a boat-house. Brandy tries to rescue her but Charlotte loves Jimmy and refuses to be rescued. Tamed Charlotte and her tamer prepare to lead a less strenuous life.

Stirring Scenes in New Russell Film

The progress of banditry from the time when Indians held up the Western pony express in 1860 down to present days never was so well shown as in "The Lincoln Highwayman," the new William Fox feature taken from the great stage success by Paul Dickey, in which William Russell will be seen as star on Thursday, May 20, at the Gem Theatre.

After an Indian attack on the pony express, the second episode of this thrilling feature shows a lone highwayman robbing an old stagecoach. The third episode shows the Jesse James method of holding up a train. The action then shows the bandit of the present day, who holds up automobiles on the Lincoln Highway and relieves the passengers of their valuables.

But a pseudo-bandit in this case has a sympathetic reaction for his