COUNTY NEWS IN BRIEF

BRIGHTON

Miss McNaid and Miss Alice Sewell, who have been occupying the Bert cottage, returned to Portland this morning after a months vacation. Miss Sewell is an artist and has a studio in Portland.

G. J. Stewart and son, Garland, who cranked up the old Ford and started out two months ago to find a new and better home, have returned to Brighton and are fully satisfied to settle down right here. They were all through the middle west, stopped in Colorado and then went on to Oklahoma and tried it there. Some one asked Garland if he harvested any and he said, "No indeed, it was all we could do to get our breath and stay in the shade." So they started back to work in the Brighton mill.

Mrs. Paul Malberg has been entertaining her two sisters from South Bend, Mrs. A. Pundars and Mrs. A. Loindgrist.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleet Fox and family, who have been visiting relatives here for three weeks, have returned home. They also took a nice lot of canned salmon along. Mr. Fox is a butcher for the United Meat company and had his hand badly cut so he had a good long vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Lee of Portland visited the week end with Mr. and Mrs. P. Burgess. They took Maxine and Howard, who have spent the summer here with their grandparents, back to start in school.

NEHALEM

Mrs. Charles Ewan left Sunday morning for Fargo, South Dakota, where she will visit relatives during the next two months.

Mrs. Millie Smith went to Portland Sunday morning to visit a sister. Her stay will be indefinite.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Richardson of Portland are guests of Charles Kuntz and family this week.

W. M. Macphail, president of the Warren Construction Company, was in town over Sunday.

Thomas Murphy and wife, John Welch and wife, and Herman Warner and wife, all of Portland are visiting the families of William Norris and J. W. Thompson.

Mrs. Preschoff and Mrs. Steer, of Oregon City, Mr. and Mrs. Dunn and Mrs. Hoffman, a sister of Andrew Klein, from Portland, visited the latter and family over the week end.

Dr. Carter B. Macgruder, government inspector of Naval hospitals, and his son, G. M. Macgruder who is in the U. S. Army, spent several days here enjoying the fishing. The doctor is a Virginian, but has spent a good many years in government service.

The new rock crusher recently installed by Tillamook county at the Clatsop quarry is reported to be an industrious machine with a ravenous appetite, eating up more than one hundred yards of rock each day.

The fish boat Ikaros which was forced on the beach at Neah-kahnie last week was hauled overland to Nehalem by Anderson Bros., and launched in the river Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mead drove to Cloverdale and returned last Saturday, bringing their two children, Dean and Dorothy, who have been spending their vacation with their grandparents at Broton Springs.

Miss Nettie Ewan who has been acting as 'Hello girl,' at the local office all summer, resigned her position Saturday in order to enter High School which opens Monday, September 3.

J. P. Moritz and William Norris have each had their property on main street improved to the extent of a new roof. Helmar Ristrom did the work for them.

Two young men from this vicinity Ira Ludtke and a companion whom we know only as Slim, have frequently gone in a small fish boat from Nehalem bay to Tillamook bay and return, and thought it fine sport. Last Friday while crossing the bar of the later bay, they met a huge wave which capsized their boat turning it upside down with the boys underneath. By the aid of life preservers they were able to swim ashore, which they reached about one hour later not much worse for their experience. Some time later the boat drifted in, coming through a hole in the jetty.

Some time Friday evening while driving on the beach at Manzanita, Mrs. Bertha Madsen of St. Helens, came near losing her car, an Oldsmobile, by being swamped in the sand. The car is said to have gone down to the top of the fenders, but a number of spectators with the aid of ropes and planks were able to rescue it. It took a garage man several hours next morning to clear the machinery of sand.

The Nehalem schools opened on Labor day. The teachers in the grade schools are principal, Zola Kirry; intermediate, Miss Cullom; primary, Mrs. Franklin Knight. At the Union High school the teachers are, principal, Miss M. L. Stevenson with Mrs. Snuyder and Mrs. Ross as assistants.

Hood River—Work moving rapidly on Mt. Hood loop highway.

Astoria Odd Fellows to build new temple.

BRIDGE STEEL HERE FOR NEHALEM WORK

A part of the steel for the Nehalem bridge has arrived, and workmen are putting it in place on that structure. The remainder of the steel, it is believed, will soon follow. The steel has been delayed for a considerable time, and has held the work of finishing the bridge up for some weeks. Both approaches and piers of the new bridge are in, and when some fills at either end of the bridge are done, and the balance of the steel has been placed the bridge will be ready for travel. The new dyke road between Nehalem and Wheeler will, however, not be ready for travel for some time yet, states County surveyor Coates, as the overhead crossings on the south end of the road over the Southern Pacific railroad will have to be built. This road, when completed, will connect the towns of Wheeler and Nehalem with a fine road, and will later become a link of the Roosevelt highway via the beach route, and will cut down the distance from Tillamook to Seaside to a considerable extent.

POLK CO. WIZARD RIVAL TO BURBANK

A sleek looking individual, wearing leather puttees, a corduroy suit, and a flowing Windsor tie, in which was stuck what might have been a fairly good imitation of a paste diamond, sat in the corridor of a local hotel, one day last week, talking to a farmer tourist. The reporter tuned his radio, and waited:

"Say, fellow, I don't know you from Adam's off ox, but I'm telling you that I've got Lucifer Burbank skinned a country block, when it comes to tree propagation. I've read everything Burbank ever wrote, and I've seen that bird down on his farm in California, and have talked with him; and he admitted to me that I had him fished when it came to crossing trees. Why, say, fellow, I can take a common oak grub tree and cross it with a pear tree and in two years I'll have pears growing along with the oak puff balls. You may think that's going some, but my method can cross a hazel switch with a devil's walking stick and get a two bushel basket full of bananas...."

Just then a tall, angular woman with a determined look came into the hotel, paused in front of the wizard and eyed him truculently.

"Up to your old tricks of telling how you've got Luther Burbank fished, I'll bet," she said laughing in a harsh tone of voice.

"Are you ready to go, Evangeline," asked the wizard meekly, rising from his chair.

"I've been sitting out there in that old Lizzie for an hour, waiting for you; and if you don't get out and tune up that car and get us over to the beach, I'll do a little stunt of seeing how far I can throw you out into the middle of the street," said the woman angrily.

"I'm coming right now," said the tree wizard, going toward the door. The woman, laughed, stepped closer to the little knot of chair warmers, and said:

"Don't you believe one word that bird told you. He is the champion liar of Polk county, and is so lazy that I have to lick him morning and evenings to get him to slop the hogs and milk two cows. If I'd known how to drive that Lizzie, I'd have left the cheap skate at home, and come alone. I got him through a matrimonial paper, but lord, how I got bunked."

Then she gave an Amazonian flirt, and vanished through the hotel door.

WILSON WATER UNFIT, STATE DIRECTORS

A notice was published in the last issue of this paper over the signature of the directors of the Fairview Water District in which the users were "warned against using the water in the preparation of uncooked foods, or for drinking purposes without first boiling the water."

The water for the association comes from Hughey creek, a mountain stream, which supplies the people of the Fairview district, the center of which is about two miles east of town. So far as reported, no sickness has resulted to the 100 users of the water, but it is said that the commissioners will clean out the reservoir and take other precautions to prevent contamination. At this time of year, when the water supply is low, many insects get into the water, also dead leaves and other detached vegetable matter, and this has to be looked after. It is said that a good rain would wash all this stuff away. It is stated by the commission that the water is normally pure and whole some, but the notice was given at the instance of the state board deputy, as a precautionary measure until the reservoir can be cleared of a possible collection of vegetable and other matter which is a result of the change of the season and low water. It is said that no trouble has been experienced with this water in the past.

EDWARD WILLIAM STASEK

Edward William Stasek, who died in this city August 29th of cancer, was born in Kaukauna, Wisconsin, March 1, 1885, and came to Tillamook county, Oregon, in 1891, with his parents, James Stasek and wife. Deceased is survived by his father and mother, a sister, Alice Stasek of Tillamook, a brother, Henry of Nehalem, and Alvin and Rudolph brothers, who live in Vancouver, B. C. Deceased was a member of the Elks, and that lodge attended funeral services in the Catholic church on last Saturday. Interment followed in the Catholic cemetery south of town. The funeral arrangements were in charge of the local Knight of Columbus.
