Keep away from Nebraska when halitones are falling. It is reported that one man had his skull fractured by a halitone.

If you vote for Senator Harding, vote also for R. N. Stanfield for U. S. Senator, for that's the proper political stunt for republicans to pull off.

The County Fair board were good guessers. Three months ago they selected the only few days fine weather in September to hold the county fair.

If you are in favor of Senator Harding and intend to vote for him, do the right thing in supporting him. Vote for Stanfield, the republican nominee for U. S. Senator.

We don't see that the republican party should trouble about sending out speakers, for Governor Cox's speeches are doing the democratic party a whole lot of harm and the republican party a lot of good. Go to it, Governor.

Just imagine how this talk about campaign contributions and corruption funds must strike horror to the souls of such lily-white politicians as Boss Murphy and Tom Taggart, who nominated the Democratic national candidate at French Lick several days before they told the Democrats at San Francisco what was going to be!

S. W. Paxson, who has leased the Cloverdale Enterprise, was in the city on Friday, and by the looks of that newspaper he is a wonderful improvement over his predecessor. We do not want to discourage Mr. Paxson, but for the last 25 years those who have endeavored to run a newspaper in that part of the county have been ready to quit after a short period.

This is taken from the Christian Work: In the 1916 campaign, when Cox and Willis again ran against each other, in every saloon in Dayton, according to the stage car conductor who was my informant, were posted pictures of the two men, with "I am for prohibition," under that of the republican nominee and "I am for the licensed saloon," under that of the Democrat. In that campaign according to the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, Mr. Cox was elected because of a twelve hour appeal to Ohio saloon keepers in his behalf by the Ohio Liquor League.

This is the advice the Fire Marshal's Bulletin gives to editors:

"You have the greatest opportunity for doing valuable work in your community in helping to save life and property from destruction by fire. The public must be educated to these things and the press is in a position to do a great share. Publish some facts concerning the fire loss, and how it can be prevented, endeavor to impress upon your readers that fire prevention is for their own benefit as well as for the benefit of our country, and is an obligation upon them as citizens."

We heartily coincide with the Bulletin. After the appalling catastrophe at Kalamath Falls it should open the eyes of people to like conditions prevailing in most of our large cities where there are fire trap hotels, and fire trap buildings, here and everywhere. The safest way is to order them condemned and pulled down. Why not make a survey of Tillamook city and ascertain the names of those who occupy fire trap buildings. It would surprise most people to know the large number of fire trap buildings there are in this city and what a menace they are to the whole business center of the city.

Attorney C. W. Barrick has filed a petition with the secretary of state as an "Independent" candidate for district attorney, and quite a few of our citizens have asked the snap shot man what he thought about it. Why they should appeal to the snap shot man we do not know, for we believe in a person being loyal to the party they belong to. Mr. Goyn was not very anxious to run again, but by the unanimous endorsement of the Tillamook Bar Association he made the race and won out in the primary election. He is now the regular republican nominee for district attorney and republicans should play fair and vote for him. That's why the snap shot man is in favor of Mr. Goyn. The reason that the republican party of Oregon failed to elect U. S. Senators and governors is because republicans will not play fair and resort to "knifing" their own candidates. Mr. Barrick is a new man, having recently come here to practice law and from what we can gather several persons who are dissatisfied with Mr. Goyn, succeeded in inducing him to make the run, or, to be more correct, become their "agent". We are not going to say one word to not help feeling that he ever injured him in a business way, for we only wish him success, but we cannot help feeling that he acted in judgment when he consented to run for district attorney, against a person, who had the endorsement of the bar association and is the choice of the republican party in this county. Considering that Mr. Barrick claims to be a republican and ready to go on the stump for Mr. Harding, the snap shot man thinks he should support every nominee on the republican ticket and help to elect them, for Senator Harding won the nomination for president in the same honorable way that Mr. Goyn won the nomination for district attorney. Probably Mr. Barrick thought that by making the race it would help to bring his name before the public, and that it would be a good advertising stunt, and if this is the case we quite agree with him for it pays to advertise, especially when it doesn't cost much to obtain publicity. Anyway, we have a very poor opinion of persons posing as "Independent" candidates after affiliating with one of the two political parties. It may be good form for a democrat, but, in our judgment, a mighty poor policy for a young man just entering upon a business and political career to pull off that kind of a stunt. Republicans expect that a republican newspaper be consistent, and that is the reason why the Headlight has consistently supported the republican party and republican candidates. We want to say that it has been a better friend of the republican party than a number of republicans have been to the Headlight and in supporting it. So why not apply the same rule to the republicans as is applied to a republican newspaper? The snap shot man is quite aware that several candidates on the republican ticket and other influential republicans have supported newspapers that "kept us out of war," and we have a just cause to complain. A few snap shots along that line will be perfectly in order. So Mr. Barrick is not the only republican who is not playing the political game fair and square, as we will show later.

"There is not a man within the sound of my voice," Governor Cox said in a recent speech, "but who has more money in his pockets or in the bank today than he had eight years ago." Well, the man who hasn't more coin in his kick today than he had eight years ago couldn't live out the day—at the present cost of food and raiment.

Mrs. Otis H. Cureton, vice-chairman of the Oklahoma state committee, says "Oklahoma is thoroughly disgusted with Democratic administration. This will be the first election at which its women may vote, and they are going to vote the Republican ticket. For the first time in Oklahoma a woman is running for Congress. She is Miss R. Robinson, from the Second district. Five men are running against her, but she has a fine chance for success."

To sum up the congressional achievements of Mr. Cox: during his less than four years in the lower house he introduced 931 bills, of which no less than 916 contemplated the granting of pensions to some one or other, six or seven were for public buildings, several were relatively inconsequential, and one solitary bill, to make trade agreements with foreign nations, betrayed the faintest trace of a constructive mind. It is almost to be feared that with Cox as president the Republicans of the country would have to straggle gravel to pay the pension allotted to all deserving Democrats.

SCRAWLED BY GREAT POET?

Signature of William Shakespeare, Believed Genuine, Found on Wall in Hampton Court.

The discovery of the signature of William Shakespeare, scrawled years ago on the wall of the "haunted gallery" of Hampton Court, has just been made in London. Shakespeare authorities pronounce it authentic.

The disclosure was made when Ernest Law, the court antiquarian, was directing the renovations. On the wall of the old retiring room he found, after cleaning it, the letters "S" followed by illegible letters, resembling "Shakespeare," and beneath the rough sketch of a hand and the date 1605.

It is a matter of history that the Shakespeare company visited the palace at the date set down and played "Hamlet" before the then King Christian of Denmark. The company dressed in the "haunted gallery," near the great hall where the play was enacted. The gallery, according to ancient tradition, is haunted by the ghost of Catherine Howard, one of Henry VIII's six wives, who was imprisoned there. History tells that she escaped from confinement while the king was praying in his private chapel, and that her flight was discovered by the court guards, who dragged her screaming to the king, interrupting his devotions. It was long said that Catherine night-walked the gallery, shrieking—"Tore to Globe."

RELY ABSOLUTELY ON NILE

Without the River's Annual Inundation Egypt Would Be Literally a Barren Waste.

Usually on June 15 the inundation of the Nile commences, the greatest height being at the autumnal equinox, after which the waters subside until the following April. The great advantages which Egypt derives from the annual rise of the river and saving of the country from barrenness, has caused the Nile to be known by the inhabitants as the most holy river, they believing that it draws its source from Paradise.

In former days it had its appointed priests, festivals and sacrifices, and if its rising were delayed by a single day they took the most beautiful maiden they could find and dressing her richly, drowned her in the waters as a victim to turn away the god's anger and merit his favors. The Egyptians abolished this cruel sacrifice, substituting one less barbarous, they threw into the river a letter in which it was commanded that the waters rise if it were the will of God.

It has been stated that the quality of the Nile water is such that it is highly extolled for drinking purposes and no matter how long kept it does not become impure.

First Steamboat in West.

The first steamboat on the western waters was the Orleans, built in 1811 at Pittsburgh by Robert Fulton, under the firm name of Fulton & Livingston, his partner being Chancellor R. Livingston of New York. It arrived at Louisville, Ky., in October, destined for New Orleans, but the river being too low for its passage over the falls, it plied between Louisville and Cincinnati until early in December, when it descended the river and entering the Mississippi encountered at New Madrid, Mo., the earthquake of December 11, which formed Reelfoot lake in Tennessee, and the lakes in Arkansas, opposite and above Memphis, which remain now. The boat was repaired and reached New Orleans December 29. It remained South, plying between New Orleans and Natchez until July, 1814, when it was wrecked and sunk.

Blessing the Alpine Ropes.

Every summer, at the beginning of the climbing season in the Swiss mountains, a solemn service is held among the guides, many of whom are godly men who know they take their lives in their hands when they ascend the Alps. So they bring their ropes with them and lay them at the foot of one of the mountains. Old and new ropes are piled in a heap, and then they are blessed by the pastor. Prayer is offered that the old ropes may still bear the strain safely and that the new ropes may prove equal to all the stress placed upon them. The guides are reminded of the mercy of God that in their daily ascents they may be kept safe and that they may succor the travelers who trust in them.—F. H. Chelley in "Stories for Talks to Boys."

Egypt Raised Cotton in 200 B. C.

Cotton has been grown in Egypt since 200 B. C., but it was not until a hundred years ago that Jumel, a French engineer, suggested the introduction of the commercial varieties. In 1822 the famous American sea-land cotton was the first sown. Five years later a Brazilian variety was introduced. The two strains were mingled and from them came the famous "Ashmoff" plant and the still finer "Mutaff," which is one of the most productive cottons in the world.

Whisky Called "Water of Life."

The art of distilling liquors is first mentioned by Arabians, an Arabian physician who lived in the tenth century. Whisky, a potable spirit distilled from cereal grains, probably originated in Ireland, and its Celtic name was usquebaugh (water of life) afterward contracted to usquebaugh and then to whisky. It was known as usquebaugh in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries both in Ireland and Scotland.

RESEMBLES THE HUMAN HAND

Skin of Bat's Wing Stretches From the Finger Tips to Ends of Toes and Nails.

The wing of a bat is a most wonderful instance of adaptation to a special end, for it is nothing but a greatly modified forelimb or hand.

If you spread out your hand and imagine the four fingers grown enormously long, while the thumb remains short and stumpy and that the skin between the fingers has also been stretched until it extends from tip to tip of the fingers and on along the side of the body to join the hind foot, you will have a good idea of the structure of a bat's wing; it is simply a much exaggerated hand.

The elongated bones serve, like the ribs of an umbrella, to keep the skin stretched and taut when the owner is in flight.

When the bat alights it doubles up its "hands," the skin falls in wrinkly folds and using its thumb joints as fulcrum it is able to run about almost as quickly as a mouse.

The skin of the wings not only joins the hind limbs but extends from them to the tail, thus making the rudder with which the bat can steer when flying, and when the tail is brought up beneath the body, forms a bag or receptacle which is of use to its owner.

CREDITS TREES WITH SENSE

Scientist Declares They Possess at Least Three Which Also Belong to Human Race.

The curator of the British Gulana museum, James Rodway, who is an eminent botanist, declares that plants possess at least three of our five senses—feeling, taste and smell—and that certain tropical trees smell water from a distance, and will move straight toward it.

But trees not in the tropics can do as well. A resident of an old Scotch mansion found the waste pipe from the house repeatedly choked. Lifting the slabs in the basement paving, he discovered that the pipe was completely encircled by poplar roots. They belonged to a tree that grew some thirty yards away on the opposite side of the house.

Thus the roots had moved steadily toward the house, and had penetrated below the foundation and across the basement until they reached their goal, the waste pipe, 150 feet away. Then they had pierced a cement jointing and worked their way in long, tapering lengths inside the pipe for a considerable distance beyond the house. There seems something almost human in such unerring instinct and perseverance in surmounting obstacles.—New York Post.

Sheep-Raising Industry.

Sheep raising is perhaps the oldest of all industries, for it was practiced even before agriculture. Wool is a product of cultivation or domestication, for there are no wild animals which closely resemble the wool bearing sheep. Floyd W. Parsons, in the Saturday Evening Post, says that with the discovery that cloth could be made from wool came an effort to improve the fleece by selection and breeding. The early Romans were most successful in this pursuit, and their endeavors along this line resulted in developing a fleece of great fineness. After the conquest of the Iberian peninsula Rome introduced sheep into Spain, where they so greatly improved the native flocks that even during Roman supremacy Spanish wool led the world's markets, a prestige held for many centuries.

Telltale Faces.

"Nature seems to decide in advance, by face and gesture, what many people are best fitted for." That is the theory of Dr. Henry Chellver, who holds that by studying the faces of children, parents and teachers may obtain valuable guidance as to their future careers. The following list is a brief summary of some of his deductions: Triangular full face—Essentially a mental type. Unromantic, strenuous, eats little; thinks much. Feels little, sleeps little. Usually makes good accountant or engineer. Round full face—Essentially a vital character. Easy, untroubled, easy going; sleeps and eats all the time, does little work. Makes usually a good mathematician. Pointed profile (such as the Chamberlain family)—Uncompromising, inclined to procrastination.

In Old New York.

Chelsea, in the neighborhood of Twenty-third street and North river, New York city, was the home of Clement C. Moore, who wrote the child-mood classic, "Twas the Night Before Christmas." One of the admirable old houses of Chelsea is that where dwelt Edwin Forrest, the actor. It is at 436 West Twenty-second street, a substantial-looking square fronted house, with a door of a great single panel. On the spot where the New York city hall stands, George Washington paraded his little army on a July day in 1776, and with grave solemnity a document was read to them that had just been received from Philadelphia, and which was forever to be known as the Declaration of Independence.

Largest Bible.

The largest Bible in the world is more than five feet two inches high and three feet six inches wide. When opened it measures three feet ten inches across. It is intended for use in a special religious movement.

happenings of Twenty Years Ago.

We have on our files copies of some of the next issues of the Headlight, and we have taken some of the local items from the issue of Sept. 27th, 1900, which was published after the present editor had been here for two years. Each week we will publish a few happenings taken from these old issues.

L. G. Gilmore, president of the InDEPENDENCE and Monmouth Water and Electric Light system, was in the city this week for the purpose of seeing what the prospects were for a like system in this city. He has been conferring with C. Thayer, of the electric light company, and W. H. Cooper, of the water company.

The new steamer Sue H. Elmore came into the bay Tuesday, reaching the city the next day, with freight which the merchants have been waiting several weeks for. She is a staunch looking and well built craft, the finest ever seen in this city. We hope that from now on the Pacific Navigation Co. will give Tillamook city better transportation service, thus putting an end to the continual kicking about "held-up" freight, and "held-up" butter, which the company must admit itself responsible in indignation on the part of the Tillamookers. The steamer will leave here Saturday.

The band was re-organized on Wednesday evening with twelve members the following officers being elected: President, Fred Sappington; Vice-president, Percy Wiley; leader, M. V. Morgan; secretary, Walter Baker; treasurer, R. Dolderhede.

Agent B. C. Lamb, of the Pacific Navigation Co., had the notice posted on his board for several days, "Sue H. Elmore will be in tomorrow. Coming over North Yamhill road." Look out, B. C., for Sam Elmore is mighty tough on that point. (The Pacific Navigation Co. must have been a little like the Southern Pacific in regard to the swiftness of the delivery in this part of the country.)

P. W. Todd and family returned Saturday from McMinnville and a business trip, stopping at various points on the outside.

Timber men from the East, especially from Wisconsin and Minnesota, have been coming in of Portland considerably of late. Most of them are buyers, of "Timber curbers" as they are called. They are out here in the interests of Eastern capitalists, who desire to invest money in the timber lands of Oregon and Washington.

J. C. Mayo, general freight and passenger agent of the Astoria and Columbia River Railroad, is in the city. One thing that no doubt strikes Mr. Mayo very forcibly is that in Tillamook the transportation companies here don't have to carry passengers one hundred miles for two bits. (At that time the railroad had just been built, and, through competition by boat, the railroad company was forced to carry passengers from Astoria to Portland for twenty-five cents. My what a difference now, we can't even ride to Bay City for two bits now, and the boats aren't running, either.

A committee of the council, Councilmen Leach, Olsen and Brodhead, was around Wednesday night locating where to place the electric lights in the residence part of the city.

In the editorial we find: Joaquin Miller, the California poet, announced in a recent interview that in the complete edition of his works which he is preparing for publication only after his death his real name, Cincinnati Heine Miller, will be used.

"I watched a wonderful machine at our shop this morning."

"And how does it work?" we asked. "Well," was the reply, "by means of a pedal attachment, a fulcrum lever converts a vertical reciprocating motion into a circular movement. The principal part of the machine is a huge disk that revolves in a vertical plane. Power is applied through the axis of the disk, and work is done on the periphery, and the hardest substance, by mere impact, may be reduced to any shape."

"What is this wonderful machine?" "A grindstone," was the reply.

"Footlights and Shadows"

Glora Dawn little realized, when she became the good Samaritan to a stranger, ill of a fever from wandering in the tropics and bereft for the time being of all reason, that her heart's romance was unfolding. But it was.

Glora Dawn, it might be explained is the role essayed by beautiful Olive Thomas in her new Selznick Picture, "Footlights and Shadows," which will be shown at the Gem Theatre, Sunday, Oct. 3.

It is a play of tense dramatic theme, of exciting episodes and of beautiful romance. In it Miss Thomas has the best opportunity of her career to display her girlish sweetness, her histrionic art and her wonderful personality.
