TILLAMOOK PARTY NARROWLY ESCAPES DEATH IN SLIDE

Last Sunday was a beautiful day, and a party of Tillamook men composed of P. W. Barrett, Tony Werner, E. J. Claussen, Victor White and I. E. Keldson, lured by the fair weather, motored up to Necarney mountain and spent the day on that locally historic mountain. It is hinted that they did a little delving for the hidden treasure supposed to be buried there by the Spaniards, many misty years ago. But they won't say so. Away up on the mountain side, they followed the trail, and finally came to a place several hundred feet above the sea where they amused themselves by throwing stones down the declivity. There had been some blasting recently, close to where they stood, and finally they moved up the trail about twenty feet, still engaged in the sport of watching the dizzy flight of the boulders which they liberated from time to time. Suddenly, and without warning, the very spot on which they had previously stood, was covered with a great mass of fallen earth, boulders and other debris. Thousands of tons must have fallen, as the trail was obliterated, and their former resting place covered many feet deep with the fallen earth.

Mr. Keldson, was hardly 20 feet away, when the slide occurred, and the whole party lost no time in getting out of the danger zone. Barrett had not ascended the trail with the party, but Claussen, who figured with Barrett in an automobile accident out south of town about 10 days ago, was near by, and by this second most miraculous escape, is now convinced that there is a good sized jinx on trail, as this is the second episode of similar nature experienced within the past two weeks. All jokes aside, had the party not moved just when they did last Sunday, it is safe to assume that some one or more of the party would have been overwhelmed by the slide, with what result, it is hard to conjecture. The party had not moved from the point where the slide occurred more than five minutes before the thing happened, which escape brings to mind the old adage: "All's well that ends well."

It Costs You More to rot buildings than it does to let paint save them

CHECK the costs. Compare the prices of lumber and paint. They will show you how extravagant it is to allow buildings to depreciate for lack of paint.

And buildings do depreciate rapidly unless they are painted when they need to be. Paint saves the lumber. It protects your investment.

To enjoy the biggest saving in painting, use the best paint. It spreads more easily—saves labor cost. It covers more surface per gallon than "cheap" paint.

It serves five or more years longer than "cheap" paint.

The best paint is most economical because it is scientific in formula and preparation. We have been making best paints for 73 years.

They contain the finest materials. Our white lead, for instance, is PIONEER WHITE LEAD. It is super-purified and ground so fine that it will pass through a silk screen with 30,000 meshes to the square inch.

So with the other materials—pure linseed oil, pure zinc and pure colors—all of the finest quality, combined in Fuller's Paint in scientifically exact proportions with long-time skill.
