

$30,000,000—COX

GOVERNOR JAMES M. COX.

From a photograph taken at Seattle, Wash., during the Democratic Candidate's recent visit to the Pacific Coast.

JIMMY'S COAT.

Take a slant at Jimmy's coat. Tiger-striped, as you will note; Murphysque in lines and hue, Tuggart-like in motif too.

How can he proclaim he's dry With this garb to shock the eye? Tailors wouldn't dare to put Such a thing on "Pussyfoot."

Jimmy's raiment harks us back To the festive racing track. Can't you hear the "bookies" shout And the whippers of the tout?

Needn't tell us where he's at— Wet or dry—his coat tells that. Bryan took one slant at it, Then his heart curled up and quit.

—CARLTON FITCHETT.

Cox Wiggles and Wobbles.

BY SCOTT C. BONE.

Candidate Cox, recklessly charging that the Republican party had set out to corrupt the electorate by raising a fund of $15,000,000 with which to "buy the presidency," has been utterly confuted by the facts.

Instead, it has been completely established that the goal fixed by Chairman Hays was only one-fifth that amount, or $3,000,000, with contributions rigidly limited to $1,000, and that never before has a campaign fund been so free from the taint of corporate, sinister or sordid influences.

That an overtaxed, overburdened and weary country, paying the cost of incompetence, incapacity and extravagance in governmental affairs and maladministration at Washington, would welcome relief at any price legitimately expended may be taken for granted.

But only in the wild dreams of Candidate Cox—who stands committed to Wilsonism and the wastefulness of Wilsonism, with everything that Wilsonism typifies and implies—has any such expenditure as Candidate Cox charged ever been remotely conceived or for a moment contemplated.

Even his foremost newspaper champions—organs of the international banking crowd which favor his candidacy because, with equal rashness, he promises that if elected he will go into the Wilson League of Nations—editorially admit that his slush fund charges have proven groundless.

Candidate Cox's credibility as a witness has similarly been damaged by the wet and dry issue confronting him.

To the indisputable proof that the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' Association is appealing for funds to elect him as a "pronounced wet" he replies that the liquor interests of Ohio never contributed to any of his campaigns.

Yet a sworn statement, signed by the secretary of the Ohio Liquor Dealers' Association and on file in the secretary of state's office, shows that that organization contributed a substantial sum out of its treasury to the Cox campaign of 1916.

And in the face of it all, having withstood for months, in silence, William Jennings Bryan's denunciation of him as a "wet" and until to run for president, Candidate Cox, with characteristic audacity, now assures a North Dakota crowd that "I have always voted dry!"

Imagine Boss Murphy, Boss Tuggart, Boss Brennan and that Youngstown Apostle of Light and Epitaph, Ed Moore, contriving the nomination at San Francisco of a candidate who had "always voted dry!" Imagine it, if you can!

Shade of John Barleycorn! What a spectacle is presented in American politics!

OLD AND NEW COX SLOGANS.

Washington. — The following interesting interview with Governor James M. Cox of Ohio was published in the hotel column of the Washington Post four years ago—viz, on July 29, 1916: "Ohio is not the only state where the people are shouting the praises of the President for having preserved peace in the United States. Our honor has remained unscathed. The slogan 'He Kept Us Out of War' will be the most effective argument the Democrats can use in the campaign. Americanism has been pre-empted by the President, and every other problem of national import has been met squarely and satisfactorily."

HARDING TO THE FARMERS.

Senator Harding's speech to the farmers of the country, delivered at the Minnesota State Fair, is commendable not only for the subject matter and the constructive statesmanship which it contains, but for the calm and dignified tone which prevails throughout the entire address. Nothing could more thoroughly impress intelligent people with the difference in the senator and his opponent and their qualifications for the presidency than Senator Harding's comprehensive discussion of the agricultural problems of the nation and the solution which must be applied to them and the political harangue delivered at the same place by Governor Cox—St. Louis City (14) Journal.

"PARTY FACES DISASTER"—GORE

Senator Thomas Gore, Democrat, of Oklahoma, who was defeated for re-nomination through the influence of the White House because of his opposition to the League of Nations, plainly indicates that he proposes to continue his fight upon the league. The blind senator says: "The paramount issue is to avert disaster; nobody favors the league that understands it. 'The women of Maine have read it. It is no wonder about the women. It is no marvel about the mothers. They are not willing to mortgage the pound of flesh nearest their hearts. 'They are not willing to sign this bloody bond which is a first lien upon the life of every boy beneath the stars and stripes. 'He was blind indeed who had not already seen the black shadow of the Maine elections visioned upon the horizon."

BACK PORCH CAMPAIGN TO BE BEGUN SOON BY WILSON

Washington. — Gradually being pushed to the rear by the progress of the canvass it is now announced that President Wilson is to wage a "Back-Porch" campaign. The local evening papers announce this fact and say that the plan is being discussed by the Administration leaders. It may even come within a week, some of these leaders believe. Edmund H. Moore, who managed Governor Cox's pre-convention campaign, is given credit for this rear attack on the Harding method of using the front porch.

WAR SHORN OF ITS GLAMOR

Modern Painters, Who Themselves Have Looked on Death, Depict Slaughter as It Really Is.

For the first time in history war is painted as it is. The varnish, the glory has been taken off. It stands out in all its sordid horror. The opening of the Salon des Artistes Francais, filled for the most part with canvases of men who have been in the trenches, show an astonishing absence of battle scenes.

Most of the painters have sought inspiration elsewhere. Those who have found it in the war have rendered only the dull misery of life at the front.

They show no clash of armies, these painters who have been through the war, no flourish of trumpets, not even fragments of general fights. But war as it is. A soldier, limping toward the lines, exhausted, despairing, holding up to his mouth a handkerchief, dark as a clot of blood is what one sees. The face is distorted with suffering, and the uniform is of that indescribable color which comes only from continual exposure to the elements. Garry paints a blinded soldier guided towards a relief station, Michel and Pouzargues show water-flooded trenches.

If governments in the future wish more pleasant and cheerful war scenes they will have to call on artists who stayed away from the front. Those who served were too close to death to paint anything but the truth.

JUST REPETITION OF HISTORY

Fads of the Present Day Had Their Counterpart in the Fashions of Years Ago.

Nothing is new under the sun, not even the newest and most up-to-date girl striker of the present day, with bobbed hair, nor even the employer who complains of the fashion. A writer in "Blackwood" has discovered that in the time of James I, this fashion was affected by women who donned the doublet and hose, which aroused the ire of an unknown author, who in 1620 lampooned the women of the day for so dressing, and instead of keeping to "the modest attire of the comely hood, cowl or coif and handsome dress and kirchifs" betook themselves to the "cloudy, ruffianly, broad-brimmed hat and wanton feathers." Nor was this all. The extravagance of her costume, with the "French doublet" which took the place of a "concealed straight gown" was not in the author's eye the deadliest offense; incredible though it seems, she would "cut and cut her hair to the despicable fashion of the Puritan." So the bobbed hair comes as a reminiscence of the modern maidens' forebears in the Covenanters' time.

Selling Shoes Under Difficulties.

Dean R. Stover, southern salesman for a Brockton shoe concern, got an order under difficulties while out on his last trip. He made a North Carolina town and hired a taxi to take him to a township 15 miles away to which few trains ran. Arriving on the outskirts of his destination he found that the heavy floods had washed away the only bridge. Mr. Stover decided the only thing to do was to turn back until the taxi driver suggested that there might be a boat somewhere around. Mr. Stover hunted along the banks until he found a flat bottomed skiff and he rowed across. He interviewed his customer, paddled him back to the other shore, requisitioned a small wharf and laid his samples out on the roadside. And he made the sale.—Brockton Enterprise.

All Blush Now.

Playwright Eugene Walter apropos of a New York publisher's conviction for publishing a supposedly obscene novel said:

"The novel in question is harmless, and the people who brought about that poor publisher's conviction were as silly as—as well as it reminds me of a story. "The lady principal of a famous girls' school took her older pupils to the Metropolitan museum one day. Entering the hall of sculptures, the principal said, as she looked up from her catalogue: "'Attention, young ladies! When we come to the next statue but one you will all blush.'"

Newlyweds to Tents.

A honeymoon colony, believed to be the first of its kind in England, has been established in a meadow near Farnham, Surrey. At the edge of a certain wood half a dozen tents may be seen. They are the homes of the four brides and their husbands who, rendered homeless by the house shortage, have begun their married life in the open air.

The colony is likely to be still further enlarged, for several other couples have applied for admission.—From the Continental Edition of the London Mail.

Immunity From Ivy Poisoning.

Persons susceptible to ivy poisoning can be rendered immune by taking a treatment described by Dr. Jay Frank Schumberg in the Journal of the American Medical Association. It consists in taking after meals a preparation of tincture of poison ivy, in doses gradually increasing from one drop to a teaspoonful. The immunity conferred by this lasts for about a month. Ivy poisoning may also be cured by administering the same drug in larger doses, increasing more rapidly.

The Bank Deposits of Oregon Cities

Salem, Oct. 2: Total deposits in the banks of Oregon on September 8, 1920, aggregated $284,464,009.68, an increase of $4,188,547.76 since June 30, 1920, but a decrease of $3,977,232.25 since September 12, 1919, according to a report filed by Will H. Announcement. I wish to announce to the public, that I have purchased the equipment of, and leased the hospital building belonging to Mrs. Vidito. I have also bought the operating room appliances of Mrs. Hubbard, which I will combine with the above, and have opened to all physicians a modern sanitary hospital, under the supervision of registered surgical and maternity nurses. Doctors Shearer and Crank will refer their surgical work to the institution and the patronage of all physicians in the county is solicited. Mrs. Orpha. A. Eastman

"My Thor works like a motor car"

THE machinery, which is entirely enclosed, is shaft-driven by smooth-running, silent gears. No exposed chains or belts to endanger hands or clothes, no flimsy construction to get out of order easily. Just a simple, accurate, splendidly-built mechanism, that operates the working part in an amazingly efficient manner. As for the working part itself, any woman who owns a Thor will tell you it cleans clothes more quickly than any other machine, without the slightest harmful friction.

Of course, you'll want a Thor. Ask to see one demonstrated. Learn about the easy terms.
