Jimmy Watson, a high school student of this city, has a novel plan to put himself through the Oregon Agriculture college course. In June next year he hopes to finish his high school course here, and in the fall of next year will begin a course at the Corvallis institution, which will include chemistry, animal husbandry and soiling. In order to pay his way, he will take several of his present herd of eight pure bred Holsteins, and put them under official observation at the college farm in the department of animal husbandry. From the proceeds of the milk, which he will get from the cows, he figures on about $100 or more a month, which he estimates will pay his way, and give him some money for other purposes. This is his own scheme, and those who know Jimmy, feel sure that the scheme will work. He is now taking bookkeeping and is a good typist, and is now in his 19th year. His example is to be commended to others who have independence enough to make their own way. Such boys usually make a success of business life.

STOLEN MOTORCYCLE RECOVERED THIS WEEK

A motor cycle stolen from this city one day last week, was later found in Portland, where it had been taken by the thief. A man named R. P. Burner was arrested by Sheriff Aschm and charged with the theft. He was discovered in the southern part of the county, and probably will be held to the grand jury. Burner is described as a floater, and originally, so he says, came from Kansas to California, later coming up to Oregon.

Baker—Contracts to be let for construction of a section of Baker, Bridgeport Unite post road. Estimates for entire amount total $341,000.

STILL IS CAPTURED ON WILSON RIVER

Mountain Place Gives Up Evidence of Illicit Liquor Making to County Authorities

The recent foggy weather was unpropitious for moonlight on the Wilson, and the best the Sheriff and a deputy could do was to make it moonshine on the Wilson. Monday night about 14 miles up that fine fishing stream, arrived at the home of Mrs. Hill, and in a near by secluded glen, they found an illicit liquor still that was still warm; also mash and liquor, the later being ready to assuage the craving of the fellow who owes his stomach a grudge. Arnold Kinney and Glenn Breneman, were arrested as being the main push, but it is possible that two women who are living at the Hill home may be implicated in the matter also.

At the Holstein picnic at Cloverdale last week, there was displayed a paper mache picture of a model Holstein cow on the grounds. A little child of Dolph Tinnerstet, thinking the cow a real one, walked up to the pseudo dairy animal and attempted to milk her, and thus furnished the crowd with a good hearty laugh. The constructors of the cow should take that as a real compliment to their splendid work. This episode reminds of the painter who painted grapes so naturally that the birds came to eat them.

Supposed to be a confirmed bachelor, and without giving his friends in either Tillamook or at Bay City so much as a hint of his intent to commit matrimony, Earl departed for Portland the middle of last week, ostensibly on business. But on Monday last he drove in to town with a bride, who formerly was Miss Lillian Bennett of Portland. The wedding ceremony was performed at the home of the bride, by Rev. Dorris of a Portland Congregational church on the 7th inst. The newly weds are spending their honeymoon at Bayocean. Capt. Snodgrass is owner of the Rustler, which plays between Bay City and Bayocean.

GET WHEELER MAN WITH WET GOODS

In the heart of the hillside city of Wheeler, in the dead hours of the night, when owls hooted dimly in the background of that busy burg, and tom cats fought valiantly yet noisily on the water front, three deputies sheriff heeled with the paraphernalia of war, and a rarin' to go, raided a bootlegger roost presided over by one, Oscar Gilfillian, and got the "wet goods on him." Oscar was brought down to the county seat where the mill of the law grinds slowly but surely, and exceedingly fine. Charges of unlawful possession and sale of liquor were filed, and Mr. Gilfillian dug up cash bail to the tune of $750, and will later be an object of investigation by the grand jury, and thus the fine income grows by leaps and bounds.

COUNTY AND CITY JAILS FULL

There are now fifteen prisoners in the county jail, and nine are confined in the city jail. After the Circuit Judge has sentenced a number of persons who have plead guilty to indictments, will probably be sent to the penitentiary, or paroled with fines, thus lessening the number, but for some reason, as fast as the case of one man is disposed of, others are arrested charged with state offenses. The county will have to build a larger jail, if the law violators continue to increase.

ELK AT TILLAMOOK HEAD

It is reported that the game warden of Clatsop county recently saw a herd of ten elk on Tillamook Head. In the herd were two old bulls, one young bull, five cows and two calves. All were in good condition. Warden Smith believes there are between 150 to 175 elk in Clatsop county. Elk have been in various parts of the county.

SEVERAL SENTENCED IN COURT YESTERDAY

Batch of Bootleggers are Fined $2,000 Last Wednesday Afternoon

COUNTY GETS MOST

Many Other Cases are Threshed Through Mill of Justice in Record Time

Circuit Court adjourned at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon for the term. Judge Bagley's last act was to sentence a batch of bootleggers whose fines jointly amounted to $2,000, all of which will go to the county but 25 per cent, which the state gets, according to a provision made by the last legislature.

The Aufdermauer boys, indicted for bootlegging, plead guilty on three indictments. They will have to each pay $500 in cash as a fine; failure to do so means 750 days in jail, besides individual sentences of 18 months in jail. They were given five days to raise the money, which their father probably will pay.

Arlin Kinney, bootlegger, plead guilty, and was fined $1500 on a total of three counts. He was paroled to raise $500 in cash, failing he will have to serve 750 days in addition to an 18 months sentence.

Breneman, bootlegger, was fined $500 with six months in jail; paroled upon payment of $100, as to balance of fine and jail sentence; given 50 days to raise the money by hard work; otherwise the sentence runs its full length.

Gilfillian and wife plead guilty to liquor charges; Each was fined $500 and six months in the county jail; Gilfillian paroled upon payment of $500 in cash and as to jail sentence;

THREE RIVERS MEN FOUND 'MOONING'

Large Cache of Mash and Liquor Found Monday Evening on Aufdermauer Place

The moonshine business originated down in Kentucky, and since has spread over a large territory, embracing almost, if not every state in the union. Take the profit out of it and nobody would care to make it. But the profit lures, and men take chances, and get in jail and have their autos confiscated and pay stiff fines. Still others try it, and all eventually wind up in jail. Away up in a canyon on Three Rivers, less than half a mile from the mail highway, is the home of Jos. Autermaier, a well-to-do rancher, whose two sons bought a 35 gallon copper still, and went into the moonshine game, with a zeal worthy of a better cause. Forty two gallons of mash and 350 gallons of mash reposed in the still house Sunday morning last, when the boys came out prepared to run off another batch of the stuff that kicks like a sawed off shot-gun loaded with lead sinkers. Just as the boys were singing an old country folk song, and shooting a few yodels into the canyon sides, secure in their belief that Justice was taking a nap down at the county seat, 28 miles away, Sheriff John Aschm and J. C. Holden, appeared and arrested the sons. And the yodel subsided into a long drawn gasp of surprise. Alas, the still would no longer chortle; the mashy smell would not time evaporate, and 42 gallons of moonshine would go down the sewer at Tillamook.

Saturday night, Leslie Lucas drove Aschm and J. C. Holden up to the vicinity, and they hunted for the still that they believed still stood somewhere. They found it, and stayed in the brush all night. When the boys came out, they nabbed them. The elder Aufdermaier put up $750 in cash for the appearance of the boys before the grand jury which re-convened, Wednesday.

BARN IS BURNED WITH HEAVY LOSS

The largest stock barn in Tillamook county on the Daniels estate, one mile below Cloverdale, was totally destroyed at 8:30 on Sunday of last week. The fire originated from spontaneous combustion. The barn cost about $7,000, and contained hay worth $3500. Total loss $10,350. There was $2000 insurance on the barn and $2200 on the hay, amounting to about half of the value of the property and feed. The place was occupied by Joe Rust, who is in charge.

PUBLIC SERVICE MEN MEET AT KNUDSON

The members of the State public service commission and the County court went up to Knudson to view a place for a proposed grade to eliminate a S. P. crossing one day last week. The hearing in this matter was concluded in Tillamook in the county court rooms the evening following the viewing, and the commission took testimony for future action.

WOMAN AND CHILD DIE AT NEAH-KAH-NIE

Mrs. Irene Pashek and Small Son Found in Lake, Drowned, Last Thursday Afternoon

Mrs. Irene May Pashek aged 25, and her son Neill, 4 years, were drowned in Neah-kah-nie lake after 4 p. m. Thursday last. The twain were not missed until the next morning, when search was made, after finding articles of clothing near the lake. The lake was dragged and both bodies recovered. The theory is that in walking along the narrow path at the edge of the lake, the child fell into the water, and that mother instinct caused the woman to attempt a rescue with the result that both were drowned. The walk is only 13 inches wide at the point where the bodies were found.

The mother and son who were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hunt of Nehalem, left the home of her parents to call on a friend. The route taken home led by the lake.

Mrs. Pashek is divorced, her former husband living in Portland. She also is a resident of that city. Other relatives are Francis Hunt and Vivian Hunt of Nehalem, including A. G. Hunt and wife, parents, who also live in Nehalem.

BRUSH FIRE SPREADS FROM SLASHING

A brush fire got away at the Henry Simmons place one day last week, and spread to other property at a point about 6 miles south of town, and is now close to the York mill, but Simmons and a force of men are hard at work trying to put it out, under direction of Fire warden McCowell. Should the fire get to the York sawmill, it is figured considerable loss would result, but the latest reports indicate that it will be stamped out before it gets much bigger. The Fire warden has revoked all permits for brush burning, as it is extremely hazardous at this time for fires of any sort in the woods or on ranches.

SIX CONVICTS SENT TO PENITENTIARY

Last Monday in circuit court, Judge Bagley passed sentence upon four burglars and two forgers. The burglars were Clifford Bouch, Fred Du Puis, Lee Osborne and Harry Berg, each of whom got three years in the penitentiary, except in the case of Osborne who will have eighteen months to serve. R. E. Thomas, indicted for forgery committed in this county last July drew 10 years on his ticket, as he was a parole violator, to boot, having been sent up from this county on a similar charge several years ago. He was later paroled and violated it, hence was given a longer term by Judge Bagley. Ray Grayson, indicted for forgery committed in this county, also drew three years in the state penal institution. Deputies will take the batch over to the pen this week.
