Coaxing You to Smile.

Not Her Idea of Heaven
The conversation around the long dinner table ended, as do most conversations nowadays, with the subject of spiritualism. The guests and the members of the family gave their opinions as to whether or not the dead could communicate with the living but it remained for "Sweet Sixteen" to present the only original thought on the subject.

"It's hadt enough now for me to keep up my correspondence," she said, "When I die I want to rest."

A Popuar Author
"It took me nearly ten years to learn that I couldn't write stories."

"I suppose you gave it up then?"
"No, no. By that time I had a reputation established and didn't have to."

With a Soft Answer
It was the sweet scent of the lilacs in the conservatory, the beauty of the young girl's hair, or the excellent champagne he had taken at supper that led his proposing in the security beneath a palm.

"It cannot be," she said. "I am unworthy of you."

"Oh, rubbish," she said. "It is true; it is true." And she sighed. "You are an angel," he said, ardently.

"No, no! you are wrong," said the girl. "I am vain, idle, silly, utterly unfit to be your helpmate through life."

He laughed lightly, then said in a soothing voice:
"Why, this is sheer madness. What sort of a wife do you think I ought to have?"

"A very wise, deliberate, practical woman," she replied, "one able to live on your salary."

Choice of Cards
"Will you send up a card, sir?" asked the maid servant of Bill, the cowboy, who came to see a friend in the West End.

"Will I sent up a card, did you say?" he inquired, as he thrust one of his hands into his overcoat pocket.

"Yes, sir," replied the maid.
"Is that the fashion here?" asked the cowboy.

Yes, sir; at least it's customary," explained the maid.

"Well, of course, if it's customary, I'll have to reg'late myself accord'ing. What suit does he want—heards, diamonds, clubs or spades? Here, take him up the blessed pack and let him have his choice!"

Scheme to Save Ink
The commercial traveller met Sandy, the canny one emerging from the Post Office.

"Ah, Sandy!" cried the commercial, "it is good to see you as prosperous a farmer as yourself—not forgetful of his country! You have been in the Post Office to buy war bonds?"

"Nay," said Sandy, easily.
"Oh! Then, perhaps you have put a little money in the savings bank, that it may help the country?"

"Nay."
"Well," said the traveller as a last resort. "I suppose that you have bought a postal order to send to some poor acquaintance?"

"Nay, I've been in to fill my fountain pen."

A Mean Employer
"Enery," observed Bill Awkens, "I 'ear as yer got a job."

"Yes," answered the sad 'Enery, "I 'ave got a job."

"Yer don't appear very 'appy about it, do yer?" asked Bill. "Ain't yer foreman a decent covv, then?"

"Oh, 'E's a mean, low-minded feller!" cried the outraged 'Enery. "'E's a dirty dog, 'e is. Got 'un like notions as 'ow gents like me should be treated. 'E 'ctually took the legs off the wheelbarrows so as a covv can't sit down 'un rest? Oh, 'e's a mean dog!"

One Reason for Failing
An artist was showing a young woman over his studio. After she had critically examined all the pictures, she remarked:

"I notice several sunsets among the artist, who was rather noted for his Bohemian habits, blushed a little at the question, and then stammered, but not a single sunrise. How's that?"

"You see, it's this way. To tell the truth, the reason I've never painted a sunrise is because I'm never up at that time."

A Dutchman's Narrow Escape.
A vav pack vest in love vav I vav vorking mit a vav on, I vav vone early morning going out mit de cows to milk, zav a pig cat. My, but dat vav a pig cat, and he vav shaving de chickens around de parnyard and every vone in a vav he vould stop and eat vone chicken.
