COUNTY AGENTS ARE BUSY IN OREGON FARM AFFAIRS

Do farmers use the county agents? What do they want when they visit the county agent?

The average county agent in 1921 listed 1500 calls at this office, made 366 farm visits, held or participated in 118 meetings, and wrote 1150 letters.

Some light is thrown on what farmers want by noting the activities in the office of W. B. Tucker, agent of Crook county, in January. Crook county has fewer than 600 farmers all told.

There were 150 visitors during the month and the information they desired was along the following lines: 26 callers asked for information on potato culture, 15 in regard to land values, 10 for coyote poison, 22 information on dairy topics, 18 on where seed of good quality can be purchased, 12 on poultry husbandry, 10 about agricultural magazines, 12 on growing sugar beets, 7 on dairy barns, 8 on rabbit poisoning, and 10 on general cropping systems.

In Malheur county, L. R. Breithaupt, agent 18 days in the office and 12 days on the farms of the county. Two hundred thirty persons called at the office for personal assistance; 160 personal letters were written in answer to specific requests; 22 circulars, including 2153 copies, were mailed to farmers of the county; 10 meetings were held, one for a discussion of plans on each line of work being carried on. The attendance at these meetings was 945. Seven other meetings were participated in, which were attended by 2019 farmers.

Wherever there is a county agent there is activity of a substantial and helpful nature.

TILLAMOOK'S FIRST MERCHANT MAKES ANNUAL VISIT

Geo. Cohn, of San Francisco, Cal., is here visiting the scene of his pioneer life, when Tillamook had no roads, and naught but dim trails and bridgeless rivers confronted the plucky pioneers who wound out and in the crooked paths made by the elk and deer leading to Tillamook from the Willamette valley.

Cohn was the first store-keeper in the town, and has lived to see the town under three different names advance to its present proud proportions. Nearly every year, the old pioneer, comes back to Tillamook and looks for the old faces, the friends of his old pioneer days. But the ranks of the pioneer clan yearly grow less, and the circle narrows, and he shakes hands with the living and has a kind word for the dead. Geo. Cohn loves the country where he spent the major part of this life. Though the friends have passed on, the bay and the rivers and the mountains are not much changed, and George loves to greet these as mute friends of the past, with approving eyes, and ever the Tillamook lure beckons him back from his California home, and always the remnant of the pioneer guard have a warm greeting word of welcome for the old pioneer merchant.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY COMMITTEE

Out of 30 precincts in the county, 25 precincts had the names of persons printed on the ballot for Republican county committeemen, all of whom were elected with the exception of one. It was John A. Carroll, his opponent being M. R. Terry. When the votes were counted Carroll received 31 votes to Terry's 24, the voters writing the latter's name on the ballot.

The county clerk has to notify the precinct committeemen before 14 days after the election, and Geo. B. Lamb, who is now secretary of the county committee, will have to set the date and call the committee together, which will be for the purpose of electing a county chairman, secretary, treasurer, state and congressional committeemen.

Those who were elected on Friday were: Kilehie, John W. Jennings; Little Nestucca, S. H. Rock; Long Prairie, E. Weston; Maple Leaf, F. C. Baker; Nehalem, O. E. Effenberger; Netarts, Clarence Edner; Rockaway, J. J. Krebs; Sunnyside, T. H. Goyno; Stillwell, M. J. Terry; South Prairie, T. W. Lyster; Trask, Frank Paul; Tillamook, H. T. Botts; Union, E. E.
