BUTTONS FROM OUR RIVERS

Pearl Mussel Fisheries Are a Flourishing and Very Interesting Industry.

It should be remembered that in addition to their food value fishes are necessary in our rivers if we are to perpetuate the pearl button industry of the country, which employs some twenty thousand people and yields a product valued at more than $5,000,-

When the young mussels, which are of microscopic size, are thrown off from the brood pouches of their parents at the proper season, the larval mussels slowly drift to the bottom and makes, "Every time I accept an in perish in a few days' time unless they vitation to speak I really make four come in contact with a passing fish of suitable kind and succeed in mak- pare in advance. That is pretty good. ing attachment. Once this attachment is made, the tissue of the fish Third, is the speech I make on the grows over the little mussel, until it way home, which is the best of all; has undergone a remarkable change and fourth, is the speech the news of form and structure; then it drops from the fish to commence its independent life at the bottom of the others."-Sorton Globe. stream or lake.

It is a further fact that the young of particular kinds of mussels requ the gills of particular kinds of fishes as nurseries. The black bass is host for several sorts of mussels, while the kinjack, a kind of herring, is the only known host for the best of all mussels. As this last mentioned fish is far from being abundant in American rivers, it is plain that much care should be exercised in its maintenance.

The mussel fishery that supplies the fresh water pearl button industry is actively conducted in at least twenty states in the Mississippi rived basin. the raw production of shells now has a value of about $1,000,000. The fresh water pearl button is now recognized as among the cheapest durable buttons that can be procured. The mussel beds have been rapidly depleted, chiefly because the fishermen in past years would retain only the very best shells and discard as culls all shells that were of an inferior grade.

Necessary action in the way of government legislation to protect the mussel fisheries has been so long delayed that this unique and rather important industry is now sure to exerience considerable difficulty in perpetunting itself.-Floyd W. Parsons, in the Saturday Evening Post.

Scarcity of Telephone Equipment

and monthly payment plan. Leland

As new subscribers a number of individuals have recently placed orders wth us for telephones. Old subscribers have asked for servce at new locations. They have been told by our representatives that immediate compliance with their desires was impossible owing to lack of "telephone facilities" in a particular locality. "Why," one will say, "The poles and wires are on the street and the house is already wired."

We wish that the problem were as simple as it sounds. There may be poles and wires, but every wire may be in use in giving service to others. There may be a cable, but every circuit in it may be assigned to telephones already installed. There may be spare wires and circuits but no switchboard apparatus at the central office to which they can be connected. There may even be sections of switchboards buut not available for operation on account of the lack of necessary accessories such as ringing keys, relays, etc.

The reason for the shortage of telephone equipment is simple. During the war period we were unable to maintain our reserve or stock plant as the same materials we use were required and taken for Government purposes and for industries priperly favored b the Government. Since the war, with the unexpectedly prolong a problems of reconstruction, production and delivery of materials needed to meet even current demands have been delayed. Eve businss concern is having similar experiences. The manufacture s of telephone equipment have been bending every effort to fill our orders, but they in turn are meeting the same difficulties in sec 1ing rubber, paper, silk, glass, porcelain, tin, thread, shellac, met il parts and other articles not generally associated in the public mind with telephone service.

At the same time with this abnormal situation with reference to materials there exists an unprecendented demand for telephone service, and even under these circumstances our record is one of fulfillment of demand. In the first eight months of this year we have added 6863 telephones in the State of Oregon. In the eight months prior to our declaration of war we gained 2655 telephones.

We desire to give service as much as a patron wishes to receive it. We desire to promptly comply with the suggestions of public authorities who have taken a proper interest in the situation. We are facing abnormal conditions but we will-of necessity gradually-overcome our difficulties.
