A GOOD SUGGESTION

Westover Terrace, Portland, Oregon, August 11, 1922. Tillamook Chamber of Commerce, Tillamook, Oregon. Gentlemen: It was my very great pleasure during the Federation of Women's clubs, held in your city, to visit the different cheese factories, and to see the wonderful industry you have there.

You must be congratulated on your advertising, also, and while in several of the largest cities of California, I noticed the ads on the bill boards, and I feel that there is one mistake in not saying: "TILLAMOOK, OREGON".

GARIBALDI IS A THRIVING, WIDE-AWAKE TOWN

NEW STORES OPENING UP. SEVERAL HOMES UNDER CONSTRUCTION. MILL USES ELECTRIC POWER. CUTTING OVER 200,000 FEET EACH DAY.

Few people realize what the activities of the Whitney Company can do to Tillamook county. The writer first landed in Garibaldi on March 3, 1919, at that time the main building was about half completed and a small dredge was filling in a site for the engine rooms.

The work was in charge of ex-senator Remick of Louisiana, who later died, and the completion of the plant was delayed for some time.

The townsite was covered with brush, logs, etc., and did not look very encouraging for the future of a city.

Last Sunday we again visited Garibaldi and found one of the most wide-awake places in the West, and perhaps most any place else.

We next visited the monster mill of the Whitney company and secured a pass to the engine and boiler rooms.

In the engine room stands a 2000 Curtis turbine, a 750 twin electric, and a 600 horse power Corless steam, which is used to drive the head rig.

The fire rooms are concrete, having five large upright water tube boilers. The mill is electric thruout, with the exception of the head rig, which we will cover in a future article.

There are about 240 men on the payroll at the mill. 30 of these are on construction work.

Last Thursday they made a cut of 236,000 feet, and H. E. Morgan, the superintendent, informs us that expect to be able to cut 250,000 in the near future.

When the plant was under construction it was predicted by critics that the foundation would not hold up, but it has stood the test.

Leaving the mill and recrossing the street we find a good number of residences and a large hotel which the company conducts.

One thing that is very noticeable is the absence of cheap shacks; all are well constructed dwellings. Several business houses are planned and work will start in the near future in all probability.

The payroll at the mill at present is about $20,000 per month. A good thing was secured sometime ago following logs.

There is a great future for the town of Garibaldi.

M. D. Ackley returned Monday from Albany, where he went with his family, they taking the train for Southern Oregon points.

Mr. Ackley left those parts on last Wednesday and will spend a week or ten days there on his vacation and incidentally as a side issue will get the limit of deer for the season.
