

THE GIST OF THE WEEK'S NEWS FROM THE NATION'S CAPITAL

House Republicans have agreed that a soldier bonus bill should be passed at an early date.

All signs indicate the indefinite postponement of American participation in the Genoa economic conference and probably the indefinite postponement of the conference itself.

President Harding will go to congress in a fortnight and read a special message advocating government aid to an American merchant marine.

The Shantung question has turned out as the keystone on which the whole armament conference structure may stand or fall. The situation can be described in this way: Should there be a failure to agree on the return of Shantung to China, the Chinese delegates will refuse to sign the nine power Far Eastern treaty. Then there would be no nine power treaty, and by the same token no four power Pacific treaty. A further result would be no five power naval limitation treaty.

TILLYMOOKS

Do you think and see clearly—or do you live in a mental fog?

When you get up in the morning does your mind begin to work—or do you stay asleep all day long?

Big things are accomplished by people who keep their minds active.

Able men are likely to have splendid powers of expression—not always, but usually.

The reason is they think clearly and see clearly.

Isn't a difficult thing to do—provided you are interested in your job.

It is merely getting into the way of observing steadily and thinking hard about what you see.

By and by, one fact joins with another fact, and an idea is born. Frequently it is a slow process. Sometimes it is a fast one.

Usually, the man who forms the habit of sharp observation and continuous thinking gains in the speed with which he can produce good ideas.

We hear too much about genius.

Its an easy term with which to explain the accomplishments of someone who has been willing to work harder than we have.

IN OTHER WORDS, ITS THE LAZY MAN'S EXCUSE FOR BEING LAZY.

The genius doesn't exist.

Most of the big things I have seen done have been accomplished by faithful, intelligent, and painstaking effort rather than by special brilliancy.

The genius has merely made the most of his opportunities. He is the 90 percent man.

IT IS THE REST OF US WHO ARE BELOW PAR. AT PAR EVERY MAN IS, OR OUGHT TO BE A GENIUS.

Every man has something he can do better than he can do anything else.

Most men never find the job they are best fitted for. And often this is because they do not think.

They just drift lazily along, and when they don't get on well they blame everybody and everything except themselves.

The genius is always alert; everything he hears, sees, or reads passes into his mind to be instantly utilized when occasion commands.

Most men see only with their eyes. Some see with their minds.

THE BRAIN THAT ISN'T USED RUSTS. THE BRAIN THAT IS USED RESPONDS.

Many men pride themselves on the ability to leave their business behind them at five o'clock.

It is doubtful whether really successful men ever do any such thing. They may say they do, but they don't—not really.

You will find them alert to a good idea no matter when it reaches them.

Millions do leave their business behind them. Or, rather, never have it in their offices.

They think they think, but they don't not really.

That is, they do not think hard and continuously about what they do, therefore never originate, never initiate.

The genius is that plain, ordinary fellow who has jumped away from the crowd because he has kept mentally awake, stayed on the job, and kept thinking.

AT PAR EVERY MAN IS, OR OUGHT TO BE A GENIUS.

Small men are men who never make any effort to improve their mental capacity.

Big men are men who appreciate what can be accomplished by training the mind to think, and developed a creditable mentality.

The great fault with our educational system is that it teaches our children almost everything except how to think.

The future big men and small men of this world are the school children of today.

WHAT PROGRESS INDIVIDUALS COULD MAKE, AND WHAT PROGRESS THE WORLD WOULD MAKE, IF THINKING WERE GIVEN PROPER CONSIDERATION.

AT PAR, EVERY MAN IS, OR OUGHT TO BE A GENIUS.

Better Milk

FOR

BABIES

Clean, fresh milk from a dairy herd tested at intervals by a qualified veterinarian to insure healthfulness of the cows is recommended by physicians of national reputation as the best for babies. One reason being that it is more nearly uniform from day to day than the milk from any one cow. It is well known to those who test cows that milk from any certain cow varies greatly from day to day and even one milking from the next. Then, too, any disturbance in the cow's system affects the milk or that day and such milk in turn affects the baby using it, while the milk from a cow, under the same conditions, mixed with the other milk from a herd is so distributed that any disturbance it might cause, if fed alone, is entirely eliminated.

We furnish fresh milk for baby use that is clean and quite uniform from day to day.

All cows from which milk is taken for our milk delivery have been tested for and passed the T. B. test.
