The Situation With Respect to Hupmobile

THERE are more than fifty thousand—perhaps twice that many—garages scattered over the country; and in almost any one of them you can be reasonably sure you will encounter ardent admiration for the Hupmobile.

MOST of us have always known that the Hupmobile is one car which stands exceedingly well with the great mass of motorists, whether they own a Hupmobile or not.

To speak frankly—is all the more impressive because it is based on observation and comparison, and is entirely unbiased.

The same thing is true of the gasoline supply stations—together comprising thousands of experienced observers who, if they gave you a confidential answer to the friendly American query, "What's the good word?" would say—"Hupmobile."

Most of us have also known that the loyalty of Hupmobile owners is almost a proverb in the automotive industry.

PERHAPS you haven't known that this situation so highly favorable to the Hupmobile existed.

It isn't an admiration shared with several other cars, either, but a special appreciation based upon experience—and for diplomatic reasons it is not always expressed to those who do not drive a Hupmobile.

But this other great group offers a different kind of testimony, and in some respects, perhaps, even a more valuable and convincing kind.

Well—all motor car manufacturers know it, and motor car salesmen and motor car dealers and almost everyone connected with the business of building and marketing automobiles.

Sometimes the repair man also sells cars and, always, both he and the gas and oil distributor cater to the entire motoring public.

It is unique, it is flattering, it is based on facts.

Therefore, their unhesitating tribute to Hupmobile—when ever circumstances permit them to consider it worth recording.

Hupmobile
