PORK AND PORTLAND

That Portland is trying to get a hand out from the government funds again is evidenced by the bill introduced into congress recently by Senator McNary to dedicate the old postoffice site for a memorial park for soldiers, with a further provision of the bill calling for an appropriation of $250,000 to purchase a new postoffice ground.

Portland already has any number of parks that can be used as memorials if such a thing is needed but some worthy citizens there are perfectly willing to give up the site that is now being used by the postoffice department if the government will give them enough money for another. The ex-servicemen know that memorial parks will not buy shoes for the baby. What he wants is some substantial help to get started in a home or on a farm.

With high taxes and unscrupulous governing commissions being swatted, let's take a pass at the pork barrel files who are sucking away at the public funds so industriously.

LOWER COURT UPHELD

The supreme court of the state of Washington has sustained the verdict of the jury which sat on the case against the members of the I. W. W. who were charged with the responsibility of the deaths of four ex-service men at Centralia on August day 1919.

It was apparent foolishness for the convicted radicals to appeal such a case as they were able to put before the supreme court, but it illustrates the nature of that sort of people.

Their defense at the time was that they were in danger of being attacked by the ex-soldiers on parade and they used this subterfuge to fire into the crowd, killing four and wounding others. When the case came to trial much conflicting testimony was given by the defendants. Before going out, the jury was instructed that they were trying the radicals on a charge of guilty or not guilty of first degree murder, no alternative. The verdict, as brought in after lengthy deliberation, announced that the prisoners had been found guilty of second degree murder. This is one wonderful illustration of the workings of a jury.

WHY IS A LAW?

This country was founded on the principle of representative government and must necessarily have its laws made by the majority of the voters, not by a few. The laws are made for the peace, health and safety of the people and should be observed by all.

To attempt to take issue with or dispute the value of such government is a senseless waste of energy. The law must be enforced and proper officials have been appointed by the people to see that it is done. It is doubtless understood by all that the situation in which a public official is placed is a thankless one, one constantly receiving adverse criticism and very little approbation, even from those who place these same officials in office.

There is constantly someone running foul of the law, and for what reason? Sometimes by actual need, sometimes by perversion, sometimes by unwillingness to perform honest labor, some times by ignorance and other times by carelessness or contempt. Traffic law violators are generally found in the two latter classes. When the respectable citizen is haled up for traffic law violations he believes long and loud about the despicable "cop" who caught him and swears vengeance upon the governing officials who collect the toll for his infringement. Yet he is a law violator as surely as is the hardened criminal and must pay the penalty, whatever it is.

HARD ON THE POETS

"I'M SCHEDULED to recite 'Annabel Lee' at an entertainment tonight," confessed the retired merchant. "I've been repeating the poem to myself almost constantly for several days, and know every comma in it, but I'm afraid that when I stand up to recite it, I'll have forgotten every word of it."

"I hope so," said the hotelkeeper. "Such a poem as 'Annabel Lee' deserves better treatment than you are qualified to give it. You have a voice like a guinea hen, and you telescope your words, and you don't know any more about poetry than a porcupine knows about Paradise. If you'd stand up and recite a few pages from a mail-order catalogue I have no doubt you'd put the proper feeling into it, and move your auditors to tears, but it's a crime for a man like you to mangle a beautiful poem, full of sentiment and melody.

"There ought to be a law against that sort of thing. Some of the best poems in the country have been ruined by common or garden elocutionists. Nowadays people smile when you mention 'Curfew Must Not Ring Tonight.' It has been recited so much by people with cracked voices that it has become a joke. Yet if you examine the poem calmly and impartially you will find that it has a great deal of merit.

"In the schools the pupils are permitted to recite some of our best poems, and the poems aren't fit for anything after it. The school authorities should prohibit this sort of thing, and prepare a volume of cheap asbestos poetry that is fool proof, that can't be injured, no matter what you do to it. There is plenty of punk poetry in the world, and a collection of this stuff would serve the schoolboy elocutionists just as well as the high class poetry that is so easily spilled.

"When I went to school, about a hundred years ago, there was a tall, freckled, gangling boy, who talked through his nose, with a sort of whine that sounded like filling a saw. There was to be a school entertainment, and this boy was down for a recitation. The teacher never asked him what he was going to recite, but gave him the right of way. Teachers continue to make the same mistake, even as we go to press. They should choose the poems which are to be butchered to make a Roman holiday and select something that won't rip, ravel or run down at the heel.

"This boy stood up before the school and droned through Gray's 'Elegy.' Now, that's one of the best rhythms ever composed. It was written by a journeyman poet who put in seven years at it, in the time when they had to be a school entertainment, and this boy was down for a recitation. The teacher never asked him what he was going to recite, but gave him the right of way. Teachers continue to make the same mistake, even as we go to press. They should choose the poems which are to be butchered to make a Roman holiday and select something that won't rip, ravel or run down at the heel.

"Time and again, when discouraged and played out, I have started to read that poem, and as soon as I get fairly into it, I seem to see that blamed gangling schoolboy, in his high-waisted garments, and hear him droning through these verses, making a noise like a sawmill on a wet day. It's more than forty years since he made a violent assault upon the Elegy, but it seems like yesterday. It's the same way with Hamlet's 'Soliloquy.' Every time I hear or see that gem I think of a fat youth who recited it in our school, and then I burst into tears.

"There's no sense in such a business, and congress ought to do something to doggone it."

BRITISH MASONRY GROWING

Report of United Grand Lodge Shows Big Increase of Lodges in 1920.

London—Three times as many Masonic lodges were instituted in 1920 in England and those parts of the dominions where the United Grand Lodge of England has jurisdiction as in any of the previous years, according to a report just made public here. Similar increases were announced by Scottish and Irish Grand Lodges and Chapters.

Freemason's Hall, the craft's London headquarters, has become too small for the demands upon it, and the return from India of the Duke of Connaught, the Grand Master, is awaited for the completion of a big extension scheme including a new Masonic Temple and offices to be erected as a memorial to members who fell in the war.

The Case of the "Babbling Girl"

When little Miriam Rubin, "the babbling girl," of Waukegan, Illinois, sprung into notice as a result of the terrifying condition that caused her to talk incessantly for 212 hours, it also brought chiropractic to the attention of many people who never knew its power before.

Fever and uncontrollable action of the organs of speech were the symptoms of her trouble. But the cause was pressure upon spinal nerves in the neck region, pressure caused by misplaced joints, or vertebrae, of the spine. For eight days the little girl talked without sleep or rest, and physicians called by the family and specialists who volunteered their services could do nothing for her, but Dr. Paul Berger, a Chiropractor, located the trouble and after the first adjustment the girl fell into an exhausted sleep. In three days she had stopped talking.

THE PARENTS' STATEMENT

"After the first adjustment she slept for the first time during her illness. Under the succeeding adjustments she continued to sleep for brief periods. Adjustments were continued for three days and at the end of three days she ceased talking and the symptoms of the malady had entirely disappeared. Her present condition is normal."

Abraham M. Rubin,
 Dollie J. Rubin,
 Albert McDermott, Notary Public

Thousands of people are suffering from some ailment due to a slight interference with the nerves at their exit from the spine.

Do not therefore continue to suffer when chiropractic adjustments will restore your health.

What it did in the above case it is doing for people in Tillamook. An investigation and a thorough trial will convince you of its efficacy.
