A few days ago a meeting of farmers and business men was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms for the purpose of discussing the establishment in Tillamook county of a fruit and vegetable cannery.

The subject was thoroughly covered by several speakers and the interest ran high. A committee was appointed to look into the proposition and report upon it.

The question we are now asking is whether advantage will be taken of the project or will it be allowed to pass by. Tillamookers have sometimes been inclined to talk much and do little. We are constantly clamoring for a larger population, for payrolls and other things necessary to build up our community.

There is no doubt but what a fruit cannery would be very successful in Tillamook county. It has been conclusively proven that Tillamook soil and climate turns out a very good grade of loganberry, to say nothing of the enormous quantities of wild berries to be had each year. It has also been concluded beyond a doubt that there is much soil in Tillamook that is unfit for dairying but which is very good for berry culture.

Nature has endowed us with these things, now it is up to us.

Canning plants, operated on the same cooperative basis as our cheese factories, are what are most needed.

Bay City people are now seriously contemplating the establishment of a $6000 cannery for berries and vegetables to be run under the cooperative system. It is time for Tillamook county to awaken to its natural resources.

Look up. The cost of living has about reached its lowest level, industries all over the country are beginning operations again, Tillamook cows will soon be coming in fresh and the sun will surely shine in a few days.

People got along very nicely without telephones once; chances are they can do it again.

American Legion Notes

Despite storm and high water, Tillamook post and the local Women's Auxiliary held a successful dance on the night of St. Patrick's day. Members from the north end of the County were unable to attend, roads in that direction being several feet under water in spots, and former service men from other parts of the County were not much better off. Because of the weather handicap, the attendance was somewhat slimmer than anticipated. Weather conditions, however, did not detract from the pleasure of the forty couples that were present. Ladies of the Auxiliary looked after decorations for the hall and the "eats" that were an added attraction. Toll's orchestra furnished the music.

A resume of the work done by the legislative committee of the Department at the recent session of the legislature has been received by the Tillamook Post. This shows that only one measure advocated by the Legion, the so called "alien land law" failed to receive favorable action and, according to the report, the adverse action on this bill was due to information received from Washington, D. C., that this matter would be handled by the National government. After defeat of the Oregon measure, a similar bill was passed in the state of Washington.

With Tillamook Post's paid up membership approximately 100 short of its 1920 roster, renewals have practically ceased and it would seem that a membership campaign will be required to stir up interest among the former service men who have never joined the organization or whose membership has lapsed. It should be remembered that the Legion is not in existence merely as a temporary body but that it will be actively on the job so long as veterans of the Great War remain. Its work has scarcely commenced and its influence is shaping National State and municipal policies has as yet been little felt. That the Legion can be a powerful instrument for the public good is hardly to be disputed but the strength of its influence will depend entirely upon the interest displayed by its active members.

Members who have failed to pay their 1921 dues are to be carried on the subscription lists of the American Legion until April 1st, according to information received recently. Upon that date all delinquents will be dropped.

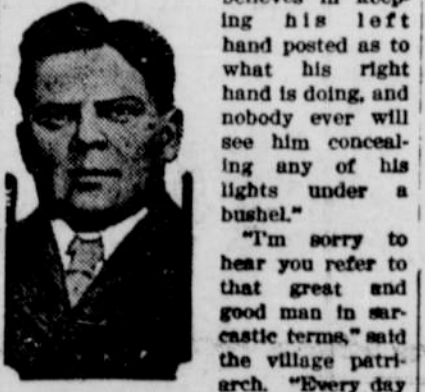

The "flying squadron," organized to assist ex service men in adjusting their differences with the government, is still suffering from engine trouble. "The travel is necessary or the public service"—that phrase which seemed to find its way into Army orders without difficulty during the War seems strangely hard to enlist in the aid of the former service people.

The finance office of the Army has 6,600 original discharge certificates in its vaults awaiting proper addresses of the owners. Service men who sent their discharge certificates to Washington with applications for the $60.00 bonus, travel pay, or other claims, and who now fail to find their certificates, would probably do well to write to this department. Letters should give the usual information required by the War department, i. e., serial number, outfit served in, rank, date of enlistment, etc., and should be signed with the full name as used in the army.

Uncle Walt's Story

PLEASURE OF GIVING "SKIMBACK, the banker, is acquiring quite a reputation as a philanthropist," observed the druggist. "He's always giving to somebody or something, and I notice that the sickening details always get into print. He believes in keeping his left hand posted as to what his right hand is doing, and nobody ever will see him concealing any of his lights under a bushel."

"I'm sorry to hear you refer to that great and good man in sarcastic terms," said the village patriarch. "Every day I hear similar remarks concerning him, and I think it a poor appreciation of his generosity. As you say, he's always giving, and it's a small business to look a gift horse in the mouth, as the psalmist says. If he hires a man with a megaphone to announce his benefactions, he isn't hurting anybody."

"Caustic things are said of every philanthropist who manages to get some advertising out of his liberality, but it's my opinion that you'll have to hunt a long time, with a searchlight and a pair of gumshoes, before you find the man who enjoys doing good by stealth. If you do find him, he will prove to be a freak, and it will be your duty to see him returned to the asylum from which he escaped."

"We are all more or less hungry for the approbation of our friends and fellow citizens. And I'm glad it's so. If we didn't care three whoops what our friends thought of us, we wouldn't paint our houses, or mow our lawns, or trim our whiskers. We wouldn't spend any money for flowers or bolted shirts or any of the things which make life beautiful and attractive. If a man spends a lot of money for a gorgeous lawn, with real trees and expensive flowers, and all sorts of ornaments, he's doing it because he wants to be praised by the people who see it all."

You don't see any such lawns in lone-some rural districts. There the front yard always is a calf pasture.

"The farmer reasons that it's no use having a pretty lawn, for there's nobody to admire it. Nobody ever goes past the place except an occasional lightning rod agent or a man who is taking orders for fruit trees."

"Why don't you sneer at the town man who puts so much money into beautiful grounds? It's all a grandstand play. He expects to get advertising out of it, and he does, and he deserves it. We shouldn't criticize any man who is doing good, even if we don't like his methods."

"Some people say that Skimback is trying to atone for all the sinfulness of his past career. It is argued that until recent years he never gave away anything, but was after the dollars by day and night, and didn't care who got hurt so he overtook and captured them. They tell of mortgages he foreclosed, causing unspeakable suffering here and there. He is accused of resorting to every dark trick to increase his hoard. Most of the stories probably are bunk, but what if they are true? Now that he shows signs of repentance in his old age we should encourage him in every possible way, and if he gives a photograph to the high school, or puts up a public drinking fountain in the public square, we should tell him he's everybody's darling, and not dig up a lot of ancient history for his confusion."

"I haven't much money to give away, but when I do loosen up to the extent of a dollar or two I like to have an audience. I like to imagine that people are saying, 'What a great-hearted, benevolent old fellow, he is!' The other morning a man approached me and asked me to contribute something toward putting a new steeple on the church, and I began to explain that church steeples are out of date, when he interrupted to say that the names of all contributors would be printed in the paper, and then I dug up $5 without further words. And we're all tattered with the same stick, my friends."
