

A Continuous Performance

"I have not missed a single milking since I installed the EMPIRE Milking Machine May 23rd, 1915," writes E. F. Gentry of Wallace, Idaho.

We quote Mr. Gentry, not because his experience is anything unusual but because it is like that of all users of

It is very important in buying a milking machine to select one that has this record, for a milking machine is used twice a day, and one that is not so constructed that it will be constantly "on the job" means loss of milk, time and money.

EMPIRE Milking Machines are simple and efficient—gentle and natural in their action, and above all, they milk the SAME WAY EVERY DAY—more uniform in action than even the calf. They safeguard the condition of valuable cows.

Look in tillamook ALL the benefits they offer you. Write for Catalog and also ask for information regarding EMPIRE Cream Separators, Gasoline Engines and Electric Plants.

Bridge Collapses as Men Pass Over
The drawbridge over the Tillamook river, which was being repaired collapsed Tuesday. New pilings were being put in and the bents were on jacks. Two men, who are with the Government Bureau of roads, and are here sounding all the roads in the county, were walking over it, when the jacks buckled and the bridge, men and all went into the river.

Neither of the men were seriously hurt, but it was a miracle that both of them were not killed.

The structure is being repaired as the one which collapsed was merely temporary.

Gasoline Situation
The Standard Oil Co. refuses to give any information in regard to the future supply of gasoline. The allotment for July was 40,000 gallons of which 20,000 gallons have been received, and the remaining amount which was to have been here to last until the sixth of August, but they are unable to give any definite information as to when this remaining 20,000 gallons will arrive.

Some of the local dealers have a car coming from Texas and are expecting it in the near future, which will relieve the situation for a short time. They advise the people to be as conserving with gas as possible, and they also advocate the return to use of the card system, which was started in June.

It is impossible to understand the reason why the people should be kept in the dark about the shortage of gas. No one seems to know the reason, and the Standard Oil Co. refuses information, which, it seems, that the public has a perfect right to expect.

Death of G. D. Randall
We have to announce the death of G. D. Randall, one of the remaining pioneers of Tillamook county, which occurred on Tuesday, the funeral service being held on Wednesday.

As the obituary notice was not finished when we went to press, it will be given next week.

The following article appeared in Sunday's Oregonian:

Were you to go over to Tillamook you might find the original of the picture published herewith sitting out in front of his residence, which is located three miles east of the Tillamook courthouse. Should you hail him with a "hello" or "howdy," you would get back a welcoming response in a clear voice of an apparently middle-aged man, and yet Mr. Randall, the subject of this sketch passed his 97th milestone on the road of life on July 10.

Mr. Randall is at present visiting in Portland, or rather he is here with his daughter, Mrs. Henry Olds, and her husband, who are temporarily living on the Linton road near the Standard Oil plant. They came here upon recommendation of their physician for the benefit of the health of his daughter, but as she is recovering rapidly they will probably soon return to Tillamook.

I spent a couple of hours in the Olds home in questioning the old veteran, who was lying on a lounge suffering from the heat, for the thermometer was backing and filling in the upper 90's. But he is as spry and his memory as clear as many a man in the meridian of life, and if he does not meet with an accident he seems destined to live to get well past the century mark. He was born in 1823, near Pittsburg, and lived there with his parents until he was about 6 years old. James Monroe was president, serving his second term, at that time. Only four presidents preceded Monroe—Washington, Adams, Jefferson and Madison. He has lived thru 23 full-year presidential terms and a part of two more. Only eight terms preceded his birth. There are but few persons, perhaps no other in Oregon, who can look back to so early a day in the history of our county.

First Farm Near Chicago
When I asked Mr. Randall how old he was when he left the Pittsburg neighborhood, he replied, "Big enough to fight with bear for a pig." He explained by saying a pig got out of the yard and he followed it into the brush and was pulling it back by the tail when a bear appeared and captured the pig! He was taken to a place near Erie, on the lake, when he was 6 or 7 years old, then to Springfield, in 1834. He had five brothers and four sisters, "I was the middle kid," he said. His father followed farming generally. When Mr. Randall was 21 years old he went to farming 40 miles south of Chicago, and was married there. One child was born to this union. He lived for brief periods in Illinois and Wisconsin and in 1852 went to Iowa, settling near Raceon Forks, with the snow two feet deep. With two of his brothers they were joined by Bill, George, and Joseph Perkins and all started for Oregon. They had several yoke of oxen, three spans of horses, a hack and wagons. No others joined them on the trip.

No reaching The Dalles in the fall of 1852 they crossed the north bank and came down as far as a point opposite the Sandy river, where they crossed to the south side and came down to the little hamlet of Portland. Joseph Perkins bought some property in Portland located in the woods about where the Meir & Frank store now stands. There was a small house on it and Mr. Randall started a little hotel, but he only ran it until the following spring. He had worked more or less as a carpenter and obtained a job with the government to work on the new buildings at Fort Dalles, and from there to Whitman station, then to the Grand Ronde, in Yamhill county. He also assisted in putting Indians on the reservations at Tygh valley and The Dalles.

Sawmill Is Started
He then undertook a new role and went to the Sutherlin valley, on the Calapooa creek, and started a sawmill. In the spring of 1861 he went over to Tillamook, but returned to the valley, near Lafayette, and farmed until 1868, when he returned to Tillamook, got some land, upon a part of which he still lives, and has been there ever since, a matter of 52 years. His second wife died, there in 1880, leaving four girls and one boy, all of whom are living in Tillamook county, and also his son, William by his first wife. He divided his 200 acres recently into five 40-acre tracts, giving a tract to each of his daughters as follows: Isabel, now Mrs. Myron Trowbridge; Laura, Mrs. Jack Rupp; Eunie, Mrs. Albert Phelps; Mary, Mrs. Henry Olds, and 40 to his son, Cyrus, and all are living on the tracts and all in the dairy business, as they have been since the elder Randall went there in 1868. At that time there were but few settlers in the county (only five when he went there first in 1861). None of them had more than five or six cows.

All of the Randall kin are Jersey fancies save one—Jack Rupp, "who is a dorned Holstein," said the old gentleman as he laughed heartily.

Mr. Randall thinks his general health and longevity are due largely to the climate of Tillamook. "I like Portland and all parts of Oregon, but Tillamook is the place for long life, happiness and prosperity. I would have been dead a score of years ago, more than that, had I lived in the Willamette valley. But I will live maybe to be 150 in glorious Tillamook," he said.

Chasman Cummings boasted at Chicago that despite all the talk about criminal incompetency and graft no deserving Democrat has been indicted for his conduct during the war. Perhaps that's because the prosecuting department is in the hand of the administration, and may, too, it can't decide whether the war department officials are responsible for many of the stunts pulled off during the war should be jailed or committed to institutions for feeble minded.

To Democratic politicians are horrified by the charges that some people have spent their own money in primary campaigns. Their thought is that the only ethical way in which to run political work done is to use federal jobs, contracts and others as persuaders and let the people foot the bills.

Try One Brunswick Then Decide

The best way to know for yourself the superiority of the Brunswick Tire is to buy one and compare it.

That is, if the very name of Brunswick is a sufficient proof to you, as it is to most men, that here is an extraordinary tire.

Thousands of men who have known the name of Brunswick for years, realize that a Brunswick Tire has to be the best—for a mediocre product could never bear this historic name.

Long before the Overland Trail became famous, the House of Brunswick was established. It was one of the chief users of rubber for fifty years before automobiles came into use.

No concern with such a history could afford to offer anything but the best. For reputations are built slowly, but can be quickly destroyed.

This is a practical guarantee that Brunswick Tires offer more than the usual, yet at no added cost.

Get your first one now. You'll not be satisfied until you have ALL Brunswicks.
