A tale of the sea that seemed almost incredible was brought to port by passengers on the Shipping board steamship, American Legion, when that vessel arrived in New York from the tropics. As the liner was crossing the equator during the night, the passengers felt the ship suddenly recoil as though struck. At daylight, officers started an investigation and found the mutilated carcass of a thirty five foot shark clinging to the sharp prow.

Senators Walsh of Massachusetts and Jones of New Mexico have announced that they will offer an amendment to the American Legion's Adjusted Compensation bill to provide that heirs of soldiers who have died since the armistice shall be included among the beneficiaries of the measure.
