HOMESEEKERS ARE COMING TO TILLAMOOK COUNTY

To the Editor:
 As a result of the publicity campaign now being conducted by the Tillamook Chamber of Commerce large numbers of home seekers will come to the county with the intention of making their homes here. This is already assured for the literary and advertising matter that has been sent out the past few weeks is bringing results, proving highly successful. That is only one part of the campaign.

The other is: How to interest home seekers and keep them in the county after they arrive here is a matter of considerable importance at the present time and of importance to all parts of the county. What have the different parts of the county to offer home seekers by way of cheap land?

It is pretty generally conceded that the dairy industry of the county will not make a material growth until more land is brought under cultivation, and it is upon this point that the Chamber of Commerce would like to make a few suggestions and point out a way to take care of the home seekers, and at the same time increase the dairy products of the county.

There is a large amount of idle unimproved land in the county which should be brought under cultivation, owned in some cases by non residents and persons who hold it for speculation. This is the land that the Chamber of Commerce would like to see get into the hands of home seekers, that is, if it can be bought at a reasonable price. This idle unimproved land is doing nobody any good, other than to pay a small amount of tax. Now is an opportune time to sell this land at reasonable prices to home seekers or that portion of them who want to make their own improvements.

For a number of years home seekers have been scared away on account of the high price of improved dairy land in Tillamook county, and this is a most perplexing state of affairs that the Chamber is endeavoring to avoid right now in the publicity campaign, and which requires tact and considerable explanation when home seekers ask direct questions and want replies in regard to the price of land in this county. Now that conditions are getting back to normal, it is safe to say that it will not be long before some of the inflation in the value of dairy lands will be knocked out and it will get back to normal.

But it is present conditions that the Chamber has to contend with and how to keep home seekers in the county after they arrive here. Much can and will be accomplished in the development of the county if every section will co-operate with the Chamber. With this end in view it is suggested that every community center organize a local community club for the upbuilding for that part of the county, and work in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce to increase the population of the entire county. These community clubs would be in a position to find out what idle unimproved land could be bought for and turned into farms and what land was not suitable for that purpose.

If the boosters, live wires in community centers such as Cloverdale, Hebo, Blaine, Sandlake, Hemlock, Beaver, Netarts, Bay City, Garibaldi, Rockaway, Wheeler, Mohler and Nehalem would form community clubs and co-operate with the Chamber of Commerce the population of the county would be increased several thousand the next twelve months. There is not the least doubt about it. It can be done, for the home seekers are coming to Tillamook county and the thing to do is to give them the glad hand and endeavor to put them on idle land which they can turn into profitable dairy farms.

Now which will be the first community center to organize a club and offer inducements to homeseekers to locate in their section of the county? Oregon is the best state in the union, and Tillamook is the best part of Oregon.

Very Respectfully Yours,
 FRED C. BAKER,
 President Tillamook Chamber of Commerce.

Ready For The Fairs

Club members generally, as well as other farm boys and girls are no doubt planning to attend the county fair and their own state fair this fall. Some will win trips to the Interstate expositions. Everyone should encourage the fairs where the products of the soil are shown in competition, where better livestock is exhibited and where the work of the home is placed on exhibition. We are all inspired to do greater things by seeing what our neighbor has accomplished.

While at the fairs we are able to study the various breeds and types of livestock, the best corn, the best apples and other products of the soil. Then too, the annual fair brings a little relaxation and let-up from the farm work. It brings the opportunity to visit with our friends and relatives as well as strangers. Who does not enjoy the fun and sport and music, even the merry-go-round and the hurdy-gurdy. We all enjoy the eats and refreshments and the horse races and the various contests, of course we do. Let's take the week off and attend the fair.

Take along your best pig or other stock and the best samples of your crops, canned goods and other things you have produced or made and compete with your neighbors or strangers, for the blue ribbons and the prizes.—Farm Boys' and Girls' Leader.

REGARDING SEA LIONS

Now comes William Finley, ex-State Game Warden, and denies that sea lions and even seals are much of a menace to salmon, and in defense of his statement quotes three naturalists who went so far as to analyze the stomachs of a number of sealions killed on the California coast near rivers frequented by salmon during the spawning period, and found that instead of salmon their stomachs showed the remains of squids and octopus. This commission of naturalists also visited the Oregon coast but according to Mr. Finley, did not get much convincing evidence that the lions were molesting salmon. Mr. Finley is a member of the Audubon society for the protection of harmless bird and animal life, and is of the opinion that employment of the Coos Bay official sea lion killer, is unnecessary expense on the part of the state.

Opposed to Mr. Finley, however, is the belief of most coast fishermen that both sea lions and seals are guilty of wantonly wounding salmon and in the case of the spotted seal particularly, there is much evidence to prove that it mangles salmon for the sheer sport of the thing.

No one would deny the right to kill for food, but when it comes to wounding and killing edible fishes for mere sport, such action ought to be curbed by turning the tables on the marauders, since salmon is man-food as well as sea animal food.
