RUSS HAVE NEW COURT SYSTEM

Supreme Tribunal, With Seat at Moscow, to Have Criminal, Civil and Appeal Branches.

Moscow.-The revolutionary tribunals which, along with the dreaded "cheka," were instruments of Red terror during the worst period of the bolshevist revolution, passed into history the other day when a new and permanent court system was inaugurated throughout Russia.

While founded upon lines not unlike those of the court systems of some other European countries, the new Russian courts have some particularly communistic features all their

The Supreme court of Russia, which will sit in Moscow, will have three branches. One will be for criminal cases, one for civil, and the other a court of appeal. There will be also district courts to try cases of local importance, and the "people's" courts, corresponding to police magistrates, will operate in each village and city district to try minor offenses.

Stuchka le Chairman.

Peter Stuchka, Lettish lawyer, who gained fame as the bolshevist dictator of Latvia when Riga was in the hands of the communists, has been named as chairman of the Supreme court. Another Lett. M. Karkin, will be his assistant. In the criminal, civil and appeal branches, however, the shpreme court judges are mostly men who served in responsible positions in the revolutionary tribunals, all communists tried and true, Jacob Peters, who headed the "cheka" at Petrograd during the Red terror, is one of the judges of the criminal department.

M. Kursky, commissar of justice, will be chief procurator or attorney general in the new court system, but the active prosecutor will be Vladimir Krylenko, formerly chairman of the revolutionary tribunals.

New Jury System

A peculiar feature of the new system is that a species of "juror" is introduced. There will be two of them in each case, sitting beside the judge and having full powers to question witnesses and attorneys. They will retire with the indee to decide upon a majority vote of the three serving to convict or free the prisoner.

Panels of these prospective jurymen are now being selected throughout Russia. The various trade unions and professional organizations select them from their own numbers, and they must be ready to go into court at any time they are called upon. The Moscow quota of jurors is 4,000. When they sit in trials the furymen are paid, not by the government, but by their employers, receiving their regular day's wages for the time passed

When the new court system is in full swing it is expected that most of the lawyers appearing will be men trained in the law courts of the old regime. Professional unions of lawyers are being organized, subject to the approval of the soviet authorities.

Cat She Fed Saves Woman From Starving

New York.-Having spent her last cent for milk for stray cats, many of which she has fed nightly for two years, Mary Posarti, forty-five, sank upon the bed in her dingy two-room flat at 205 Avenue B, and slipped into unconsciousness of starvation. Patrolman Dierker of the Fifth street station found her when he broke down her door recently. Upon the floor were 200 empty milk bottles.

If she lives and at Bellevue hospital physicians say she has only a slender chance—the woman will owe her life to the cats she befriended. For two nights they came back, as usual, for milk, and, finding none, "meowed" mournfully under her ground floor window. Neighbors told the police of the cats' actions.

Dwellers in the Avenue B tenement say the woman took the rooms two years ago, locked her door and never appeared in the daytime. Each night, however, she went out and returned with six bottles of milk, which she poured into saucers placed outside her window. For a year, until three months ago, the woman had a male visitor as mysterious as she. His visits censed suddenly. A milk dealer with whom she traded said she told him this man was her husband.

FREED BY CONFESSION

Indian After 25 Years in Prison Is Now Enjoying Wealth.

Washington, D. C.-How a halfbreed Cherokee Indian, Charmer Tidwell, languished from his youth for a quarter of a century in federal prisons before being released on a baseless murder charge, was revealed in of Justice. Freed from the charge er is now enjoying the wealth of inherited Oklahovna oil lands.

Three presidents, Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson, denied pardons to Tidwell upon reports from three former attorney generals, Knox, Dickerson and Gregory, that all evidence in the marder case pointed positively, although circumstantially, to the pris-oner's guilt. Friends, including Senator Gore and former Representative Alice Robertson, pressed the investigation of Tidwell's continued protes tations of innocence. Finally he was released form Atlanta penitentiary upon a commutation of sentence recomended by Attorney General Daugherty and Assistant Attorney General

After President Harding's commutation a widow's deathbed confession in Oklahoma revealed that Tidwell had been convicted of murdering her husband upon perjured testimony.

"The Lord has been wanting me to tell it for all these years, and afraid He won't forgive me for not telling it," reads the affidavit of Mrs. James Brown, the dying wife of the man for whose alleged murder Tidwell passed twenty-five years in prison in Ohio and Atlanta federal prisons. One of Brown's sons himself behind prison bars today, was said to have corroborated the deathbed confession of his mother, that Tidwell was convicted on perjured evidence. The man who committed the murder was said to have been a former sweetheart of Mrs. Brown and has long been dead.

USUALLY FOLLOWS FLU

About Sleeping Sickness.

Washington.-While reports of cases of "sleeping sickness" are reach- and seven great-grandchildren, many ing the Public Health Service from of whom attended the wedding, various parts of the country, Sur geon General Hugh S. Cumming said that the service had no statistics sufficiently reliable to warrant a statement as to the extent of the disease throughout the United States.

"Encephalitis lethargica, or sleeping sickness, as it is popularly known, is reportable by physicians in only comparatively few states," said the surgeon general. "In the larger part of the country the only data available are based on newspaper reports. Moreover, the disease is rather easy to confuse with some other diseases, and its prevalence is, therefore, likely to be unduly magnified. "Thus, in an investigation made by Dr. H. F. Smith of the public health service, of the 1918-19 epidemic, 22 per cent of the supposed cases had to be excluded as being really cerebrospinal meningitis, cerebral syphillis, brain abscess, tuberculosis meningitis. epilepsy, poliomyelitis, hysteria, or acute alcoholism. "The disease appears to be only difficultly communicable. Not a single secondary case is known to have occurred in the immediate families of the patients reported in 1918-19, although some 900 persons were exposed. "The fatality is rather high. Of the 159 cases studied by Smith, death resulted in 46, or 29 per cent.

"It is interesting, though perhaps not significant, that the peak of the outbreak of 1918-19 was reached in New York City in January. In Virginte in February, and in Louisiana, Texas and Illinois in March. In California the largest number of cases reported in any one month was in April. Whether this progress was related to the season of the year, or was merely a result of the spread of the disease, is not known. Comparison with the present spread may throw some light on the subject. "The disease is slow in development and long in duration. The period of convalescence is variable; in some cases recovery is completed within two weeks after the subsidence of the acute symptoms, but in others it is prolonged and leaves its record on the mind, on certain muscles and on the nerves of the cranium. The mental troubles, however, usually pass off eventually.

"The appearance of encephalitis in epidemic form has, except for one epidemic reported from Austria, always been followed by an epidemic of influenza. Forty-six per cent of the cases studied by Doctor Smith had had influenza and 54 per cent had not. The influenza attack rate has been ascribed to the lowering of the vitality of the patients by the influenza, but has also been explained as being really due to another attack of influenza which has invaded the central nervous system of the body. Whether or not there is any connection between the two diseases has not yet been established."

Childhood Lovers, 73 and 72, Meet, Wed

Sheridan, Ore.-George Marvel, seventy-three, and Mrs. Nancy Shipley, seventy-two, were married here as the culmination of a romance of nearly sixty years ago, when they were child-sweethearts in their old homes in Illinois.

Their youthful romance became blighted and each married a chum of the other. They lost track of each other after that and finally came separately to Oregon. Eight years ago Marvel lost his wife by death and at about the same time Mrs. Shipley's husband died. Through a mutual Surgeon General Cummings Tells friend Marvel recently learned that Mrs. Shipley lived here. From his home in eastern Oregon he wrote her. Correspondence ensued between them.
