When countless pairs of ardent lovers fade into listless "married folk" what's the reason? Who's to blame?

The greatest question of modern life, presented and answered—in his fascinating companion picture to Cecil B. DeMille's "Don't Change Your Husband."

Staged with all the beauty, luxury, dramatic fire and action that in "Male and Female" captivated millions. At the REX Sunday and Monday ence, but at the last moment, he does something that will go a long way towards restoring a person's faith in his fellow men.

Those shell rimmed but glassless spectacles that Harold Lloyd wears in all his comedies, are not just a happy thought. They are the result of a study of psychology of laughter.

Laughter and life are two of the commonest simple things. In its purest form, laughter is life. The more life, the more laughter. And in the weaknesses of human nature is to be found the most humor.

In life it is a laughing matter to see a dignified person lose his dignity, such as a minister slipping on a banana peel. It is a laughing matter to see an efficient person make a mistake—for instance, a deft waiter spill the soup.

Because at one time shell rimmed glasses were always synonymous with professors or scientists, they acquired dignity that even their present popularity cannot entirely dispel.

Worn by Harold Lloyd as his only makeup, they make of him a serious minded youth, and accordingly magnify the humor to be found in any situation that impairs his dignity.

In "Number Please" Harold Lloyd gives an example of "A roving Man in Love." For the Only Girl, when he is not the only man, he braves the perils of telephone booths, wrong numbers, roller coasters, merry-go-rounds and Ferris wheels. Mildred Davis is the girl, and P. J. Brooks the rival, with Sunshine Sammy among those present. At the Rex Saturday April, 9.

There are tricks of the trade, even in such a lightening speed business as automobile racing. Several of the tricks are shown in the new Wallace Reid picture, "Excuse my Dust" which is the attraction at the Gem Theater, Saturday, April 9th. In the photoplay Mr. Reid has the role of "Toodles" Walden, manager of the "Darco" agency and their chief race driver. Rischief rival, the driver for the "Fargot" concern, in a desperately contested road race, attempt to put him out of the running by crowding him over into the ditch on a turn. But Wallie, in the part of "Toodles" foils the "Fargot" man. By a quick turn of the wheel, he plunges into the rear of the "Fargot" and renders it instantly hors de combat. At the same moment another "Darco," piloted by "Toodles," boss, roars past to victory.

The race is only one of the exciting features of "Excuse My Dust." Ann Little is the leading woman and the cast includes such favorites as Theodore Roberts, Tully Marshall and Guy Oliver.

An interesting drama of love, and hate in Civil War days, is "Held by the Enemy," the Paramount picture, zation of William Gillette's famous play, which will be shown at the Gem theater Sunday, April 10th.

There is just enough of the Civil War flavor about "Held by the Enemy" to make it reliable. The story has to do with Rachel Hayne, a Southern girl, who is supposedly a widow and who lives with her family in an old manor, which is in possession of the Federal troops commanded by Colonel Prescott. That officer loves Rachel and he is about to avow his reciprocated love when Captain Hane the husband turns up. A rascally surgeon is the Colonel's rival and when Hane is captured as a spy, he accuses Prescott of having trumped up the charge against Hane so as to rid himself of an encumbrance.

Hane escapes after being sentenced to death but is recaptured. After several stirring instances he commits suicide. The picture was directed by Donald Crisp and adapted by Benj. Marie Dix.

Health for the Children

UPON the health of the children today depends the health of the Nation tomorrow. Upon their shoulders will fall the burden of carrying on where mother and father left off.

"The spine being the foundation, the controller and distributor of nervous impulses upon which the healthful action of every organ depends, the obligation upon the parent is to see that every child gets an analysis of its spinal condition from a competent Chiropractor. To do so will do no harm and may save the child from a lifetime of needless suffering and ill health. This is particularly urged if the child has shown symptoms of some weakness, such as susceptibility to coughs, colds, croup, constipation, kidney, or stomach trouble. The functional vigor of the body depends upon a spine in order."

Spinal analysis and consultation is without charge.
