PROTEST MADE AT SLAUGHTER OF SEA LIONS

OWNERS OF NETARTS PROPERLY HOPE TO STOP KILLING OF ANIMALS AT SEAL ROCKS—CARCASSES STREW BEACH.

As a protest against the action of state hunters destroying the sealions at what is known as Seal rock off Maxwell point at Netarts, Rosenberg Brothers of this place have addressed a communication to the Governor asking that this practice be stopped.

It seems that the state pays professional hunters to kill the seals and collect bounty on the scalps. This is done with the idea that the seals destroy salmon, but it is said that the hunters do not stop with the seal but also kill sealions. It is maintained by some of the best authorities that the sealions do not destroy salmon.

The letters addressed to the state executive in part as follows: A few days ago, only, a crew stopped at these rocks and all day long fired upon them and succeeded in killing quite a number of the sea lions. The result has been that the beach is now strewn with their dead bodies. Owing to their size, it is impossible to bury them, and there is no way of consuming the carcasses, so as to prevent them from becoming putrid and contaminating the atmosphere so that it is almost unbearable for anyone to remain in the vicinity. This occurrence is a menace to the health of the people staying at this resort and will drive all of them away and keep them away within a distance of a good many miles of beach. These dead sea lions have been scalped, presumably so that the killers can acquire the bounty on the same."

BIG CIRCUS BRINGS NOVEL PAGEANT HERE

One of the many innovations which is particularly pleasing to the little folks, when Howe's Great London Circus comes to Tillamook, on Monday, June 12, will be the spectacle "Cinderella in Jungland."

Inaugurating a program made up of outstanding features, it really pertains to the theatrical, rather than the circus world. An army of people and countless animals take part in a gorgeous musical fantasy, woven into the story of the slipper, dear to the childish heart. There will be clowns an army of them, ponies, dogs, goats, beautiful specimens of horse intelligence, a troupe of trained camels, all working in three rings. The steel arenas will be filled with thrilling wild animal exhibitions, all for one ticket.

A parade will be on the streets Monday morning and two performances will be given, at 2 and 8 p. m.

ELECTION LAWS DISREGARDED

Judging from the results of the recent primary election, a more thorough education in election laws must be laid before the different boards and voters.

While checking over the records of the boards of the Tillamook county precincts, it was found that a large percentage of the registration cards that were made out election day at the polls were not made out properly, also that some of the witnesses secured by voters desiring to register on election day were not freeholders, that is, that these witnesses do not own property within the county. It has been ruled that swearing falsely on registration constitutes a perjury and that it is punishable by law. It is also quite possible to throw out such votes as have been cast by false registration.

All this has led county authorities to believe that a campaign of education along the line of the election laws would be a good thing from the voters point of view, and predict that such a campaign may be undertaken before the fall election.

BEACH ROADS NEED ATTENTION

The road to Netarts is reported to be in a very rough condition and that one needs shock absorbers in the top of the car to make the trip in comfort. The road leading from the main highway to the Pacific beach has been lately graveled, and while rough at present will be in a good condition with more gravel. Our beaches are unsurpassed and every thing should be done to encourage and increase the patronage at these resorts.

The regular meeting of the chapter was called to order with Mrs. Chas. Castner, Associate Grand Matron of O. E. S., as the distinguished guest; then it was found that nearly every guest who was present during convocation had passed thru the chair in some state chapter.
