TOLD TO HANG TO THE POST

When Frank Elliott, fish dealer of this city, and an old time stage driver in the days when Tillamook roads were atrocious, was called to stand up and receive sentence upon his confession to the possession of mosh in this city, in Circuit Court last week, Frank arose with some misgivings as to what might happen, and threw one arm around one of the pillars of the court room. Noticing his position of despair, the Judge who has a quiet sense of judicial humor, said:

"Mr. Elliott, take a firm hold of that post, lest you fall." Elliott tightened his hold, and a peculiar ashy color overspread his face. The Judge then imposed a fine of $1,000, and a jail sentence of one year. As Frank wiped the cold sweat from his brow, the Judge further added that provided Elliott should pay $100 to the clerk of the court, and promise to behave in the future, he would parol him as to the jail sentence, and $900 of the fine. Then it was that the oldtimer nervously fished out a check book and wrote a draft for $100, remarking in a voice somewhat choked with pleasurable emotion: "By Gosh! I

PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL LIVE STOCK SHOW

Clydesdale draft horses and jacks are well supplied with premium money. The fat stock classes are strong again this year.

The boys' and girls' clubs are offered over $4000 in premiums and for contests and judging. The pig feeding contests alone carries $1000, and large exhibits for this event will come from all parts of the Northwest.

As usual the judges for all livestock will be men of the highest ability and authority obtainable, and will come from all parts of the United States and Canada.

The judging contests will attract much attention, not only for the boys' and girls' club teams, but also for high school and agricultural college teams.

Each year the attractions at our great exposition increase. Outside the livestock itself, the horse show delights everybody. The Pacific International horse show this year offers thirteen $1000 stakes in addition to $10,000 offered in the regular classes. This is sufficient to draw thither the finest show horses of America.

Those who are concerned in the improvement of butter, cheese and other products of milk and cream will watch the work of the Western Dairy Products Show with deep interest. It is stated that it will be larger than ever in the past.

The Western Winter Poultry and Rabbit Show will be unusually interesting this fall. National conventions of poultry folks are expected in Portland coincident with the Pacific International, and this will bring not only poultrymen, but poultry from the East and Middle West.

The Industrial Exhibits division is going to be more complete and beautiful than ever and manufacturers and merchants are vying with each other already in the preparation and decoration of their booths, filled with the treasures of the commerce and manufacturing of the world.

In this division the Land Products Show will be placed. It is growing greater each year, with its grand displays of fruits and vegetables from the various counties of the state, and its competitive exhibits of grains and grasses. It is worth the trip, all by itself.

It is rumored that a herd of Milking Shorthorns and Devon cattle will come from New Hampshire this year. It is possible that Scotch Highland cattle from Canada may be on exhibition also. But it is too early yet to report on all the features which will be on exhibit at the Pacific International. From time to time these will be given to the press.

NATURALLY USCO'S could hardly have delivered such money's worth—tire after tire—without making a clean sweep.
