paint right away with
FULLER PAINT

THE life, the value, the beauty of your home, depend on the care you give it. Weather-beaten and warped siding, cracks and open joints are forerunners of decay. Many property owners neglect to look for such signs, judging their houses and buildings by general appearances only. It is good business to make regular inspection of your property, and to use paint of good quality, which is the surest preventive of decay. Through the varying conditions of weather in all their extremes, FULLER Paint has proved both its preserving and beautifying qualities—a Pacific Coast Product for Pacific Coast requirements. 71 years of paint manufacturing experience are back of every brushful of FULLER Paint.

What the Editors Say.

America has a big portion of the Old World to supply with many of the "necessaries" of life. A short time ago a lot of us were wanting Uncle Sam to capture the markets of the world and he has, to our discomfort. And this is one of the principal causes for the high cost of many of our wants. Where is Wilson when the prices go up?—Williamina Times.

Members of the democratic party in Oregon are staging an exciting show with Chamberlain the chief attraction, and the newspapers of that political faith are not all in accord with the melody of the orchestra and the discord is truly heart rendering. "Why," says the Portland mouth-piece of the party, "this nasty personal fight certain Portland democrats are making on Senator Chamberlain?" To which the Eugene socialist of the same faith retorts: "It is evident that the democratic party has life enough left in it to attempt to stand for something more than a little personal organization for the sole purpose of keeping George Chamberlain continually in office." Selah!—Sheridan San.

Why does the government always seem to work to hit the retailer on this profiteering business? Retailers of sugar are only allowed two cents a pound profit on sugar, but the conscienceless speculators who brought up the supply and raised the price as high as they pleased are un molested, except a perfunctory order to investigate them, which gets no farther. The government agents are determined that the little country merchants shall not profiteer, but apparently are unable to see the big speculators or find out where the trouble lies. Speculators have grabbed the visible supply of both sugar and potatoes, and are putting the screws to the little merchants and the department of justice is unable to find them.—Telephone Register.

Opponents of the restoration of capital punishment are casting on unwarranted slur upon woman voters in confidently claiming that the women vote will be cast unanimously against the measure and all that is necessary to insure defeat is to line up sufficient men. The proposal to restore capital punishment is the outcome of thoughtful consideration which resulted in the conclusion that is the only means to adequately deal with certain atrocious crimes and prevent their repetition. The question is not one of sentiment, and in assuming that women voters are swayed by sentiment and not reason, the misguided people who hope to defeat the best and leave the state helpless to deal with such crimes as have horrified the people of late years, offer a gratuitous insult which is in no way grounded upon the result of votes of the women in the past. It goes without saying that they will study the problem as it is taken for granted their fathers, brothers and husbands do, and this study we believe will convince them that repugnant as the idea of taking human life may be, protection to society demands that Oregon follow the example of other states who after abolishing capital punishment later discovered that a mistake had been made and restored it.—Hillsboro Independence.

Inspiring Address of Methodist Bishops

No group of American citizens is better qualified to interpret and express the patriotic thought of the American people than are the 34 bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church. The public will therefore turn with interest to the address delivered on their behalf at the quadrennial conference of that great church in Des Moines Sunday. Affirming that foundations are distributed declare that—

"Everywhere free institutions are threatened. The church must not fail in the effort to preserve them. We can not give sympathy to bolshevism, whether of the red mob or the soft sentimentalist; to anarchy, whether of the street or the chair." "Between the radical and the reactionary; between the anarchist and the contender for special privilege, feudal brutality and domination of wealth; between radicalism and standpatism; between autocracy and anarchy; between tyranny of wealth and tyranny of strength, the church must this day speak in clear tones and minister to order and righteousness. Those who array class against class, man against man, in any manner are not friends of society." On the inspiring platform all the great Christian denominations of this country are in full accord. The sentiments here spoken by the Methodist bishops have been affirmed again and again by the bishops of the Episcopal church, the high prelates of the Catholic church and the leaders of other denominations.

It could not be otherwise, for Christianity and class hatred are incompatible, and the spirit of Christianity is irrevocably set, as the Methodist bishops so well express it, alike against the tyranny of wealth and the tyranny of strength.—Spokesman Review.

A Few Facts Worth Consideration From the Kansas City Star

Do you know the government spent from 1917 to 1920, 36 billion $18 million dollars?
Do you know the total appropriations from 1919 to 1917 were only 40 billions?
Do you know from 1917 to 1920 the government collected in taxes 13 billion $9 million dollars and borrowed 24 billion?
Do you know the government spent

150 million dollars building port terminals at Charleston, Norfolk and other places from which not a single ship sailed during the war?

Do you know the government spent 20 million dollars building a terminal up the river from Charleston which ships could not reach because the river was too shallow to float them?

Do you know the government spent 120 million dollars building nitrate plants, but did not produce a pound of nitrate for use during the war?

Do you know the government spent 100 million dollars on tanks, but that the first American tank reached France after the armistice?

Do you know the government spent one billion dollars on shells, but that only 17,000 American made shells reached our forces in France—about ten minutes' supply?

Do you know the government spent 117 million dollars on gas but that not a single American made gas shell was fired by the American forces in France?

Do you know the government spent 478 million dollars on guns but that only seventy-two American guns reached our forces at the front?

Do you know the government spent 7 million dollars on a naval training camp in Virginia after the armistice was signed?

Do you know the government spent 79 million dollars on a powder plant at Nitro, W. Va., and sold it for $8 million?

Do you know the government spent 100 million dollars for a nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala., and that Congress has been asked for additional appropriations to make this plant capable of producing fertilizer?

Do you know these items and others like them—cited by Representative E. E. Denson of Illinois in a recent speech—helped to explain the size of the expenditures for which the people are paying today and will continue to pay for years to come?

Candidate for Delegate to the Democratic National Convention, First District

VOTE FOR 26 X LEE M. TRAVIS, OF LANE COUNTY

Lee M. Travis of Eugene, one of the 1st district candidates for the San Francisco convention, has been widely known throughout Western Oregon for many years as one of the principal live wires of the University City. He was delegate to the Denver convention in 1908 and a member of the commission which selected the site for the Oregon log temple at the San Francisco exposition.—Oregon Voter.

The reason why a woman voter should be a Republican is exactly the reason why a man voter should be; namely, that the Republican party does a better job of running the country.

William Jennings Bryan is out in a statement taking another wallop at the administration's uncompromising stand on the peace treaty and the league of nations. He calls attention of democrats to the Georgia primaries, where, as he says, "less than one-third of the democrats stood for the treaty without reservations," and he holds these ought to be a warning. "In Nebraska," adds Mr. Bryan, "Senator Hitchcock's vote would not have been worth counting had he been compelled to rely on those who endorsed his attitude on the treaty."
