Children Need Food for Proper Growth

"The bones and muscles cannot be built without suitable materials. The food which does this best and cheapest is MILK. It not only builds, but it protects children from disease. Every child under six years should receive a quart of milk a day, those older the same when it can be afforded. No child can thrive on less than a pint of milk a day."

The above is an extract from Extension Bulletin No. 327 issued by the Oregon Agricultural College. Is your child developing properly?
