Poem by Uncle John

THE OLDEST SETTLER

Old Uncle Andy Higgins has inhabited these diggins, accordin' to his statements, nearly ever since the flood. . . He swum the old Mizzoury to evade the petty jury, when her highest bluff was nothin' but a little dab of mud.

He hears us fellers grumble, when the weather takes a tumble, an' never calls a halt till she's twenty-nine below. --But soon old Uncle Andy has us feelin' fine-an-dandy, when he tells us how they froze in squads, some sixty years ago. . .

When smmer heat is fiercest, an' coolin' breezes scarest, old Uncle Andy shuckles with his everlastin' grin. . . And says, in his opinion, there's a mighty warm dominion, where, chances is, the most of us will likely flounder in!

From Uncle John

HOMELY PHILOSOPHY FOR 1922

How we would value a friend who was all goodness, all self sacrifice, all kindness, all forgiveness, always ready to help us and powerful enough to do it—the chap who stands by in the storm and never deserts. If we throw down a pal of this kind I suppose we'd be thought crazy, and yet—we go to church on Sunday, pretend to believe all these things about man's only lasting friend, the Great Creator, we put a quarter in the plate and then say "see you next week."

All the radicals, kickers, general objectionist an' fault-finders shriek out loud when somebody says work is the foundation of happiness an' contentment. Just a scheme of the rich to keep the poor at the grind they say. Maybe. But why not fool 'em? Wor aint work when a fellow's doin' what he likes to do, and everybody likes to be a leader in his line, so if we can't get to do what we want to do, we can do what we have to do better than the other fellow an' lead the procession.

The Unbalanced Woman

If she is unbalanced or un-seated or out of her place, what is the cause? Who is to blame? Who brought about this change? There is but one answer. Her God-decreed protector is to blame. The federal head of the family is guilty.

Woman's place is home. Her throne is the domestic circle. She didn't leave it of her own violation. She did not sacrifice her place voluntarily. Man is wholly responsible for the unbalanced condition of woman. He is the federal head of the family. It is his business to provide and protect. And it is his business to exercise the righteous discipline necessary to a perfect home and a good government. He has two duties. He has failed through indulgence, because of a lack of courage, a sense of responsibility, and a willingness to face his plain indulgence until he has made the woman extremely extravagant.

The average girl hates work, despises domestic responsibility, and is criminally conspiring to avoid those high duties.

The man has neglected to build the home, to make it attractive and magnetic. Consequently, the woman has gone out into the world. She has gone out into the world because of necessity have been forced into the world to live. Many of them have gone out into the world because of the head of the family did not perform his duty, did not make the home happy, did not regulate it. Women have been thrown into the nerve-wracking conditions of the outer world. The strain is to great, her nerves are unsettled; she is unbalance. Her unbalanced condition has produced a state of extravagance, female recklessness, which is jeopardizing the whole domestic life of America. The man is wholly to blame for these wretched conditions.

If the fathers do not go back to their homes, and husbands do not perform their duties as federal heads of the families, the domestic life of America will suffer irreparably. The guilt of the men has unbalanced the women and has produced social conditions which bring the blush to every cheek.
