HIGHSCHOOL NOTES

Tuesday the football men gave short speeches on the games with Oregon City and on their trip to Oregon City. Most of the men seem to think that Oregon City High has poor spirit for the size of the school. A chicken dinner was served after the game by the Domestic Science girls, which they testify was very good.

The heating system in the gymnasium has not yet been completed. After it has been finished the gymnasium will be open to the Tillamook people in the evenings.

The last football game of the season will be played today with the All Stars, a Tillamook team.

Monday morning the Upper classmen noticed that the Sophomores had tacked their class pennant in the Assembly hall. This is considered a serious offense and always results in the pennant being captured and destroyed. The pennant was rescued by Lee Stephens, a member of the Sophomore class before it had been damaged.

Friday James Sharp, president of the Juniors, challenged the rest of the High School to a game of football. The challenge was accepted. It has not been decided when this game will take place.

Saturday, December 4, a dinner will be served at the High School by the Sophomore class. The class has voted the proceeds to the 1920 Annual which is being published by the Junior class.

Gossip of Gem Theater Attractions.
Gladys Brockwell has sent to the Bureau of Ethnology in Washington the skull of what she believes to be a prehistoric man, found by her on Walnut Creek, near Fladstaff, Arizona, when she went there to make "Rose of Nome," in which she is to open at the Gem Theater on December 2.

Miss Brockwell was taken on an expedition to the ancient ruins at Walnut Creek by Jimmy Swinerton, the cartoonist, who makes his home at Fladstaff.

Ancient stone habitations and the remains of forts and settlements are strewn for miles up and down the creek. Here and there are mounds and evidences of an irrigation system. In the mounds human skeletons are sometimes found. Miss Brockwell was digging on one of the mounds when she came upon a skull, which plainly was not shaped like the skull of the white man nor even of the Indian of today.

When "The Shepherd of Kingdom Come" is shown at the Gem Theater on Nov. 30 the millions of readers of John Fox, Jr.'s books will have a chance to see Jack Pickford in the role of one of the best liked boy characters in American fiction. Chad, the hero of the photoplay version of Mr. Fox's novel, is a perfect role for Jack Pickford. The book itself sold more than 1,000,000 copies and is well known to two generations of Americans.

The author's interest in the life of the mountaineers of Eastern Kentucky led him to picture it in several novels, as "The Kentuckian," "Knight of the Cumberland," "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," and "The Heart of the Hills."

Not only is the story of "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" a true account of the customs of the mountaineers, but also a beautiful representation of some incidents of the Civil War.

A beautiful love story involving a mountain girl's sacrifice of her lover adds a touch of pathos to a beautiful photoplay.

How a little Irish immigrant girl broke into the east of a Broadway musical show and converted some of the meaner souls into real human beings is told in "Darling Mine," starring Olive Thomas, which will be shown at the Gem Theater, Sunday, November 28.

As an interpreter of life behind the scenes, Olive Thomas, for all of her five feet, four inches, is head and shoulders above most stars of the silver sheet. She has made the make-believe land behind the footlights seem real to thousands who never thought that their own hearts and headaches, romances and tragedies in stageland.

One of the most beautiful costumes of the old country has been revived in Madge Kennedy's recent Goldwyn picture, "Strictly Confidential," which plays at the Gem Theater December 1.

rows and performed old and beautiful dance steps. This custom of dancing on the green has been beautifully photographed in one of the scenes of "Strictly Confidential." Miss Kennedy, as is well known, is a splendid fancy dancer. And here she was given an opportunity to disclose her lightness and agility in a scene which was all fun in the making.

TO THE BUSINESS MEN

In view of a practice which has constantly annoyed the business men of this city, it seems that means should be employed to protect them from advertising solicitors that are constantly coming here from Portland and other places.

These individuals solicit money for advertising and other schemes which do not concern this county, and are in many cases for individual gain.

The Chamber of Commerce requests that the business men refuse to give money to solicitors unless they have the approval of the President of that organization, who will give all cases careful consideration before giving his consent.

Too many persons in recent years have been coming to this city soliciting money, and as they are becoming more numerous each year the President of the Chamber of Commerce adopted this method of protecting the business men, preventing the annoyance of these solicitors during business hours.

Many of the solicitors have some kind of tricky advertising stunt cleverly presented, with which the business man is tricked and deceived, and if these schemes are investigated first by the President of the Chamber of Commerce the annoyance need go no further.

The local newspapers are the best advertising mediums, and should be supported in preference to strangers who come here and impose on the business men.

FRED C. BAKER,
President Chamber of Commerce.
