AT THE GEM

A lowly but not very humble parrot is responsible for many highly humorous scenes in Sidney A. Franklin's production "Not Guilty." Director Franklin managed to get the bird into the spirit of the picture, and the bird's curious expression which the camera caught as he watched the actions of the players are said to be very laughable. Watch for his appearance next week at the Gem.

In one respect, at least, William Russell, the Fox star, who will be at the Gem next week in "The Challenge of the Law" is a unique figure. He once was condemned by physicians to be a cripple for life. Now he works on the screen is too strenuous or too athletic for him.

"Guilty of Love," Dorothy Dalton's latest picture which was adapted from a play by Avery Hopwood will be at the Gem next week.
