Some Things the Editors Discussed.

The annual meeting of the Oregon Editorial Association at Astoria this year was something more than a junketing trip and to talk "shop" for the editors seriously discussed matters that are of vital importance to the state of Oregon. It will be noticed on all questions of state interest the editors took a decided stand, none being on the fence or middle-of-the-road.

That of most importance was the Non-Partisan League, which had been investigated by George W. Alken, one of the members of the Oregon Editorial Association, and he put the editors wise as to the workings of that organization from the time that it was first organized until the present time. After hearing Mr. Alken it seemed strange that thousands of farmers could be humbugged and induced to part with the money for a band of political tricksters, who had come into power in North Dakota by simply pulling the wool over the eyes of the farmers. Mr. Alken thought the reason of the success of the Non-Partisan League in that state was on account of the large number of socialists and the foreign element in North Dakota. Mr. Alken looked up every phrase of the Non-Partisan movement, and showed how the legislature was packed and controlled by three persons who were not members of the state legislature; how they capitalized the merchandise stores with large amounts of money, and then used the greater amount of the money for propaganda and to pay workers; how they employed and paid organizers; how they ran the banks and loaned the money; how they obtained control of the newspapers, and a great many other matters. Mr. Alken informed the editors that if the Non-Partisan League was going to make an effort to obtain control of Oregon, for he had been told this by one of the officers of the party. This proved true, for it was stated that paid agitators were now working with some success in some parts of the state. It was the editors of Oregon who opposed the Non-Partisan League a few years ago, and now being better informed went on record as opposed to it. Mr. Alken said that if the Non-Partisan League did not have an issue that it would make one. He believed it was up to the editors more than anyone else to prevent the Non-Partisan League getting into power in Oregon.

The measure that is to be voted upon next November to fix the interest on money, probably, was the next matter of importance. The measure was denounced and it was shown that if it passed it would drive money out of the state. Like the previous resolution, the editors unanimously went on record as opposed to it. Some of the editors thought it was about time to do away with some of the provisions of the initiative and referendum, for it gave cranks, agitators, single taxers, Non-Partisan League and person with a grouse or want to spite somebody an opportunity to initiate some measure and submit it to the people to be voted up. This was done when Jackson of the Oregon Journal, initiated two bills that fixed the price of legal advertisements for newspapers out side of Portland. There is no difference in the Jackson measures and the bill to fix the legal rate of interest on money. But our Oregon System makes it possible for some evil disposed person to initiate bills to fix the price that shall be paid attorneys, doctors, dentists, architects and the professions, and for their services, as well as to fix the price of farmers' and dairymen's product. Probably the measure to fix the legal rate of interest will open the eyes of the people as to what can be accomplished under our boasted initiative and referendum, and we want to say this before we close that should the Non-Partisan League ever get a strong hold in Oregon it will work the Oregon System to perfection, for it is just the kind of law that will help them carry out their purposes.

The tourists travel was another very interesting subject discussed, and the editors were given first hand information by those who are engaged in this work. It certainly set the editors who had not given much thought to this matter to thinking when told that the tourist crop was the best money making crop in the state. They were told and with a great deal of truth, that the northwest could not be excelled for beautiful scenery and delight weather. To obtain this great crop of tourists from all parts of the world the highways must be put in first-class shape for auto travel and more hotels built for the accommodation of visitors. In regard to the shortage of newsprint paper, the editors took a hawk at the Sunday dailies, contending that they should be confined to 60 pages on Sundays and 24 pages on other days.

As to the increase in freight rates the editors endorsed the northwest rivers and harbors convention and favored the establishment of printing departments in schools. These were some of the important things the editors discussed that are of importance to the state, which goes to prove that the Oregon Editorial Association is fully alive to the interests of the state.

Mr. Harding evidently is not enamored to this mushy internationalism which would look after every country except the United States.

At the conference between President Wilson and Governor Cox, it was the same as usual, the President made a Cox, like all the others, would be head and said, "Those are my sentiments too."

Rev. Porter, of the First Christian church of Salem, with his wife and child, also Mr. and Mrs. R. Latham and daughter, of Minneapolis, Mo., were in Tillamook this week. They spent a few days at the beaches, also visiting at the home of Rev. H. E. Tucker, who is an old friend of theirs. The party left for Salem today.

Editor E. E. Brodie and family of Oregon City, after attending the Oregon Editorial Association meeting at Astoria, returned to Rockaway Sunday. Mr. Brodie has made several trips to Tillamook this year, and every time he comes here he appreciates our climate and good roads, and he doesn't forget to say a good word for Tillamook and the good work the County Court is doing. Mr. Brodie is vice-president of the National Editorial Association, and is one of the live boosters for Oregon.

Mrs. Hubbard's surgical hospital was opened last week, and in the last eight days she has had several patients, three undergoing major operations and one a minor operation. All of them are improving rapidly. Two graduate nurses are employed, one from Seattle and one from Portland, and all the equipment is of the best. It has been reported through an error that the hospital belonged to Drs. Shearer and Crank, but we wish to correct this by stating that it is Mrs. Hubbard's and that she will care for the patients from all doctors.

Jokes on Piper and Stanfield.

At the banquet given by the Astoria Chamber of Commerce to the Oregon Editors, there were some amusing stunts pulled off in "grapevine" telegrams.

One was a telegram addressed to E. E. Piper, editor of the Oregonian, who attended the Democratic convention at San Francisco, which read: "Kindly return the corkerew you borrowed from me at San Francisco. I need it to open my campaign.—Governor Cox."

Another was addressed to R. N. Stanfield, who is the Republican nominee for U. S. Senator, and read: "You'd better go back to shearing sheep. Not necessary to make a goat of yourself.—Senator George E. Chamberlain."

Both the men were present at the meeting and enjoyed the jokes.

Presbyterian Church.

Sunday School 10 a. m. Morning worship 11 a. m. subject, "The Powerful Weak."

Evening worship, 8 p. m., Subject: "Bolsheviki Religion." The Red Peril of Bolshevism is menacing down the steeps of Russia into Poland and Europe. It promises a new civilization based upon freedom, but is the greatest menace of true civilization. Is it a religion? It is.

Everybody always welcome. Allan A. McRea, Minister.

A. O. U. News

Bro. M. D. Reading has taken time to himself a wife, we extend congratulations, and trust some of the younger members will take notice, that Bro. Reading was at lodge just the other evening.

A. H. Coe and D. A. Steinbach were visited on their trip to the coast, and several members were introduced to the party.

The Grand appointed new Degree members for balance of the year, see copy, and bring in new candidates to the captain's table, we have a chance to show you how proficient they can be in these important positions.

The Spokane Noble Grand is right there, and always near the gateway drop at a snail's pace.

The Spokane cop is now enrolled as an O. U. member, and even at that, the degree work did not slow down, so we are going to speed up the lodge work. Come and help us.

Bro. J. J. Senechal, of Butteville Lodge and J. H. Crocker of Mt. Hebo Lodge visited us last Tuesday eve.

Bro. Paul Martin started for North Dakota, Wednesday, to look after some business, he will endeavor to send out his interests in a threatening outfit and also his grain ranch, then will return to Tillamook. We wish him success and a speed, so that we shall miss him from our lodge room.

The Secretary leaves Sunday for Esperance, N. Y. and expects to be absent from 4 to 6 weeks. Son Kenneth will go along for company, and incidentally view some of the old playgrounds of his dad's boyhood days, some trip for Kenneth but it takes his dad to boast of Tillamook O. U. fellows.

While absent several of the boys have promised to keep the Noble Grand E. Heusser in touch with all events regarding the lodge members, he in turn will see that the papers get it in time to publish. We expect a good bunch of news for a few weeks, and for their endeavors the secretary has promised to send along something gleaned from other lodges to let you know, the absent, not forgotten. Expect to visit lodges at every opportunity.

Several Bros. and sisters visited Bay City Rebekah lodge last meeting. Bro. S. A. Broadhead has consented to act as secretary during my absence, he will see that you get your receipts for all moneys paid in so do not allow yourselves to become delinquent, you will find him ready and willing to accommodate you.

Peter Schrauz is again in the hospital for a few days, so he can have needed attention to his side, and Neilson is on the mend, still he sometime before he can milk 25 or 30 cows.

About 50 members at lodge last meeting. Something special at camp next Thursday, Aug. 26. They call it a "Smoker". All camp members come.

As usual I. O. O. F., Rebekah and Encampment at 8.

Church services next Sunday as usual. 10 a. m. Sunday School, 11 a. m. preaching. A letter from the Rev. Richard Schuetz states that he will be home to hold services next Sunday and hopes that all members of his congregation will make it a point to be present at the first meeting after the vacation.

Reformed Church.

The coming Sunday will be observed as Rally Day. After a brief respite the work of the church and Sunday School will be resumed with renewed zeal. Sunday School at 10 a. m. Public worship at 11 o'clock. The pastor, W. G. Lienkaemper, will speak from the text: "We know what we worship." John 4. 22. At the close of the services the members of the church and Sunday School will go to a shady retreat on Fawcett Creek, to partake of a basket luncheon. All members and friends are cordially invited.

What About Reducing Fire Insurance Rates?

Tillamook City went to considerable expense in purchasing a fire engine and complying with the requests of the underwriters, and the business men having been informed the insurance rates would be reduced if the city put in a fire engine, it is now up to the underwriters to give the city a new rating. Other cities have been rated and a reduction of 20 to 30 per cent made. Why delay giving Tillamook City a new rating and a reduction in fire insurance rates? Or was it a "hot air" propaganda that was doled out to the citizens? Time will tell.

Nazarene Church Services.

There will be special services at the Church of the Nazarene next Sunday. Miss Louise Robinson will be the speaker in the morning. Miss Robinson expects to sail as missionary for Africa next October, and will speak on her future work. She is a graduate of Nampa College, and an earnest pleading speaker.

Mrs. Whiteside, field secretary of Nampa Missionary Hospital and Sanitarium will speak in the evening. Mrs. Whiteside will represent the work of that institution which is the only one of its kind in the Northwest.

A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Movement on Foot to Improve Coast Harbors

The shipping problems of the Pacific Northwest are becoming acute and demand the serious thought of manufacturers, merchants, farmers and in fact all who must avail themselves of shipping facilities. The high freight rates in the past have worked seriously against the Northwest shipper, and now with the new increase effective on the 25th of this month, the whole matter is presenting a problem the seriousness of which can only be contemplated.

The railroads are handicapped on account of the lack of equipment, and while striving to give service are yet unable to handle the situation either in the matter of transporting products and raw materials to and from this section or to provide a rate that seems satisfactory to the Northwest shipping public.

If there was ever a time in the history of the Northwest when the business men should be alive to the need of the development of maritime shipping and cooperation among the shippers of such development or to consider seriously these problems which mean so much to the business interests of this section, it is now. A relief for merchants and industries of the Northwest can be secured through the development of streamship of this part of the coast, giving the advantage of both rail and water transportation.

The future prosperity of the Northwest business action. The lumber industry is dependent upon the ability of manufacturers to make prompt and expeditious shipments of lumber to eastern markets and other trade centers. Farmers must have better facilities for marketing their grain, livestock, and other produce. The life of our industries depend to a great extent on the ability to secure the cheapest rates combined with prompt service for the shipment of raw products from the coast and for the distribution of their manufactured articles if they are to compete with other industrial centers of the world.

The Oregon State Chamber of Commerce has discussed this matter thoroughly with C. W. Hodson of Portland, Oregon's representative on the Rivers and Harbors Congress, and Mr. Hodson states that it is highly necessary that immediate and drastic action be taken to improve our harbors and increase our shipping facilities if the Northwest expects to keep pace with other sections of the United States. The biggest men in this Northwest territory are a unit in believing that something must be done.

The Oregon State Chamber of Commerce has assumed the responsibility of starting a movement that should offer relief. To discuss the situation and outline plans for a solution of this problem, a convention has been called to meet in Portland, October 4th and 5th, 1920. Present at this convention will be representatives of the Northwest State in Congress, a representative of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, delegates from all of the railroads and shipping lines of the Northwest, delegates from the port bodies, commercial organizations, wholesalers, industrial and many other prominent business men who are interested in the development of our territory. The call for this Convention is being sent to these various organizations and individuals and an invitation extended to them to be present and take part in the deliberations.

Congress convenes in Washington, D. C. on the second Monday in December, the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, the second week in December. It is desired, as a result of the work of this Convention to have definite plans outlined for presentation to those two bodies. Only by the full cooperation of those interested can results be achieved. While this is a long term project, it is one that the shipper it nevertheless should demand the interest of very Northwest resident because in the end it is the consumer who pays the bills.

Great Secrets of Nature Hidden From the Eyes of Even the Keenest of Mankind.

The queen of Sheba came to ask Solomon questions to test his wisdom. One question, tradition says, was as follows: "Here is a large diamond which I wish to put on a necklace, on one side a straight hole is drilled to the center of the stone—on another side a straight hole is drilled to the center at right angles to the first—how shall I string the diamond?"

Solomon took the gem, sent a servant to bring him a little slender worm from a bush near by, attached a silk thread to the worm and let it crawl through the crooked hole, handed back the diamond with a salamu and said: "Sticks, how easy!"

Mrs. Sheba then said, "I have here a vital which I wish filled with water, but the liquid must not be taken from the waters that are upon the earth, nor under the earth, nor in the firmament above the earth."

Solomon turned to a servant and whispered a command. The servant mounted a horse standing near, rode him two miles at full run, brought him back reeking with sweat. Solomon took the vital, caught the sweat in it, handed it to the queen with a bow and said, "Come again."

She then said, "I have a goose at home, and when it eats grass, the grass turns to feathers on its back. I have a sheep and the grass it eats turns to wool on its back. I have a cow and when she eats grass, it turns to hair on her back—how do you explain that, Mr. Solomon?" And Mr. Solomon could only strike the table with his fist and shout, "This meeting is adjourned."—Charles D. Merrill.

Important Discovery.

For many years Mr. William W. Ellsworth, connected with the Century Magazine, and that brought him into contact with many interesting people. In his book of reminiscences, "A Golden Age of Authors," he tells an amusing anecdote of Timothy Cole, the engraver.

Cole is a simple man, says Mr. Ellsworth, of great kindness, who has had at various times some interesting stories about four years ago, when Horace Fletcher was just beginning to publish his theories, I made some good-natured fun of them, and described the visit of guests to my house while my family was endeavoring to Fletcherize and the impatience of the guests when they did not have enough to eat. Some friend sent my screw to Cole, then in Belgium, who took it very seriously. He wrote me of his great interest in food and gravely informed me of a discovery that he had made—that the color of the skin was affected by food. He was accustomed to eat for a long time only one kind of food, and once he went swimming with his son, who suddenly cried out: "Why, father, you're turning green!"

"Sure enough," wrote Mr. Cole, "I looked at my body and observed a green tinge." "The spinach," I said, "for I had been making my sole diet of spinach for six months. I must change my food!"

Whereupon he ate beets, and at the end of another six months found his body in a healthy, ruddy state, which he felt was owing to the beets.

Sheep on the Hillside.

Sometimes as you ride along through the mountains, you will see a whole side of the hill covered with what looks like gray rocks. But after you watch it awhile you see that it is moving, and everyone knows that rocks would be pretty funny things if they started to move around all by themselves. These "rocks" are really sheep and they are having a fine time cutting little grass blades in among the sagebrush. Over at one side of the flock is usually a splendid shepherd dog, who is always smiling. At least he seems to be smiling, because he has his mouth open just as though he were. He is watching to see that the little lambs and larger sheep do not wander too far away from the flock.—Christian Science Monitor.

Valuable Motion Pictures.

Motion pictures of construction work in which a large public building appears to arise from the ground like magic, being completed in the ten minutes' duration of the film, are being shown before various engineering societies by government representatives. The structure is the industrial building of the United States bureau of standards, and the pictures were made by exposing a short length of film every day during the ten months of work on the building. The effect of running these short exposures together in a single picture is an amazing condensation of time, making incidentally a highly instructive and intensive study of modern building methods.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Reasonable Conclusion.

"What made you think this man was going to marry you?"

"Your honor," replied the stage beauty, who was using a millionaire for a breach of promise, "I accepted a notecar from him, furs, diamonds, pearls and trifes of that sort as a matter of course. Such gifts didn't necessarily mean that he was engaged, but when he told me the combination to his wine cellar I considered that equivalent to a proposal of marriage."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Women in War Work.

It has been estimated that in England the war work for women drew 400,000 recruits from domestic work and dress-making.

We may rejoice that the era of the tyrant himself in the White House will pass before the idec of next March. While the Democratic party has taken over the Wilson policies it has jettisoned Wilson and we can discuss policies and not personalities.
