NETARTS BAYOYSTER BEDS NOT IN PAYING CONDITION

A. W. Austin of this city, has had twenty years experience with small oyster culture on Netarts bay, and who owns several oyster claims over there, is not particularly optimistic about the future of the bivalves on the bay. Time was, stated Mr. Austin, when he tonged and sold as much as $38 worth of the small oysters in this city every week, where the saloon men converted them into oyster-cocktails, and for which there was ever a growing demand. Since the big dike was put in at the upper part of the bay, the tide, which formerly spread over the low bottom lands, carried the tide grass away from the oyster beds; but now the dike holds the grass, which accumulates, and is not taken out by the ebb tide, but remains to smother the oyster beds. He is still experimenting, however, and has few oysters for sale, as he needs most of those taken for replanting in other beds.

Of the many claims located in past years, but few are worked, Austin being about the only one who has held on. Many years ago and before the dike was put in, many oysters were shipped from the bay, this species of oyster being indigenous to the bay and coast. In pioneer times the oysters were gathered up by the schooner load, and taken to San Francisco, where they brought a good price, during the "Days of old, and the days of gold, in the days of '49". Mr. Austin states that there is a marked difference between the Shoalwater bay small oysters and the Netarts kind, the Netarts bivas being accounted the better oyster by experts.

NEHALEM PIONEER TELLS OF EARLY DAYS UP THERE

H. H. Tubbesing, a pioneer of the Nehalem section, was seen at the Todd Hotel Tuesday. Mr. Tubbesing came to Nehalem in 1884, from the Willamette valley in company with Henry Tohl and Herman Schoelmyer. The latter and Mr. Tubbesing survive the party, Mr. Tohl having died several years ago. All took up homesteads and helped to reclaim the big woods, where fine dairy ranches and farms now outspread. When the Tubbesing party came, there were about 30 settlers in the valley, scattered, here and there. Their supplies came in for some time on the schooner A. B. Field from Astoria to Hobsonville on Tillamook Bay, and were taken up the coast to Nehalem by ox and horse teams and on the backs of some of the settlers. Mail came in once a week from Seaside, and mail day was quite an event, as it was then that the settlers got in touch with the outside world. There were a few Tillamook Indians left when the Tubbesing party came in, and but one now survives in the Nehalem section—Jo. Duncan, a Tillamook, who is about 70 years of age, and who speaks English by long being in the white community. Tohl was the villabe store keeper for many years, and was well liked. A brother of Mr. Tubbesing came to Nehalem 3 or 4 years afterward, and also took up a homestead. He came from Astoria, and lives not far from Necarney Inn.

The Balm Cookery Club will hold their Achievement Day program on May 18th, at 11 a. m.

The Mohler Sewing, Cooking, Garden and Calf Clubs will hold their Achievement Day program on Thursday, May 18th.

On Friday, May 19th, the Sewing, Garden and Cooking clubs of the Nehalem school will have the Achievement Day program.

The most important work for the month has been meeting with local leaders and helping clubs to get their work started for the year.

The organization has practically been completed during this month. Clubs that have been organized late may have some difficulty in finishing for the fair, but those not completing then will have until November to turn in final reports. Five clubs were organized during April—two calf clubs, one poultry club and two sewing clubs.

In the county there are at present fifty-six boys' and girls' Industrial Clubs, with an average enrollment of nine members to the club.

Many of the cooking clubs are planning to finish up the work before the school is out, and the Balm Club has completed the work, this being the second 100 per cent club in the county. Mrs. Ella R. Sperry is the leader of this club, and the members are: Wesley Batterson, president; Daniel Blackmore, vice-president; Helen Daniels, secretary; George Sales, Orville Lommen, James Sperry and Lorena Batterson.

The boys in the Camp Cooking projects are taking quite an interest in the work and the Tillamook club is planning a demonstration at the County Fair.

There are eighteen sewing clubs in the county, but the work is not progressing as fast as the cooking, due partly to the fact that the work is more difficult than the cooking and requires more time.

The sewing clubs organized in April were: The Harmony club at the Harmony school district, with Mrs. M. W. Earl as local leader, and members as follows: Esther Earl, president, Florence Krebs, vice-president, Freda Rogers, secretary, Ruth Earl and Hazel Alsop. The Bluebird Club at Red Clover, with Miss Jennie Reed as local leader, with the following members: Anna Nufer, president, Rosa Nufer, vice-president, Elizabeth Abplaner, secretary, Mildred Peterson and Irene Wyss.

Garden club members nearly all have their gardens planted, and some have gardens already up.

The Mohler club has the largest enrollment of active members in the county, with seventeen gardens planted. Andrew Lagler is leader of this club, and is planning an achievement day program May 18th.

Calf clubs are now well organized and a few have outlined their programs for the year. Two calf clubs were organized this month—the Mohler Calf Club with Andrew Lagler as leader, and the Miami Valley Calf Club with Gus Peterson as leader. The members of the Mohler club are Ivan Ludtke, president, Daniel Blackmore, vice-president, George Ludtke, secretary, Andrew Lagler and Richard Davis.

The members of the Miami Valley club are Ramie Peterson, president, Everett Wright, vice-president, Bergitta Blum, secretary, Arthur Ritz, Cecil Peterson and Lisgar Gardner. A pure bred Jersey heifer will be given by Mr. Peterson to the member of this club turning in the best report.

There will be an all day meeting of the Tillamook Jersey Calf Club on Saturday, May 6th, at 10:30 o'clock, a. m., at the home of Albert Krake. If you have no way of getting there, we will try and arrange transportation for you.
